POSTPONE CLOSING SCHOOLS IN HOPE OF AVERTING NEED

Unless People Vote Amendment, However, School Will Probably Close for Month in Fall.

SEVERAL SCHOOLS ARE CONSOLIDATED

Six Negro Night Schools Abolished After Debate. General Retrenchment Policy Adopted.

Atlanta schools probably will be closed a month between September 1 and January 1, several school consolidations will be made, six negro night schools abolished and a general program of retrenchment in the public educational program in Atlanta put into effect at once, according to a vote of the Atlanta school board Tuesday in slashing a fund of $343,520.20 from the "B" budget of the board. This cut brought the revised budget within the appropriation limit anticipated for educational purposes, and assures payment within 48 hours of salaries due employees for January, it was announced.

During the time schools are suspended, teachers and other employees of the system will receive no remuneration. This is tantamount to cutting salaries of all employees one-twelfth for this year.

In making the budget cuts, several outstanding features which were salvaged from the pruning knife were cited. They are:

Salvaged Features.

First, salaries of school teachers are to remain unchanged and the scheduled raise which was to become effective September 1, will materialize, although it may be delayed 30 days.

Second, the bureau of statistics and attendance, and the visual education department will remain intact or at least be placed on the same basis as other departments of the system.

Third, kindergartens will be retained.

In other words, it was pointed out that the Atlanta school system probably will sail over placid waters until September 1, when it may again strike a snag.

May Avoid Closing.

There is a possibility that citizens of the city will vote a charter amendment providing adequate funds to keep the schools open before the time for the actual closing arrives this fall, it was pointed out. A special committee from the board and from the school committee of city council is now preparing such a paper to be submitted to the Georgia legislature this summer and it is expected that it will be laid before the people in referendum this fall. If it carries, the

American Legation in Lisbon Riddled by Bullets

MINISTER DEARING FORCED TO LEAVE HOME FOR SAFETY

MANY POLITICIANS JOIN REVOLUTION

Rigid Censorship Veils Course of Events in Portugal—Curfew Regulations Enforced.

Washington, February 8.—(AP)—The American legation at Lisbon, has been repeatedly struck by rifle and machine gun bullets, forcing Minister Fred M. Dearing to abandon the building, according to a telegram received today by the state department.

The message described the situation at Lisbon as "very serious," but gave no details of the present status of the Portuguese revolutionary outbreak.

The state department made public the following message from Minister Dearing:

"The situation in Lisbon is very serious and will probably continue so for several days.

"The minister has been obliged to abandon the legation which was repeatedly struck by rifle and machine-gun fire."

VEIL IS STILL DRAWN OVER PORTUGUESE EVENTS.

London, February 8.—(AP)—The veil is still drawn over events at Lisbon, no dispatches having been received from the Portuguese capital today and the censorship has closed down even on the course of events at Oporto.

The only indication in London of the continuing gravity of the situation in Portugal was the news that a British cruiser was leaving Gibraltar for Lisbon and that two destroyers had been dispatched to Oporto for protection of British interests.

Mail advices from frontier points, bringing events up to Saturday, state that all the politicians of the extreme left wing of the democratic party had gathered at the headquarters of the revolutionary troops in Oporto.

Authorities have ordered a curfew—all shops in Lisbon to be closed and traffic suspended in the streets after 4 o'clock in the afternoon while the marine arsenal was heavily guarded.

Newspapers Suspended.

The government also decreed that safe conducts during curfew hours would be granted only to persons whose professions required them to be abroad in those hours. Many have been arrested for infringing these regulations. Three papers, O Mundo, Informace, and O Rebate, have been suspended and their editors imprisoned. There also has been trouble with the milling interests, which are licensed by the government's orders regulating bread baking to prevent speculation. Similar mail advices up to Sunday reported that Lisbon was again under martial law. The strike on the state railways continues, but the government has succeeded in running a few trains.

The Westminster Gazette's Paris correspondent gives reports that mutineers on two cruisers in the harbor at Lisbon have occupied several quarters in the capital and captured the minister of foreign affairs and interior.

Coolidge Expected To Offer Tilson New Federal Job

NEW NOMINATION IS EXPECTED SOON

Action of President Is Influenced by Senator Curtis When Defeat of Tilson Loomed.

Washington, February 8.—(Special.)—After President Coolidge withdrew the nomination today of William J. Tilson, formerly of Atlanta, as judge of the new middle Georgia district, it was stated authoritatively at the capitol that the president would not give Tilson a recess appointment to the office as he did last year but that the incident definitely is closed.

The president is expected to offer Tilson in compensation appointment to another federal office if Tilson desires it. The withdrawal today came suddenly, but it did not cause very great surprise because of the opposition to confirmation of the Georgia judge, a brother of the republican house floor leader, which had been aroused in the senate, and which it was generally admitted made confirmation practically impossible.

The president's withdrawal came on the eve of consideration of the nomination by the senate. By previous agreement, the senate was scheduled to take up the nomination at 3 o'clock. The president notified the senate that he had withdrawn the nomination shortly after noon, and accordingly the senate agreed to let the matter drop.

Gave Recess Appointment.

This was the second time that the nomination has been withdrawn. After the judiciary committee last session had reported the nomination unfavorably, President Coolidge gave Tilson a recess appointment, and he has served since that time. The president sent his name to the senate again this session and the judiciary committee voted an adverse report 11 to 1. Some republicans voted for an unfavorable report chiefly because Senator Harris, of Georgia, had announced he would oppose Tilson in the senate as "personally obnoxious."

It was learned today that Senator Curtis, of Kansas, republican floor leader, had entered the situation when he saw it would be impossible to secure Tilson's confirmation and had influenced the withdrawal. He also gave senators to understand that Tilson would not be given a recess appointment.

Both Senators Harris and George said after the withdrawal today they felt confident there would be no recess appointment.

Attention now turns to another nomination for the position. Senator George, of Georgia, said he expected a name to be sent in before the end of the session, just three weeks away, but said he had made no recommendations and would make none unless he was asked by the president and the justice department. He and Senator

HOUSE OF TEXAS EXPELS MEMBERS IN BRIBERY CASE

F. A. Dale and H. H. Moore Are Held Guilty by Committee of House of Representatives.

Austin, Texas, February 8.—(AP)—Representatives F. A. Dale and H. H. Moore were expelled from house membership in the 40th Texas legislature today by an overwhelming vote on charges of bribe taking and the house sent to committee a resolution proposing further investigation of lawmakers' and lobbyists' dealings. The bribery charges already had been called to the attention of the Travis county grand jury.

Dale, attorney of Bonham, and Moore, farmer of Cooper, were ousted by votes of 133 to 4 and 119 to 14, respectively, on recommendation of an investigating committee which held open meetings attended by most of the house members.

Two Men Arrested.

The two representatives were arrested Wednesday night by Texas rangers on information supplied by Willis Chamberlain, Houston optometrist, who said Dale solicited and accepted $1,000 to get an unfavorable report from the house committee on Moore's bill taxing optometrists, and that Moore was involved in the final closing of the deal. The rangers took $1,000 in marked bills from Dale near a hotel after he and Chamberlain had left Moore a few minutes previously.

Representative C. T. Sheats, of Franklin introduced a resolution asking a full investigation of activities of Chamberlain, executive chairman of the Texas Optometry association, for which he has lobbied at Austin for several years, stating that he understood that Chamberlain has remarked that he "can tell of other things also," and would do so if asked.

"Should Be Commended."

The resolution was referred to the committee on public affairs after Representative Alfred Petsch had objected that "Chamberlain should be commended for sacrificing himself for the public interest."

Speaker R. L. Bobbitt instructed the sergeant-at-arms to inform Dale and Moore of their expulsion and their seats were declared vacant.

Governor Dan Moody was notified of the action by telephone.

Dale was sitting in the house gallery when the vote on him was taken.

Where Moore was at the time was not learned.

Dr. Branch Turns Hospital Over To Nationalists—British Troops May Go To Hongkong.

BY JOHN POWELL.

(Copyright, 1927, for The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

Shanghai, February 8.—Approximately 600 American missionaries are taking refuge in Shanghai at the present time, latest arrivals being 40 today on the British steamer, Tuckwo, from Hankow, most of them being from stations in Hunan province where the redicalism and anti-Christian agitation has made work impossible.

Among the arrivals today were Dr. J. R. Branch, superintendent of Yale hospital at Changsha, whose home is at Macon, Ga., and G. T. Blydenburgh, of the Methodist hospital at Nanchang, Kiangsi province, whose home is in New York.

According to Dr. Branch, the strike of nurses and hospital employees made hospital operation impossible since their wage demands exceeded the budget. He finally decided to turn over the institution to the nationalist government and the Americans evacuated, leaving only two Americans in the college, D. H. Levens, of Norwich, Conn., and W. J. Dail, address unknown.

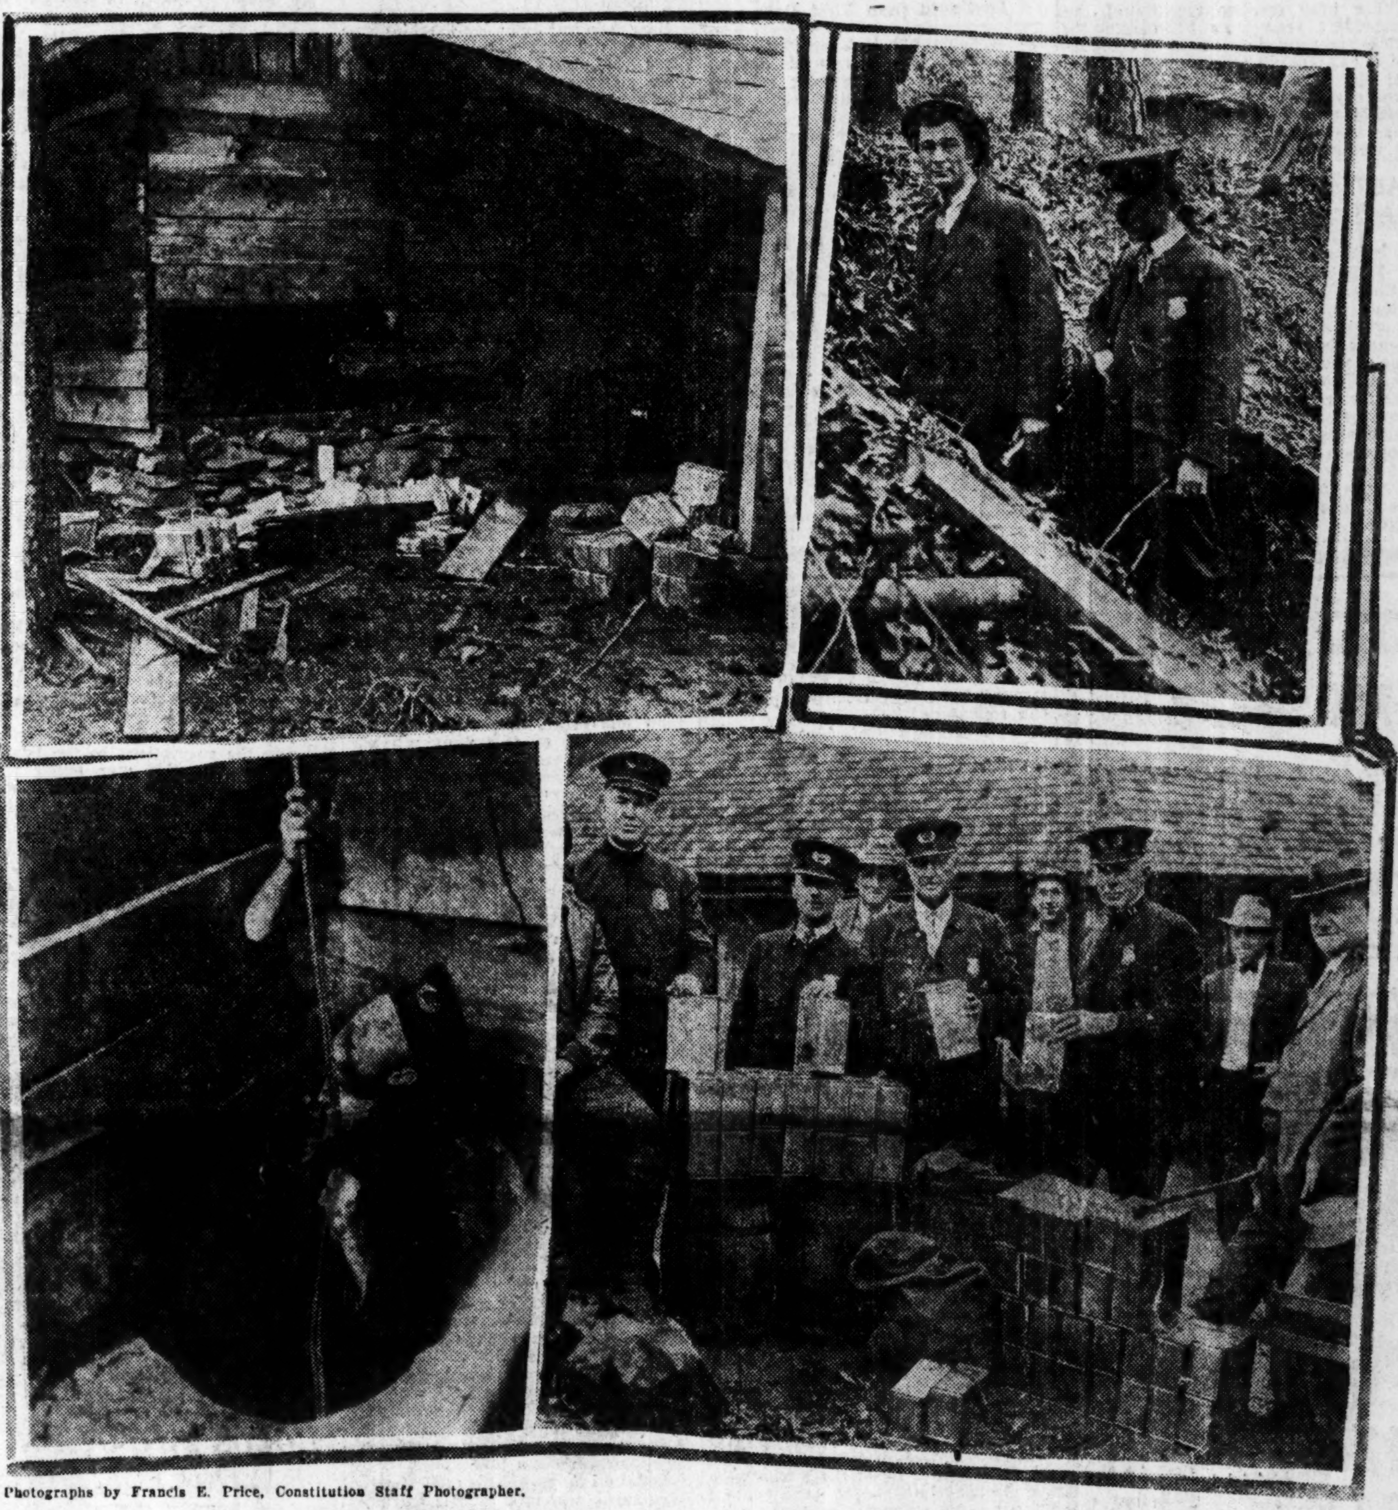
Dry Raiders Capture Huge Still in Hillside Tunnel Near City Line and Take Much Liquor



Photographs by Francis E. Price, Constitution Staff Photographer.

A tunnel, approximately 10 feet in depth is located in the corner of the barn from which operators could drop down and into the tunnel, thence into a cavern where the still was located. At the lower left is seen the entrance to the tunnel with County Policeman Calvin Cates entering.

Swooping down on a suspected barn near the Marietta street car underpass on Chattahoochee avenue Tuesday afternoon, county police raiders seized what is perhaps the most ingenious liquor distillery brought to light in the south since prohibition, and discovered a network of subterranean tunnels forming what is believed to be the chief bootlegging distributing station for this part of Georgia.

Included in the seizure was a huge 500-gallon capacity still, 100 gallons of corn liquor and 32 barrels of beer, each with a capacity of 50 gallons

The raid was one of the most spectacular ever negotiated in Fulton county and brought results which amazed the officers participating. Receiving a tip that a still was operating in the vicinity, the raiders closed in on the barn, after throwing a cordon around the house, situated on the front of the lot.

100-Foot Tunnel.

Upon entering the barn, officers saw nothing suspicious. Making a minute inspection, however, a 10-foot hole in the floor was revealed and members of the party descended. Here they were surprised to find a passageway leading to a wide, roomy tunnel which penetrated to a depth of 100 feet and terminated in one of the most complete distilling plants ever seen in this part of the country.

Complete signalling facilities, embracing carefully strung wires connecting the still room with the house facing on Chattahoochee avenue, were

DROUTH RELIEF MEASURE PASSED

Bill Approved By Senate Provides Farmer-Loans in Georgia, South Carolina and Alabama.

Washington, February 8.—(Special.)—An appropriation of $2,500,000 for loans to farmers in drought-stricken areas of Georgia, South Carolina and western Alabama was approved by the senate today in passing the Norbeck bill providing $8,600,000 for loans in the northwest and south.

Loans will be advanced for purchase of seed, feed and fertilizer to those whose need is considered acute by the agriculture department, which will administer the act. No loan, however, may exceed $300 to any one person.

The house passed a similar measure carrying a blanket appropriation of $6,000,000, which the senate increased. The two measures now will go to conference for adjustment of differences, after which the final form will be sent to the president for his signature.

Senator George, of Georgia, was instrumental in securing a specified appropriation for drought-stricken areas in Georgia, South Carolina and western Alabama. Originally, the measure carried no specification, and George left that the states' need would not be met unless the measure carried a specified sum. The measure as it stood originally provided $1,500,000 for fertilizer, and George had this amount raised by $1,000,000 and made applicable for purchase of seed, feed and fertilizer in Georgia, South Carolina and western Alabama.

NEW YORK MAN INSURES SON FOR $1,000,000

New York, February 8.—(United News.)—The largest insurance policy ever written on any youth has been taken out by Frank E. Campbell, mortician, for his 14-year-old son, Frank E. Campbell, Jr. The policy is for $1,000,000 and exceeds by $450,000 the policy on Jackie Coogan.

ICY WAVE HEADS FOR SOUTHLAND

Freezing Weather Due To Hit State Over Week-End May Cause Much Damage.

With a cold wave gripping the northwestern states from Colorado to Canada and snow storms headed for the lower middle western states, Georgia faces a period of chilly weather which probably will reach the freezing point, according to C. F. von Herrmann, meteorologist, of the Atlanta weather bureau.

As predictions of colder weather were made at the local bureau, information concerning the condition of Georgia fruit trees obtained at the state department of agriculture tended to minimize any serious danger from impending frost this weekend. It was stated at the department that peach trees will not be seriously injured unless they have advanced beyond the full bloom period because of recent warm weather and there are no reports from south Georgia orchards that such conditions prevail.

Department of agriculture officials stated that the severe freezing spell which preceded the unusual period of warm weather enjoyed the last two weeks was of such severity as to prevent premature blossoming of peach trees as well as other trees. Apple trees are in no danger and these are the two chief fruit crops of Georgia. Agricultural crops of a major nature have not been planted, hence no damage can come to these crops from cold weather.

Frost will spread over northern and central Georgia and may extend to

Just Suppose

Just suppose the merchants of Atlanta would all stop advertising; you'd be absolutely lost, wouldn't you? And just suppose the people of Atlanta would all stop reading advertisements; the merchants would be in a predicament. It's a sort of 50-50 proposition; they advertise and you read the advertisements; you both profit mutually by the arrangement.

They advertise in The Constitution every day, so you should read the advertisements in The Constitution every day.

This is to your advantage. If a merchant advertises a bargain in today's Constitution he has done his part; if you fail to read it you have fallen down in doing your part—and you miss the opportunity offered by the bargain.

STATE'S RECEIPTS SET NEW RECORD

Breaking all previous records, the Georgia state treasury handled receipts of $26,368,058.93 in 1926, the state auditor's report of the treasury's accounts for last year revealed Friday. The audit was filed with the governor by State Auditor Sam J. Slate.

Receipts were made up of $14,736,919.59 from general sources and $11,631,139.34 from special sources, including $3,169,395 from discounting W. & A. railroad rentals for eight years to pay Confederate pensions.

Chief sources of general revenue included $6,622,560 from general taxes, including professions; $1,665,928 from franchise and occupational taxes; $1,553,418 from the fuel oil tax; $1,184,766 from oil inspection and other fees; $868,376 from cigar and cigarette taxes and a balance of $1,989,710 carried over from 1925.

From the general fund chief disbursements were $5,367,083 to the common schools; $377,125 to the department of agriculture; $183,821, department of health; $2,035,465, the Confederate pension; $127,970, public buildings and grounds; $143,734, prison commission; $571,468, the treasury for interest on sinking funds and etc.; $130,261, general assembly; $204,984, maintenance of superior courts; $1,120,000, state sanitarium; $1,460,906, university system, and a balance carried over of $2,134,142.78.

Special Source Revenue.

Chief receipts from special sources included $3,169,395 from discounting of W. & A. for eight years; $1,556,418, fuel oil tax for county; $2,335,988, for fuel oil tax for highway department; $3,378,979, motor vehicle licenses, and $495,000, rentals W. & A. railway property.

From special funds the chief disbursements were: $5,729,837, state highway department; $2,894,254, pensioners; $1,559,917, county for road works; $540,000, to pay discounted warrants on the W. & A. rentals, and $377,372, tuberculosis sanatorium at Alto.

Disturbance of banking conditions in Georgia last year did not affect state deposits in any manner, the state auditor said in his report of an examination made by the 1926 accounts of the state treasury. The state last year had on deposit $2,391,988.21 in some 100 banks of the state, the report showed.

"In justice to Treasurer Speer the fact should be recorded," the report said, "that with all the unrest and disturbance of banking conditions through 1926, the treasury has had bonds to secure all deposits and the state has been protected in every instance."

Treasurer Commended.

In his report, the state auditor also commended the treasury department for the accuracy in which it kept its books and urged that the clerical staff of the department be increased. "Our distribution of school money, and our highway funds are imposing a heavier burden and strain each year upon the treasury," Mr. Slate said. "Provision should be made for more help and in the adjustment of salaries should be adjusted; compensation in many cases should be increased as the scale of salaries is based upon the year 1916 and not upon present conditions.

Regarding a reform of the fiscal system of the state, the auditor reiterated a previous recommendation to the governor that all funds go into one general fund of the state treasury and that each department of the state government be supported by appropriation. Until this is done, he said, a treasury statement will always confuse the public with "general funds" and "special funds."

The total revenue receipts of the state last year were $12,747,209.09, while the total disbursements amounted to $12,602,776.81, the audit showed. At the beginning of 1927 the state treasury had a balance of $2,134,142.78 as against $1,989,710.50, which was the balance on January 1, 1926, it was stated.

ACTION BY GOVERNOR HALTS EXECUTION PLANS

Milledgeville, Ga., February 8.—(Special.)—Plans to execute Marshall Reid, world war veteran, here tomorrow for the murder of a Walker county deputy sheriff, were halted tonight with the receipt of information that Governor Walker has granted a 60-day respite to the prisoner. He has been removed from the death cell. Attorneys for Reid presented to the governor the claim that the wording of the act of 1924 governing electrocutions in the state renders illegal such form of executions at the state farm.

Pair of Alleged Burglars Caught By Lone Officer

Detective L. H. Satterfield captured single-handed, two alleged burglars early Tuesday night as they were engaged in rifling the home of E. E. Warner, 1594 Greensferry avenue, according to police reports. C. A. Hanner, 21, and his brother, C. H. Hanner, 18, both of 195 Ivy street, are in jail charged with suspicion, as the result of Detective Satterfield's activities.

Officer Satterfield, who lives in the vicinity of the Warner home, was working about his home when he was summoned by a neighbor to go to the Warner home. Upon his arrival the officer captured one of the boys as he attempted to escape through the front door. The youth was searched and turned over to a pedestrian to hold, while a search was made through the house.

Harris submitted last session a list of names of attorneys in the district whom they would consider suitable for the judgeship, and this list still stands, it was explained.

List Proposed by Harris.

Among those considered for the appointment are Judge J. Render Terrell, of Greenville, Ga., and Bascom Deaver, of Macon, now district attorney for the new middle district. Deaver was considered by President Coolidge last year.

"I regret very much that it was necessary to oppose Mr. Tilson," Senator Harris said today after withdrawal, "but I would not now or at any time in the future support the nomination of a man who does not reside in the district to which he is appointed.

"Mr. Tilson's nomination was secured by Representative John Q. Tilson, of Connecticut, house republican floor leader, backed by the indorsement of Ben Davis, negro republican national committeeman from Georgia, and it was opposed by a large majority of citizens of the middle Georgia district.

"I have always had a very cordial regard for John Q. Tilson but if during the Wilson administration we had sought to secure the appointment of a man in Connecticut who did not reside in the district to which he was appointed, he would have opposed it and rightly so."

Tilson's Statement.

Representative Tilson, in commenting today, explained that his brother's name was presented "by the unanimous recommendation of the republican organization of Georgia, where he had practiced law for 30 years, and he was indorsed by a very large number of democrats who, assuming that a republican would be named for the place, believed him to be the best man available."

He said he had "scrupulously refrained" from taking any part whatever in trying to bring about his appointment.

"After he was nominated I was, of course, deeply concerned in regard to his confirmation and naturally I feel very sorry that Senator Harris should feel it to be his duty to go so far as to say that my brother is personally obnoxious to him, for it is difficult for any one who knows my brother well to think of him as personally objectionable to any one.

"I regret the senator's unfriendly attitude toward my brother all the more because of the very friendly and cordial relations that have always existed between the senator and myself in a personal, social, as well as official way."

"I regret even more because of the real warm personal regard and admiration I have always entertained for his brother, General Harris, ever since I came into such close contact with him during the world war when he so ably, so efficiently and so satisfactorily filled the great office of adjutant general of the army. Few of those who were not brought into almost daily contact with him as we members of the military committee were, will ever realize the magnitude of the task so well done by General Harris.

Sentiment Plays Part.

"There is a bit of sentiment connected with another whose memory is dear to the senator's family. In the midst of the civil war, before either the senator, my brother or myself were born, when the union army moved up the East Tennessee valley and the small Confederate force holding the valley fell back into Georgia and North Carolina. General Joe Wheeler, in command of a brigade of cavalry, was protecting the movement. In the mountain valley through which his brigade passed near the North Carolina line was the home where my brother and I were later born. Our father was away in the army, but such hospitality as was possible in time of war our mother extended by entertaining at the noonday meal General Wheeler and the officers of his staff. It was one of the treasured memories of those awful days of war that my brother and I often heard recalled at our mother's knee, how in our modest mountain home she had once entertained brave Joe Wheeler and his staff."

south Georgia according to the prediction of the weather bureau.

Considerable damage to early flowers, shrubs of various kinds and light truck crops may be expected, weather bureau officials pointed out.

Dispatches from northwestern states are to the effect that real Medicine Hat weather is prevailing in Rocky mountain states with the temperature dropping as low as 30 degrees below zero in some sections.

Rain falling at intermittent periods and a falling thermometer will bring the unusual period of balmy summer weather in the south to a close, according to the prediction of the weather bureau.

Rain and Colder Today.

Today will witness continued cloudy skies and occasional rains, Mr. von Herrmann said. "Thermometer registrations Tuesday started at 55 degrees and declined to 53 degrees during the day. The descending mercury is likely to continue on its downward trend, starting from 50 degrees Wednesday morning and getting as low as 40 by Thursday morning. Rains during the past 24 hours measured .22 inch.

"A good frost will reach Atlanta and vicinity by Friday and last for three or four days before there is a return to warmer weather. While the mercury will not reach a level low enough to call the oncoming temperature drop a severe cold wave, it is expected to get down to the 32-degree mark, which will result in danger to plants in bloom," the forecaster said.

"It is too far off to tell definitely whether or not the frost will penetrate south Georgia."

as at Hunan, but the factional fighting is making hospital operation next to impossible. He said the Cantonese troops controlling the province are rebellious owing to the payment to them of worthless paper money, hence there are frequent lootings and burnings of Chinese business houses.

The care of the missionary refugees constitutes a serious problem in the Shanghai American community where the homes are filled to overflowing. The Rev. Edwin Carlyle Lobenstine, of Leavenworth, Kans., Presbyterian secretary of the National Christian council, informed the Tribune Press Service today that he did not think the present crisis would adversely affect American mission work in China in the long run but was bound to cause revolutionary changes in the methods of Christian missionary endeavor, leading in the direction of the creation of an autonomous Chinese Christian church, with American missionaries as advisers instead of as leaders, as at the present time. Mr. Lobenstine said there were approximately 8,000 foreign Protestant missionaries located in China, of all nationalities, more than half of them being American.

BRITAIN MAY SEND TROOPS TO HONG KONG.

London, February 8. — (United News)—British armed forces now speeding to Chinese waters may be diverted to Hongkong while the cabinet awaits probable reopening of the Hankow negotiations, Premier Baldwin told the house of commons Tuesday.

"Unless British representatives in China consider the emergency requires immediate disembarkation of the forces now en route," said the premier, "the leading brigade (apparently meaning the troops furthest advanced on the journey to Shanghai) will be held in readiness at Hongkong while the rest of the force is approaching."

Baldwin explained that the leading brigade would await developments while other naval units were carrying the remaining thousands of men in the British troop movement to Hongkong. His speech, which was preceded by one from King George in which the British monarch called for a peaceful solution of the Chinese tangle, reiterated the claim that British troop movements are designed solely for protection of this country's nationals in China. He announced that the government would be ready to enter debate on the Chinese situation Thursday, when Foreign Minister Chamberlain would make a further statement.

King George's speech, made at the opening of parliament, dwelt at length on the Chinese crisis. He emphasized the fact that British forces now en route to China had been sent as a result of the outbreaks in Hankow and other Yangtze river cities.

DRASTIC CUT MADE IN SCHOOL BUDGET

board has left its budget open so that the new monies could be used to keep the schools open the entire year, without the proposed suspension period of one month.

Salaries of every employee of the entire system will be slashed one-twelfth, if the plan to suspend school is carried out. It was pointed out that employees other than teachers will take the month of suspension during June, July and August, but that teachers take theirs between September 1 and January 1.

This distinction was adopted partially on account of the necessity of the city to fulfill a civil service contract with teachers for a year's instructional service and partially to emphasize the importance of a favorable vote by citizens on a proposed city charter amendment, which, it is said, will provide for additional school funds.

Follow Committee.

In making the budget cuts, the board followed as closely as possible recommendations of the citizens' advisory committee, W. D. Hoffman, chairman of the current expenditures committee, pointed out.

The fund of general control was cut from $77,599.24 in the "B" budget to $65,894.89 in the revised budget; the instructional service from $2,639,315.42 to $2,362,424.72; the operation of plant from $209,098.15 to $188,000; maintenance of plant from $166,182 to $136,550; fixed charges unchanged totaling $19,655; debt service unchanged $10,000; capital outlay from $6,000 to $3,500; auxiliary agencies from $10,866.65 to $9,181.65. This made up the total of $2,795,196.26 anticipated from all sources.

Oppose Reduction.

Several members of the board, including Roy D. Warren, of the tenth; W. C. Slate, of the second; Mrs. Julia O'Keefe Nelson, of the sixth, and J. W. Maddox, of the fifth, objected strenuously to any cut in teachers' salaries, but when it was shown by members of the current expenditures committee that this was done in preference to preventing the automatic increase in salaries to go into effect, all except Slate and Maddox receded. These two were the only ones to vote against the motion of Commissioner George Powell to accept the budget with provisos which abolished the negro night schools, deferred fixing the date for suspension of schools next fall and provided for crediting to pay roll accounts monies which might be received until the amount needed to operate the schools is placed to the credit of that account.

Commissioner Warren attempted to have the first such monies which might be placed to the credit of this account used to pay salaries of those who receive a maximum of $150 monthly, but was voted down, other members contending that all employees of the system should fare alike.

Mr. Maddox launched the fight on the negro night schools. He declared that there are eight being operated and that there are only two night schools for white persons, and stated that in his opinion there should be some cut. He pointed out that a fund of $60,000 is contained in the finance sheet for operation of the night schools, and that a large part of this could be diverted towards meeting teachers' salaries.

Heated Debate.

Mr. Maddox gathered to his support a majority of the members of the board and a compromise was made whereby only six of the eight negro schools were eliminated. His attack, backed by others from Mr. Slate and Mr. Warren, precipitated a heated debate in which Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of schools, and Commissioners Hoffman and W. W. Gaines took the floor in defense of the negro schools.

Mr. Sutton spoke with feeling and declared that illiteracy of negroes in Georgia is costing the whites thousands of dollars annually and imperiling health.

Mr. Slate attempted to tear up the revised budget and get a month's payroll for employees of the system out of it by cutting to the bone all other items, but failed by a vote of eight to four. Maddox, Morris, Nelson and Slate voted for the Slate proposal, others casting ballots against it.

Submitted Today.

The revised budget will be sent to members of the advisory committee today for approval, and teachers and other employees' checks will be distributed just as soon as it has been approved. B. Graham West, city comptroller, has stated he will make payments just as soon as checks are issued on a balanced budget.

Consolidation of classes will effect a saving of about $28,000, and teachers who have not been retained under civil service contracts will be dropped from the instructional staff. The consolidations will be worked out by the administrative department of the school system, and announced later, but no inkling as to the number of teachers who would thus be thrown out of employment was given Tuesday. In the consolidations, primary students can be drawn from an area of three-fourths of a mile surrounding a school, while elementary students can be sent as great a distance as a mile.

In offering the revised budget, Mr. Hoffman and Mr. Sutton both stressed the fact that they were not recommending the slashes, because they meant a seriously handicapped educational program for the remainder of the year. They declared they were bringing the suggestions to the board as the best possible way under the circumstances. Both men reiterated several times their regret at being forced to make such presentations to the board.

PROTEST PROPOSAL TO CONSOLIDATE TWO HIGH SCHOOLS

Mrs. J. C. Mellichamp, president of the Tech High Parent-Teacher association, and John Hancock, president of the Boys' High school P.-T. A., Tuesday entered formal protests against consolidation of the two schools at a meeting of the board of education.

Mrs. Mellichamp outlined the history of the Tech institution and declared that technical training is essential to full development of the state's resources. She declared that consolidation, while being beneficial to Boys' High, would be nothing short of disastrous to Tech High.

Mr. Hancock declared that Boys' High does not want any benefits which might come at the expense of Tech High, and asked that the two schools be retained independently.

CHARGE TEACHER HOLDS TWO OTHER PAYING POSITIONS

H. W. Cheney, instructor of wood lathe work at Tech High school, will face an investigation committee of the board of education on charges that he is holding three jobs at the same time, one of these being a position as teacher in the public school system.

The investigation was precipitated when a letter from Alderman Charles M. Ford, of the tenth ward, setting out the complaint, was read to the board. It was addressed to Dr. R. M. Eubanks, president.

Dr. Eubanks appointed George Powell, Roy D. Warren and J. W. Maddox, members of the board, and Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of schools, to conduct the investigation and report to the board.

The letter set out that Mr. Ford had been informed that Mr. Cheney, in addition to his school position, is holdin a post with a local sandwich company for which he receives a salary of $125 monthly and another with a local drug store for which he is paid $50 monthly.

It was further charged that Mr. Cheney solicited orders for the sandwiches during school hours.

POSSIBLE LEGAL FIGHT ON SCHOOL TAX MONEY SEEN

A possible court fight between the city and Fulton county over monies collected under the special clause authorizing levying of a county school tax, flared and subsided Tuesday in the February meeting of the board of education, when Mrs. Julia O'Keefe Nelson, chairman of a special committee which sought some of the fund for city schools, reported that she had been unable to reach any agreement whereby Atlanta schools might receive any of the fund.

"Atlantans pay $227,000 of the $250,000 annual tax collected by this tax, and yet under the law, according to legal authorities, we have no claim on one cent of the fund," Mrs. Nelson said.

W. D. Hoffman, chairman of the current expenditures committee of the board, suggested that the board ask the city attorney to take legal steps at once to prevent administration of the money until the city "has been given its just proportion." He was supported in this contention by M. D. Therrell and J. W. Maddox.

Willis A. Sutton stated that he thought some means whereby the city schools could get some of the money could be worked out without having to resort to the courts. It is expected that Mr. Sutton and members of the board will attempt to negotiate with members of the Fulton county commissioners in an effort to obtain a division of the tax money.

People of the state in the last general election passed the bill authorizing Fulton county to make the levy.

MOVE TO ABOLISH BOARD OF LADY VISITORS FAILS

The rules committee of the Atlanta board of education Tuesday adversed a paper designed to abolish the board of lady visitors, a body of prominent women, who attend sessions of the board, and that body voted to accept the recommendation of the rules organization. Mrs. Julia O'Keefe Nelson, chairman, submitted the report.

Mrs. W. P. Jackson was elected to fill the position of member of the visiting board from the fifth ward; Mrs. George Price, from the ninth, and Mrs. C. R. Haynes, of the tenth. Other members will be nominated at the next meeting of the board. Respective members of the board nominate the visitors from their wards.

BUILDING DELAY FOR NEW SCHOOL CHARGED TO SPITE

Charging that construction of the new Stewart Avenue school was held up through personal animosity of some official or groups of officials, Roy D. Warren, member of the board of education from the tenth ward, Tuesday demanded an investigation to fix the blame, and secured the appointment of a probing committee. Dr. R. M. Eubanks, president of the board, named George W. Powell, Mr. Warren and Mrs. Paul West as members of the probing board.

Alderman Charles M. Ford, of the tenth, the ward in which the school is to be constructed, presented a mass of papers designed to absolve the Atlanta bond commission from responsibility in abandoning the project last fall. The papers were reproductions of minutes of proceedings of bond commission meetings. After a lengthy argument, it was decided that the special committee would go into the matter and make a report to the board.

Several insinuations that the new school was dropped on account of a feud between two leading Atlanta achitects were made, but no definite charges were made. These will come out at meetings of the investigation committee. Mr. Powell and Dr. Fred Morris joined in the demand that steps be taken to fix the blame for suspension of work on the building.

Mr. Warren stated that brick were moved to the school site two days before the election last September, but that no further effort to complete the building was made, and that the material finally was removed.

THEFT OF BAGGAGE LAID TO PRISONER

Karl Seaburg, 59, was brought to Atlanta Tuesday from Birmingham, Ala., by Detectives Simmons and Whitley, for trial on charges of stealing a valise belonging to F. H. Boddy, of Los Angeles, Calif., from the Union station several weeks ago.

Seaburg, according to detectives, talked freely of having stolen the valise and when questioned concerning his activities of the past readily admitted that he has been stealing baggage for the past 35 years from various railroad stations.

He said he came to America 40 years ago and began to steal baggage. Through his years of experience he said he has learned that transcontinental travelers carried the most valuable cases.

PROPOSES SCHOOL BOARD MEETINGS TWICE MONTHLY

Declaring that members of the Atlanta school board are just as patriotic as members of city council and that the work of the education body is growing too heavy for monthly meetings, Commissioner J. W. Maddox, of the fifth ward, Tuesday initiated a move designed to hold semi-monthly meeting of the board.

His motion was referred to the rules committee which is headed by Mrs. Julia O'Keefe Nelson. Another move to hold all meetings of the board in the city council chamber also was referred to the committee for a report.

PROHI RAIDERS CAPTURE HUGE STILL

discovered, as well as a skillfully concealed exit on a side of a hill nearby, through which operators could easily escape upon signal from the "lookout" stationed in the house.

Only one arrest was made, that of Mrs. D. R. Allen, who was found in the house when raiders entered. If operators were in the still room when the officers arrived they had made their escape through the exit, members of the party declared.

Held For Bond.

Mrs. Allen was detained in lieu of $1,000 bond under a charge of violation of the prohibition law.

All efforts to remove the huge still from its underground chamber proved unavailing Tuesday night and the work was postponed until morning. Meanwhile, officers found a pipe leading to a wash pot near the house, under which a fire was kept burning as a camouflage for the still. It was believed by the officers that a hidden cache of liquor may be unearthed today.

Several hours after the capture of the Chattahoochee avenue still, City Policeman J. R. Hood, aided by a motorist whose automobile he commandeered, captured an automobile loaded with imported liquors valued at approximately $2,160. Two occupants of the machine were arrested. They gave their names as J. A. Hicks, 28, of New Smyrna, Fla., and Charles Hutchison, 19, of Belle City, Mo.

Easily Caught.

Officer Hood first noticed the car as it traveled rapidly on Lee street near White street. After failing in an attempt to stop the machine, the officer jumped aboard a private car which was being parked nearby and ordered the driver to give chase. Due to the heavy cargo of liquor in the fleeing men's machine, the pursuers overtook them after a short chase and compelled the driver to turn to the curbing, where Officer Hood held the pair at the point of a gun.

In the machine were 270 quarts of brandy. Hicks was charged with violation of liquor laws, carrying concealed weapons and disorderly conduct, while Hutchinson was charged with possession and disorderly conduct.

M'NARY-HAUGEN BILL INODRSED BY FARMERS

Gadsden, Ala., February 8.—(Special.)—C. C. Miller has been elected president of the Etowah county farm bureau, J. A. Rodgers, vice president and J. H. Morgan, secretary and treasurer. A resolution was adopted indorsing the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill now before the senate.

SUCCESS IS SEEN FOR FARM RELIE

Washington, February 8.—(Unit News.)—Farm relief legislation is most here after several years of dela The house probably will take up t McNary-Haugen bill tomorrow wi prospects of a vote by Saturday nig or Monday. The senate agreed toda to begin voting on the bill Friday afte noon.

Predictions are that both houses wi pass it. President Coolidge's attitu is uncertain.

Meanwhile the senate today enacte a minor farm relief bill, in appropria ing $8,600,000 to provide seed f stricken farmers in drouth sections.

The time for a senate vote on th McNary-Haugen bill was reached b unanimous consent after days of effor McNary finally appeased all opponent sufficiently to obtain unanimous agre ment for a vote on Friday.

"Oh, come on," said Moses, Ne Hampshire republican, another ou spoken opponent. "No amount time will serve to state the objection to this bill, its defects and the disaster it will bring to the farmers an its authors."

"I don't know," King said. "Sometimes I think the less legislation w pass the better off the country wi be. But I won't object," he said after a doubtful pause. That insure the long-delayed vote.

Senator Fess, Ohio republican, renewed his attack on the bill, expressing the opinion that Coolidge wi veto it. Proponents of the bill wi be heard from as the time for th vote draws nearer.

Frank O. Lowden, of Illinois, regarded as a potential candidat against Coolidge, wired his indorsement of the McNary bill today.

"In my opinion," he said, "the Curtis-Crisp bill by its omission of th equalization fee, wholly misses th point of legislation we have been advocating. It is therefore no adequat substitute for the McNary bill. Without the equalization fee the larg scale cooperatives of staple farm products are, I fear, in great danger I therefore favor the McNary bill."

Lowden has repeatedly indorsed th bill and his telegram is designed t rally forces for the final drive.

Farm prices are now 12 per cen below what they were a year ago, th department of agriculture reported Some slight upturns have been noticed in certain markets during th last few days, presumably due to th prospect of farm relief legislation said senators backing the McNary Haugen bill. The department of agriculture figures covered January only There was little change from those o December.

Pinchot Indorses Bill.

An indorsement of the McNary Haugen bill came from Gifford Pinchot, who has moved here since hi retirement last month as governor o Pennsylvania.

"No one can deny that agricultur needs protection as much as industry," Pinchot said in a statement "The McNary-Haugen bill of last yea was killed by a letter from Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury There is every reason to believe h will try to kill it this year.

"In the hands of honest and intelligent men there is every reason to expect that the McNary-Haugen bil will work. It is worth a trial. I am for it because I believe it will help the farmers."

FOUR PERSONS DIE OF ASPHYXIATION

Los Angeles, February 8.—(AP)—Four persons whose bodies were found in lifelike positions in the small cottage of Joseph Lee Winters, died of asphyxiation, police decided today. The dead are Winters and three guests, Ralph Sperry, Mary Kistler and Ruby Vallon, local residents.

Police broke into the house today after notification from neighbors that they feared something was wrong, as Winters had not appeared in his yard since Sunday.

A small gas range, believed to have been the source of the death-dealing fumes, still was burning. The condition of the corpses indicated asphyxiation, officers said.

Mrs. Gentle's husband was presented to President Coolidge and to congress several months ago as a champion father.

GRIFFIN SHOWS POULATION GAIN OF 36 PER CENT

Griffin, Ga., February 8.—(Special.)—The population of Griffin at the beginning of the new year 1927 was 14,874, according to a survey made by officials of the Southern Bell Telephone company, it was announced today. "The cash that I am to receive is not as much as reported," said Mr. Craig, "but there is no limit on the possibilities of the financial returns through its development."

Rheumatism can't be rubbed away

Are you one of those unfortunates who suffer with pains in your muscles and joints, making you miserable, less efficient, interfering with your working hours, ruining your sleep?

You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S.S.S.? For more than 100 years it has been giving relief in thousands of cases, as testified to in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

"I suffered from rheumatism for a good many years. At times my joints would swell so I couldn't walk. I tried most everything. Went to Hot Springs and finally I decided to try S.S.S. I took a course. In a short time the rheumatic pains entirely left me. I also had a breaking out on my hands for years that nothing would heal, but now this has disappeared, and I am sure that it was S.S.S. which removed the cause. I am now in perfect health, and want to add that I have tried all kinds of medicines but I think S.S.S. is the best." Carl C. Campbell, 115 West Main St., Johnson City, Tenn.

S.S.S. is purely vegetable. It is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

The photograph above shows a section of the leading group of Boy Scouts in the mammoth parade Tuesday at noon in which thousands of Atlantans, representing practically every organization in the city, participated. The parade was through the downtown section of the city and officially marked the opening of the drive for $75,000 to complete the Bert Adams Boy Scout reservation.

close the campaign with the full amount of $75,000 subscribed.

Division "A," headed by F. M. Spratlin, jumped into the lead in divisional standing Tuesday, announcing $6,215 secured during the day from 88 subscribers. Dana C. Belser's division, which led Monday, was closely pressed for second place in the amount of money raised by Hal Hentz's division. Belser, heading Division "B," reported $2,300 subscribed by 73 persons, and Hentz, heading division "C," reported $2,250 subscribed by 47 persons.

Parade Boosts Drive.

Impetus was given the campaign Tuesday by the mammoth scout appreciation parade, in which more than 70 civic organizations entered automobiles carrying banners expressing appreciation of the assistance given them by the Boy Scouts. The civic division was headed by the Atlanta Police band and Chief of Police James L. Beavers. The 1,600 Atlanta Boy Scouts formed the second and third divisions of the parade, the Tech High School band leading the first divisison, composed of suburban troops, and the Boys' High School band leading the third division, composed of Atlanta Boy Scout troops.

Additional outside support for the campaign was enlisted by appearance of Boy Scout delegations at four civic club lunchenos immediately after the parade.

A detail of Scouts, picked at random from the perspiring ranks as the parade disbanded, made a round of luncheon clubs to demonstrate the principles of scouting to those in attendance. The first principle was demonstrated in the manner of selection of the detail, as not one of the boys knew until 10 minutes before the first engagement—the Lions' club at 12:40—that he was to carry the Scout message before his elders.

Ivan Allen, Jr., 15 years old, a star scout with 13 merit badges and senior patrol leader of troop 20, Atlanta, headed the patrol which included Jermaine Shaw, 13, John St. John, 13, Bernard Moon, 13, and Fred Holloway, 12.

Boys Explain Object.

The youngsters explained the purpose of the $75,000 campaign is to complete the Scout camp, for which land was purchased and a dam and lake built last year by the late Albert S. Adams and a few associates interested in scout work. The fund is to complete the equipment of the camp and make it available for the use of all the 1,600 Scouts in Atlanta now, and all others who may join, regardless of whether their parents are able to send them to private camps for health and character building.

The civic club demonstrations were concluded with a recital of the Scout oath and law.

Team Standings.

Team No. 1 in division "A," led by J. P. Allen as captain, took rank as the leading team for Tuesday's report and for the campaign, Mr. Allen reporting $1,805 raised from 21 subscribers, supplanting Jesse Draper's team in division "B" for leadership.

Team No. 3 in division "A," led by Frank E. Coffee, moved up to second place with $1,100 for the day and $1,680 for the campaign.

The other teams in division "A," headed by F. M. Spartlin, ranked as follows: Evelyn Harris, No. 5, $1,385; Rodney Morrison, No. 6, $1,340; Milton W. Bell, No. 2, $1,260; W. R. Hastings, No. 7, $1,150; Bayne Gibson, No. 4, $1,035.

Teams in division "B," headed by Dana C. Belser, ranked as follows: E. M. Chapman, No. 8, $1,300; Jesse Draper, No. 13, $1,285; R. W. Evans, No. 12, $1,130; S. P. Cronheim, No. 10, $1,065; C. E. DuPree, No. 11, $1,040; E. M. Chapman, No. 8, $992.50; Ward Wight, No. 14, $875.

Teams in division "C," headed by Hal F. Hentz, ranked as follows: P. H. Stevens, No. 16, $1,180; C. L. Emerson, No. 18, $1,035; J. C. Savage, No. 19, $1,018; Earle Greene, No. 17, $897.50; George E. Watts, No. 21, $886; E. M. Ramspeck, No. 15, $795.

A seventh team was added to division "C" at the luncheon Tuesday with Harry O. Mitchell, president of the Scoutmasters' club, as captain and was started off with $625 as the result of Mr. Mitchell's individual efforts. A call was sent out Tuesday afternoon to Atlanta's 72 active scoutmasters to volunteer for places on Mr. Mitchell's team during the remainder of the campaign.

BULLET VICTIM SEEKS RELEASE OF MAN HELD

E. G. Rodgers, 36, of 684 East avenue, who, according to detectives, admitted holding the gun that injured Ralph Henslee, filling station operator in a station at south Forsyth and Whitehall streets Sunday night, was released from police station Tuesday under a $1,000 bond, charged with assault and intent to kill, according police reports.

Rodgers' release was obtained on application of Attorney Len B. Guillebeau, following a conference with Detective Lieutenant W. H. Andrews. Attorney Guillebeau stated that he had been in conference with Henslee at St. Joseph hospital and that the latter requested Lieutenant Andrews to release Rodgers without any charge, claiming that he, Henslee, was shot accidentally.

Henslee's condition was reported to be much improved and unless complications set up, his early recovery is expected.

The Modern Pied Piper!

PLEASE REMEMBER:
This campaign is in no way directed against legitimate business houses and branch stores of national concerns, which, because of the nature of their merchandise, find it convenient or necessary to demonstrate from door to door. Such reliable stores are entitled to your patronage. It is with the fly-by-night, irresponsible peddler for out-of-town concerns that this series of articles has to deal.

You all remember the old story of the "Pied Piper of Hamlin," who with his magic pipe charmed away all the mice that had overrun the town.

Today we have a modern "Pied Piper." He doesn't play a pipe—he rings a bell, and he charms not mice but sheep, unthinking sheep who play at "follow the leader." These sheep are the foolish buyers who patronize door-to-door peddlers, the "Bell Ringers" who represent out-of-town houses.

These sheep are being led to the shearer. They're apt to lose their wool, represented by many a hard-earned dollar which they unwittingly turn over to canvassers.

Don't be a member of this flock. Don't be led astray by the "bell-wether" peddler. You'll find nothing at the end of the trail but disappointment, financial loss, vexation.

It would be difficult for you to imagine any sort of worthwhile merchandise, anything you need in your daily life that isn't to be found in your local stores. It also would be difficult to find any out-of-town house that could supply you with merchandise of a like quality at lower prices than your home-town merchants quote.

This is a fact, because, your local merchants face the keenest kind of competition among themselves. They do not overlook any bets in going after your business. They buy in large quantities in order to obtain the very lowest wholesale price. They mark their goods as closely as possible to insure a rapid and frequent turnover. No merchant is in business just to pass away the time. He's here to sell merchandise and to give service.

The "Bell Ringer" will give you a specious argument as to why you should buy his wares — they're better, cheaper, etc. You "save middlemen's costs by dealing direct with the manufacturer." This sort of selling propaganda is ridiculous, for it is a notorious fact that peddler distribution is the most expensive form of distribution known.

Pick up their trade journals and note the extravagant claims of outside houses concerning the huge profits made by salesmen. "Jones of Illinois made $72 in six hours," etc. Of course the profit made by Salesman Jones is tacked onto the price of the goods he sells. Then the manufacturer also must get his profit. Shipping costs are added to that.

The truth of the matter is that when all is said and done, you will pay ACTUALLY LESS in the end for the merchandise bought in your local stores than you would pay for similar articles purchased thru "Bell Ringers."

Take the element of quality. It is an undisputed fact that a lot of merchandise is made up expressly for peddling. It is sold to the consumer C. O. D. sight unseen. There is no chance of loss thru exchange or "make-goods." Your average "Bell Ringer" never thinks of making good. You take what you get and like it! So when you find you've bought a "pig in a poke" — merchandise of inferior quality, goods that are unsatisfactory, what are you going to do about it? Nothing!

Your local stores stand ready to redeem any article bought from their counters. If you are not satisfied, return it and get your money or its equivalent in other merchandise. You can't do this with outside houses.

Therefore, it is to your own best interests to buy what you need in your home town. Every dollar sent out of town to a foreign concern lessens the prosperity of this community by 100 cents. Viewed from an entirely selfish standpoint, you lose every time you patronize a peddler.

Plan Elaborate Reception To Madam Schumann-Heink

Elaborate plans for a reception to adame Ernestine Schumann-Heink, ıen she arrives in the city Satury, are being made, it was announced ıesday.

Madame Schumann-Heink sings here Wednesday next, under the ausces of the Atlanta Symphony asciation, and will reach the city on turday, in order that she may quiet- visit old friends and rest preıratory to her concert. It is also obable that she will attend the conrt on Sunday afternoon at Loew's and, by the symphony orchestra, whose benefit she is to sing.

Large delegations from the Amerin Legion, D. A. V. and Gold Star others' organizations will meet the stinguished singer at the station and group of airplanes will probably rcle overhead as her train rolls in.

Madame Schumann-Heink, 65 years d, is making her farewell concert tour of the country, on the fiftieth anniversary of her debut as a public singer, between appearances with the Metropolitan Opera company in New York. It is also the 25th anniversary of her first appearance in Atlanta.

The Symphony association, in bringing the outstanding contralto singer of three generations here at excessively low prices, is hoping to attract an audience which will fill the auditorium to fullest capacity and will, at the same time, help to wipe out a financial deficit which now threatens future existence of the orchestra.

Efforts are being made to induce Madame Schumann-Heink to sing at least one number to the accompaniment of the orchestra. This may not be possible, but, if the singer will consent, special rehearsals will be held in order to make this the most outstanding program number of the year.

Millions of dollars and years of paınt heart-breaking toil have been pended in efforts to rid Georgia of ılaria and tuberculosis. These two seases present serious menace to life d health.

Yet the ever-growing wave of accints takes a greater toll of life and ffering than do both these diseases t together; and because the acciınt peril is a natural part of a comex civilization, people are prone to ke it for granted and ignore it in a talistic sort of way.

You can't help taking your chance th accidents, but you can protect urself and your loved ones with fiıncial safeguards against want and ivation should you become a victim.

NO BLAME ASSIGNED FOR RAIL FATALITIES

While funeral services were being arranged for the three victims of railway crashes Sunday, officials of the roads involved Tuesday completed investigation of the accidents and issued statements concerning them.

The trestle near Demorest, through which the engine, baggage coach and one passenger car of a Tallulah Falls train crashed Monday evening, resulting in the death of E. S. Hogsed, news agent, of Cornelia, and an unidentified negro, was "practically new," J. F. Gray, receiver for the road, reported to the Georgia public service commission Tuesday. He said he was unable to account for the accident, as the trestle had been rebuilt recently.

Fourteen persons were injured in the accident, A. H. Pendleton, of Hayesville, N. C., suffering a fractured skull, while the engineer and fireman were scalded severely. No other serious injuries were reported.

Officials of the Atlanta & West Point railroad announced that an improperly set switch was responsible for the crash of a shifting string of box cars into an idle yard train Monday near the Glenwood avenue crossing, in which one person was killed and three injured.

Angus B. Shackleford, conductor, was instantly killed when caught between the tender and engine of his train as the other smashed into it; Arthur Bailey, negro fireman, suffered a badly crushed foot, and Will Butler, negro trainman, sustained painful injuries. Charles McDade, of 48 Spruce street, engineer of the train, received a wrenched shoulder as he jumped to safety.

Shackleford and McDade have been in the service of the Atlanta & West Point railroad many years, and were both known as careful employees, officials said.

The body of Shackleford will be taken at 6 o'clock this morning to Montgomery, Ala., for burial. Funeral services will be held at 1 o'clock from the chapel of T. F. Leake, funeral director. Rev. H. V. Carson will officiate.

RADIO-ING The Air Waves.

BY WILL H. SMITH.

"This is stashun Double U-Dee-Dee-Eee broadCASTing," is what greeted the ears of the Dial Twister Tuesday night at the conclusion of a well-played jazz selection. We would have been willing to swear it was coming to us from one of the National Broadcasting company stations outside of Atlanta.

We won't say, however, that it was "only the Bellhops," for the musical selections that came through were played with a skill and touch equal in every respect to some of the highly advertised and highly played outfits performing before the microphone in New York, Chicago and other metropolitan cities of the country. We want to take off our hat to the Atlanta Bellhops. They are not only showing a marked improvement in their style, but they are, we can assure you, getting their stuff over.

For once we stayed with WDBE for its entire program and thoroughly enjoyed hearing "Red" Dearing's voice broadCASTing (accent on the cast) to the world that the J. M. High company radio department was on the air. There certainly is less reason than ever for wandering away from Atlanta for good music.

Tuesday night we turned back to our Stromberg-Carlson treasure chest for our evening's sport. We had a reason for this. It may not mean much to our readers, but the Dial Twister wanted to satisfy himself in regard to certain statements made by one Jack Fulton, of Fulton Brothers Electric company, in the Peachtree Arcade, who, when he is not engaged in a dissertation on radio, purveys Stromberg-Carlson radio equipment to his majesty, the American citizen.

Mr. Fulton declared that one reason why we got good modulation from our treasure chest was because it was equipped with a filter. Up north, where we came from, we used a filter on the faucet from which we obtained our supply of drinking water. We never thought much about the whys and wherefores of the filter but we do remember that when we turned the water on it was not only pure but it flowed with an even stream.

According to Fulton, this filter, which, by the way, we discovered was an inoffensive little oblong contraption, about an inch wide and three or four inches long, is a resistance unit that regulates tone quality. Now that our attention has been called to the filter we are confident that it is sure "the berries," if you know what we mean.

Knowing all this, the Lincoln day program broadcast during the Eveready hour by the National Carbon company through the National Broadcasting network, seemed doubly attractive. The Eveready program, always well balanced and attractively arranged, seemed Tuesday night to touch a most responsive chord because it was patterned after that great American commoner, Abraham Lincoln. Each number was just such as one could easily associate with a man of his rugged type.

Following the Eveready hour, we coasted about the country until time for the Loew's Grand program, which came to us through our local station and which featured that inimitable comedienne, Irene Franklyn, who is headlining the bill at Tom James' theater. It is regrettable that sufficient announcement was not given the fact she would respond to request numbers. She numbers countless music lovers among her Atlanta followers and practically every one of them would have put in a bid for his or her favorite had the opportunity been made available.

Jerry Jarnigan and Gracey and Elwood were others of the Loew film folks who performed before the microphone for the benefit of the Atlanta audience. Tom James' Tuesday night programs are becoming a popular institution in the southeast and should react favorably in box office receipts.

NEGRO EDUCATOR URGES HIS RACE TO "KEEP BUSY"

Rev. Richard D. Stinson, speaking to the Allen Christian Endeavor league at St. Mark's church, discussed the subject, "Bring Up a Child in the Way It Should Go."

The preacher talked to the big audience on the necessity of getting back to the days "when our race sought to bring up children under the fear of God and with a respect for all good people. Thousands of the best people ask, 'what can and may we do with our children? No one cares to go to Sunday school now, one-third will not work, and every family is told that their children don't care to go to the farm again.'"

The preacher said there are entirely too many farmers coming to cities where no one can afford to give them work that will pay. The negro race can't afford to condone crime among the ignorant, lawless element."

"The earning capacity of the unfortunate members among us should be raised. Every one of us should see the necessity of schools that enable common laborers to work with his hands and that impresses us with the desire to want to work with our hands.

"There is too much dancing, too much pleasure, too much idleness among the negro race, many of whom are troublesome in various communities.

"Back to the farm is a remedy for these who claim they cannot get work to do and are constantly defying law and order. Thousands of acres of land are lying out without being worked and can be secured with the least trouble. The church and all good people must put themselves behind this problem of aiding these unfortunate folks who claim they cannot get work to do and, therefore, are forced to steal and rob."

Rev. J. E. Miller, pastor of the church, strongly indorsed the address. The singing by the young people's chorus was a feature.

Woman Burned When Clothing Catches Fire

Mrs. A. C. Long, 56, of 829 Harold avenue, is in Grady hospital in a serious condition as the result of severe burns received about the body and limbs Tuesday at noon when her clothing accidentally caught fire as she passed an open grate in the home, according to her story to nurses at the hospital.

Persons living in the house with Mrs. Long told hospital attaches that she walked close to the open grate fire and deliberately thrust her clothing into the flames. Mrs. Long emphatically denies this report and declares that it was accidental. Physicians believe that she will recover although her injuries are severe and painful.

BURGLARS ENTER OFFICERS' HOMES; STORES ROBBED

Included in the list of burglary victims in Atlanta Tuesday were two members of the police department, Patrolmen Byron Benson and W. G. Scott, both of whose homes were ransacked during the day.

Officer Benson reported the loss of a pistol and Officer Scott a gold watch. Members of both families were absent during the burglaries.

Nothing was disturbed by unknown persons who forced entrance into the Jones Avenue pharmacy at 334 Jones street, police were told.

ADLER TO ADDRESS STATE CLOTHIERS' ANNUAL SESSION

Lou Adler, well-known Atlanta clothier, left Tuesday night for Savannah where he is scheduled to speak during today's session of the annual two-day meeting of the Georgia Clothiers and Furnishers' association, in that city.

Mr. Adler, regarded for many years as a leader in clothing and furnishing circles of the southeast and owner of Adler's store for men here, will discuss various problems of merchandising, emphasizing buying and records of both sales and buying. Mr. Adler, also an expert in styles, probably will outline features of the changing styles in men's clothes.

The meeting in Savannah will assemble several score leading Georgia merchants, prominent Georgians and visitors being included on the program.

Attorneys for Reed Must Prepare Briefs; Negro Gets Respite

The state supreme court Tuesday ordered attorneys for Marshall Reed, convicted of killing a deupty sheriff in Walker county, who was granted a 60-day respite by Governor Walker Monday, to file briefs pointing out contentions of their case by March 7.

It is expected at that time that the supreme court will hand down a decision respecting the legality of the law providing electrocution of those sentenced to death. In granting the respite Governor Walker said he had concluded that the case of Reed should take the same course given all other capital cases now pending by the courts.

Governor Clifford Walker Tuesday granted Lee Chambers, a negro, a 60-day respite from death sentence imposed in Bartow county. Chamblee was to have died in the electric chair on February 11.

Governor Walker in granting the stay said that Chamlee had a petition for clemency before the pardons commission but would not have time to complete it unless respite was granted. Chamlee was convicted of shooting Zack Gordon, another negro, on June 1, 1925, during an altercation over five cents' change.

SMALLPOX EPIDEMIC WARNING BROADCAST

A mild type of smallpox is prevalent throughout Georgia, the state board of health declared in a statement Tuesday. So mild is the disease that in some sections of the state it has been erroneously diagnosed as chickenpox or Cuban itch, the report stated.

The board has investigated numerous cases being treated for chickenpox and in every instance found the disease to be smallpox, it was further stated. Because of its mildness, there is danger of the disease spreading, or of its developing into a virulent type of smallpox, board members said, unless preventative measures are taken immediately. The board advised all persons who have not been vaccinated recently to have it done immediately.

Dr. J. P. Bowdoin, a member of the state board of health, will broadcast a warning of smallpox conditions from the local radio station WSB at 6:20 tonight, it was said.

Many Foreigners Seek Citizenship In Exam Friday

Fifty-five prospective citizens of the United States will face Federal Judge Samuel H. Sibley at 10 o'clock Friday morning in United States district court to take examinations for final citizenship papers and to take the oath of citizenship, if successful.

Worthington Blackman, of Birmingham, district director of naturalization, will aid Judge Sibley in conducting the examination. Aspirants are to appear in open court and answer any and every question propounded by Judge Sibley and Director Blackman, in the government's effort to learn whether the immigrants are worthy and competent to be citizens.

The oath of allegiance will be an impressive ceremony, representing the pledge of the applicant to uphold the constitution and to be a good citizen, at the same time renouncing allegiance to the country of his nativity.

Applicants for citizenship at Friday's session of court represent 10 countries in all sections of the globe. The requirements of citizenship include five years' continuous residence in the United States, the last 12 months to be spent in the jurisdiction of the court in which the papers are taken out.

A CHANGE IN CHARTER.

Council no doubt withheld action on the proposal to abolish the board of education on the theory that any change in the school system per se, pending a referendum on the proposed change of charter to admit a council-manager form of government, would be precipitate. This referendum must be held, under a mandate of law, if the council does not accept the petition of more than 10 per cent of the registered voters, already amply signed, and thus submit the proposed charter with its favorable recommendation to the forthcoming legislature without a referendum. This it has the option of doing.

The proposed new charter, while providing for a council, or legislative branch of 15, to be chosen by all the voters, one of whom shall be chosen "mayor," to represent the city in ceremonial and functionary capacities, also provides for a trained business executive to run the city's service departments, just as a great industry, or railroad, or bank, or other corporate interest, is run by an efficient executive with the assistance of a board of directors, reduced for executive efficiency, to a smaller executive committee. It thereby seeks to eliminate the political cross-firing, wrangling and obstructing that necessarily ensues from a mass of committees—some 36—that constitute an intricate, cumbersome, conflicting and confusing governmental web.

At the same time the new proposed charter provides that the school board shall be chosen by all the voters—the thought being that the people want to be in close personal touch with their schools. There is a conflict of opinion as to whether such a school board should have its own taxing power, within prescribed limitation, this taxation to be subtracted from the levy imposed by council for its other administrative services.

Be that as it may, the present charter is antiquated and a misfit to Atlanta of today. It invites the system of petty politics, overlapping, extravagancies and wastes that we have.

GEORGIA'S ANNIVERSARY.

Mrs. W. A. Sturtevant, historian of the Savannah chapter of the Daughters of the Confederacy, made the suggestion in a communication published in Monday's Constitution, that this week be observed throughout the state as "Georgia week" on account of the fact that February 12 is the 194th anniversary of the landing of General Oglethorpe and his little colony on the "banks of the Yamacraw," which is now Savannah.

It is a good suggestion, and whether there is any proclamation to that effect or not, or any organized effort to fittingly celebrate the anniversary, every teacher of a history class in Georgia, in public and private schools, ought to concentrate during the week on the history of the state during its various periods.

To illustrate, the period of Georgia's settlement and development under the trusteeship, under the British colonial government, under the early state sovereignty, during the dark decade of revolution, during the equally dark decade preceding the civil war, the war period, and later as a throbbing, pulsating unit in the new south following the restoration of the government to the people after the blacker days of reconstruction.

It is shamelessly true that too few people know the history of Georgia from an analytical standpoint. The old fiction that the state was settled by "jail birds" from the prisons of London, still exists, with but little serious effort to analyze and impress the facts.

Oglethorpe, as a member of parliament whose committee duty led him to examine prison conditions, very properly rebelled against the inquitous debtor laws of England, which at the time were the foundation stones of the prevailing feudal system. And while he secured from King George a grant of the "no man's land" in the new world that was situated between the Savannah and Altamaha rivers, for a colony of these debtors, whose only crimes were poverty, it is a fact that the original little party of colonists, including the Wesleys, whom Oglethorpe brought over on the Anne, were not the settlers of Georgia. They soon passed out of the picture, except as a few, like the Wesleys, left their imprint by their services. The settlers who formed the nucleous around which Georgia was built were voluntary settlers who came not alone from the British Isles but from every part of old and continental Europe, including the Salzbergers and other Protestant colonies from Germany.

No state ever played a more romantic part in American affairs than Georgia—the last to break the ties with the parent, and first in patriotic valor and heroism on the altar of freedom. No state was more conspicuous in building the foundation of a new republic, more resourceful in great figures of history, more courageous in overcoming disaster, more forceful in reaching out for the higher ideals of national character.

It is fitting that every Georgia child should be fully educated in Georgia history—a record of inspiration and pride.

THE MARKETING PROBLEM.

On this page is a communication in which W. E. Bobo, manager of the Georgiana Sweet Potato exchange, discusses frankly and with unquestioned wisdom the matter of properly marketing our farm products. He says it is an obligation that rests primarily upon the business men and in this he is entirely correct. The farmer should be, must be, a part of any and all marketing movements, as his own productions create the foundation for such marketing activities. But this is a day of specialization. The farmer will have his hands full if he concentrates in production along improved lines—production of more to the acre through intensification and therefore at less expense per pound for cotton, or per bushel for potatoes, or per crate for peaches, etc. If he does that well he has performed his part in the coordinated equation of production and distribution. Marketing is merchandising. And the market end should be in the hands of thoroughly trained business men who see the necessity for affiliating along sound, fair methods distribution with production.

Cooperative marketing is sound in theory and sound in practice. But there can be no high mark of stabilized efficiency or enduring benefits equal to the opportunities that such a system offers until the products can be sufficiently organized as to control—thereby eliminating conflicts in distribution and cross-purposes in selling plans.

There should be a consolidation of such marketing agencies. Take peaches as an illustration. The maintenance of satisfactory prices not only rests with a good product and a standardized pack and advertising established trade-marks, etc., but with a distribution that can be coordinated. It cannot be made possible to so arrange distribution so as to avoid over-feeding and starving consumptive markets so long as various marketing agencies are working at cross-purposes, and so long as a large percentage of the shipments are made independently, and without reference or regard to supply conditions in such consuming markets. All along the line, especially in perishables, this same logic applies.

It is a vital question, and business men as well as farmers, will do well to read and digest what Mr. Bobo has written. And then there should be constructive leadership in curing what is evidently a disjointed situation that now exists.

Just now we are consumed with what some nations south of us want. Later we shall read of what they get.

BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE

BY JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

New York, February 8.—They were swapping memories Old Timers' night at the New York Newspaper club, and Ben De Casseras was talking:

"I arrived at Herald square at 2:30 in the morning. I looked up at the owls that James Gordon Bennett had planted all around the tin roof at the Herald Square building as images to illustrate his motto: 'La Nuit Porte Conseil' ('Night brings wisdom' --but the printer had another version which I shall not give here.)

"I was a proofreader on the Herald at the time. My desk was situated directly under a certain owl who seemed to be blinking down at me at that particular moment as I stood on the pavement at Thirty-sixth street.

"Through one of those merry kinks in the brain of which all unwise thinking laddies know all about, I imagined that this owl's eyes were blinking words to me. I thought it said:

" 'You're a gay boy now—but the megims'll get you yet!' "

" 'You're a liar, old owl!' I yelled back. 'You're no wiser than your gay old master, J. G. B., who lives over the sea in gay Paree—and so on, as a gay, port-laden covey like me would have it.

" 'Beat it! You're making too much racket here. Them people over in the Marlborough wants to sleep. Step along!'

"It was a cop with a limber nightstick and a fatal gray eye.

" 'Did I wake you up—what?' I came back at the peeler. And thereupon I gave him a friendly jab in his beer container.

" 'Over you go! Asleep, eh? It's you that'll sleep behind the bars tonight,' he clicked.

"He grabbed me by the arm in an all-too-friendly manner and our walk began to West Thirty-sixth street. It was a melancholy silent pilgrimage.

* * * *

"Beneath an Edison bulb sat an old desk sergeant, drowsing of the happy pickings of the morrow at the Belmont track.

" 'What's the charge?' he asked of the cop.

" 'Talkin' to one o' the Herald owls, loud enough to break the peace, and when I told him to can it, he wanted to know if he had waked me up.'

" 'Well, did he?'

" 'No, sir, I was petrollin' me beat, sir.'

"The sergeant opened his eyes long enough to size me up. They opened wider, then a little wider. Finally they were like two small clocks.

* * * *

" 'Say, ain't you on the Herald, young feller?' he asked me.

" 'Yes, your honor,' I gurgled meekly.

" 'An' wasn't you here all night about a year ago?'

" 'Might have been—I've visited so many places of interest,' I intoned.

"He asked me where I lived. I told him.

" 'Officer, take him home. I don't want him here. We locked him up here a year ago and he sang "The Mikado" all night long. He knows every damn word of it. Not one of us could get a wink here that night. He's probably learned "Pinafore" since. This is a quiet stationhouse. Take him home!' "

Marketing of Products Direct Problem of Our Business Men

Editor Constitution: During the past two weeks Georgia has entertained and been entertained by some of the leading agricultural workers of the country. Much and lasting good has been done, but the real problem has not been touched. The theme of the meeting at Athens week before last was "Marketing" and a great many splendid theories were advanced. These will not solve the problem—never have—never will. The marketing of agricultural products is the problem of the business man of the community. It is not only his problem, but it is his responsibility. Agricultural development will advance just in proportion to the interest manifested in the marketing of its products by men whose training has equipped them in the art of merchandising. We like to dream of a condition where the producer can dictate the course his product shall take to the ultimate consumer, but that is only a dream.

Not Farmer's Job.

In the first place the farmer has no desire to get into the marketing business. He is perfectly willing to pay for this service, but what he does want and what he has a right to expect of all who preach diversification is that when he has diversified he can sell his products. He knows the value of a balanced crop program, but he has been and always will be slow to adopt it until he is assured of a market for his diversified products. The state has undertaken to perform that service and has made some degree of progress, but is is not equipped and under the rule of politics it never can be equipped to do the thing as it should be done. It is not a job for the state department of agriculture or the college of agriculture, but is a job for the best trained business men of the state. It will take some money, of course, but it has taken money to build our skyscrapers and to establish our big business enterprises. There is not a more inviting field for capital anywhere than that offered by investment in a well organized marketing agency for all the farm products of this state.

We have come too much to thinking of doing something for the farmer free of cost. Every time his problem is discussed someone is ready to suggest legislation or some form of paternal benefit. He is not whining for a nurse. He is hoping that someone will get behind the sale of his product with the same enthusiasm that is exhibited by the implement salesman, the piano salesman, or the wrought-iron range salesman that call on him. What he wants is to sell what he produces and he is willing to pay for having it done. He has too much free service already and he knows it.

We hear a great deal about farm cooperation. He is ready to cooperate with any well defined system of marketing his products. We hear a great deal about farmer organization. He never has and never will organize until there is something around which he can organize. We hear a great deal of idle prattle about production control. Show him a market and the production problem is solved.

The solution of the agricultural and horticultural problems of Georgia lies in the forming of a competent marketing organization independent of political or social influence. Put into it men competent to get results, and money enough behind it to put it across. Let the financial plan be one that can function on a service at cost basis, but give service, and pay a reasonable return on the capital invested. Consolidate all the marketing agencies in the state and eliminate duplication of effort. The outstanding superiority of Georgia apples, peaches, melons, potatoes, and asparagus is sufficient to warrant employing the best market men in the world and there are many other products that can be developed under the direction of men who know market requirements.

Up to Business Men.

We have reached the point where business men must take an interest and that interest will accomplish most if concentrated on the problem of marketing. Atlanta has recently performed a wonderful feat in raising a million-dollar advertising fund. That means her advantages will be marketed to the world. The whole state will of course benefit from this, but the thing most needed right now is for a man or group of men to have a similar vision for the farm products of the state. The difference is that farm products do not ask for donations or gifts. They are ready to pay their way.

Until there is some plan set up by which the special crops will be intelligently marketed and the diversified program intelligently directed from the viewpoint of market value, there will be little real progress made. The college of agriculture, the department of agriculture and the agricultural departments of all the railroads are all doing their dead level best but all realize they cannot do it. None of them were created for that purpose. Their work is primarily that of production. They have done it well and anxiously await an opportunity to do more when some system of marketing is established so their labor will not be in vain.

The call of the hour is for a man of vision and influence to corral money and men to take over this problem on a business basis and thereby lay the only foundation necessary at this time to solve all the agricultural problems of this state. W. E. BOBO.

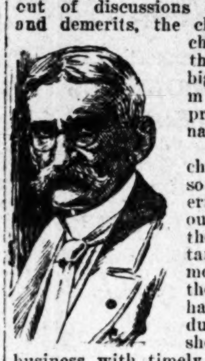
LOOKING AND LISTENING

BY SAM W. SMALL

The Kick That Is Found in Discussing the 1928 Convention.



A lot of people are getting a kick out of discussions over the merits and demerits, the chances and "no-chance-at-all," of the men in both big parties who are mentioned for presidential nominations next year.

The choice of the chief magistrate of so great and powerful a people as ours is a matter of the largest importance and it is most desirable that the persons who have the right and duty to elect him should go about the business with timely and studied information. Therefore it is none too early now to begin the political vivisection of those public men who can be fairly accused of presidential ambitions.

The conditions of national and international affairs warn the wise that for the next presidential term the conduct of our national administration will call for a man of high principles, strong convictions, firm courage and statesmanlike vision. "Where there is no vision the people perish" is a maxim of the earliest wisdom given to men and the course of human history has too often demonstrated its truth. Our present day is a glaringly untimely one in which to experiment with any president of untried metal, of only amateur experience, and who is the hero of a faction rather than the best hope of a nation.

The Trinity of Merits.

After following with attention the conditions of presidential campaigns for 60 years the writer has observed that the people generally look for three salient qualifications to be possessed by their national leader.

They want him to have mental and moral stability;

They want him to be American in spirit and devotions;

They want him to be honest and just in subordinating partisanship to the public welfare.

Any seasoned publicist with these three dimensions has a fair claim to consideration when the people go about choosing a successor to Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Wilson.

A heartening sign of the times is that so many of the political leaders and newspapers of the nation are now emphasizing those demands. It is an urge that ought to be pushed and so increased before delegating conventions are held as to automatically eliminate factional aspirants and produce from the nominating conventions the best candidates that the parties can command.

That effect should be all the more possible since one hears so many persons all over the land saying, "there is no difference between democrats and republicans these days!" Just what they mean by that opinion is not always clear, but generally it implicates that the democrats are "out" and the republicans "in"—that's all.

But in fact there should be wide differences between a true democrat and a real republican.

And if, in 1928, both parties get back to their true landmarks there will be great issues between them to be submitted to the American electorate.

What About Coolidge?

Inevitably the first topic in political discussions is "What about Coolidge in 1928?"

Leave it to his personal friends and the partisans who want an appointment by him during the next two years, and he is already as good as reelected to a third term! With them he is the incontestable, invincible leader who only can assure victory for the party.

But there are judicious and conservative republican leaders who think differently. They recognize at full value the personal popularity of President Coolidge, but they seriously fear that it would not be strong enough to overcome the "third-term bogey" that was fatal to the aspirations of Grant and Roosevelt. They hope Coolidge has common New England caution and political sense enough not to challenge the strong anti-third term tradition, and believe that should he do so both he and the party would be badly beaten in the election.

There are many republican leaders who are squarely opposed to any thought of Coolidge for 1928. Some of them hope for a chance of being chosen to head the ticket and some want a new and different sort of party president. They are quietly and adroitly using their positions and influence to diminish the power and prestige of Coolidge, without open eruptions, and to turn party preference away from him to some other promising leader.

Lowden Seems to Be "Next!"

If Coolidge is not to be unanimously renominated next year the man who appears to be "next" is Ex-Governor Frank Lowden, the de luxe "farmer boy" of Illinois. He is strong with the western grangers and is not allowing them to forget that he is on the map with the champion hog-calling voice of the era! If the Coolidgeites and the McNary-Haugenites do not find a happy pacifier pretty soon for those grangers they must prepare to handle a wild western rodeo in their national convention next year.

But Lowden has a traffic cop's tag on his candidatorial coat-tail! In the 1920 round-up it was charged and proved that he had a money deal, allegedly for delegate purchasing purposes, with the national republican leader in Missouri. The scandal of it had a palsying effect on his boom in that year and the present temper of the people toward the extravagant use of money in primaries and elections may make it absolutely inexpedient to risk a Lowden nomination

However, if the republican party in the meantime should seat Frank Smith and Bill Vare in the United States senate, there would be left no reason for it to balk over the nomination for president of any man with gall and greenbacks enough to buy a majority of its delegates in the national convention.

The Ohio Crowd Will Figure.

In the event of a free-for-all fight in the republican camp the Ohio crowd will figure formidably.

For two-thirds of a century after becoming a state Ohio had no son who reached the presidency. Then she had three—Grant, Hayes and Garfield—in straight succession, and since Cleveland's first election in 1884 every other new president has been an Ohio man. With seven presidents on her string since 1868 Ohio is led only by her old mother, Virginia, who has had eight sons in the presidential chair. Virginians have filled the seat 45 1-3 years and Ohians for 27 1-2 years—all of them since the war between the states. And now the Ohio bunch is hungry for another taste of presdential pie.

There has been some talk of boosting Speaker Nick Longworth as Ohio's candidate for the nomination. Of course, Nick would be glad to have it and his versatile and popular wife, formerly "Princess Alice" of the Roosevelt regime, would be "delighted" to be chatelaine of the white house. But Nick's chance to get the nomination is about the slimmest that shows to this looker and listener.

He would have to fight Senator Frank Willis for the Ohio indorsement and delegation. Ohio is "dry" and Nick is "damp," and Willis is the chief apostle of the prohibitionists, male and female, in Ohio and the nation at large, so that it is practically a cinch that if Ohio goes to the republican national convention of 1928 with a "favorite son" that son will be stalwart Frank Willis.

What May Happen.

In the event that Coolidge's renomination is looked upon as dangerous, and the "agricultural bloc" cannot compel the choice of Lowden or Senator Arthur Capper, the likelihood is the nomination of Senator Willis. It is not possible to prevision the convention nominating Nick Butler, or Jim Watson, or any other of the present "mentionees."

The democrats meanwhile have plenty of troubles in their own camp without taking worry over what the republicans may do—except to hope they will be fools enough to put up Coolidge for a third term!

Your Boy and Your Girl

NOW THE BOYS CAN.

Lady in Question: "Have you got a cigarette?"

Youth in Uniform: "Awfully sorry, but I cannot."

L. I. Q.: "Cannot what?"
Y. I. U.: "Offer you a cigarette."
L. I. Q.: "Why?"
Y. I. Q.: "Because, at West Point we cadets are not allowed to smoke at the academy dances. I can, however, offer you a match if you can furnish the fag."

Now it is all changed. The academy commandant has ruled that the cadets may smoke at the dances in order to spare the young men the embarrassment of standing by while their lady guests puff the fags.

No longer need Y. I. U. sneak a puff from L. I. Q.

"An overwhelming fear of woman, deep in the soul of man, makes him tragically helpless and inadequate in the face of her growing power," greeted my ears as I walked recently into a meeting of six hundred women. The next blast was: "The only solution to the growing antagonism between the sexes is a frantic appeal to men to bestir themselves and try to return to the good old days when man was master and lord and woman humbly did his bidding."

Perhaps this is what the commandant at West Point had in mind when his order turned a helpless match-lighter serf into a true soldier, gallant and brave.

Yes, gallant defenders of the country have bestirred themselves, no longer are they tragically helpless and inadequate.

OUR CONVERSATION CORNER.
What to Do.

I have a few suggestions for duties and amusements to keep boys out of shows all the time. I have a brother who is usually busy and advantageously, too.

He sings in a choir on Sunday mornings. On Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday he has rehearsals. He also has music lessons which are practiced an hour daily. Outside of school he has skating, skiing, sliding, and snowballing in the winter; tennis, swimming, hiking, ball games and marbles in the summer. He goes to two shows a week, one of which have to be paid for out of his own money. In the summer he earns money by cutting and raking the grass (also sprinkling it) and by doing other odd jobs around. In the winter he brings in the wood and shovels the sidewalks. Inside there is a tool chest, at which he is usually busy, besides the piano and his ever-faithful books.

Being a girl my occupations are different. I spend half my time outside of school playing the piano and singing. I like to paint and draw; I never have enough time to read; I love to sew, in fact I make over half my clothes; I like to write poems and stories; and then there are my outdoor and indoor sports. I like to skate, swim, play tennis, ride horseback, hike, and dancing and going to shows are also good fun. I, too, am allowed two shows a week or two nights out. I never go away on school nights, unless by special effort and occasion such as a concert by Marion Talley or the like, for I have my studying and piano to do.

NEVER MIND YOUR BLOOD PRESSURE.
(Last Chapter.)

Before you read this little lesson, stranger, let me explain that it is part two of an epochal and exhaustive work on blood pressure, of which part one appeared in yesterday's paper—at least I earnestly hope it did, though one never knows. Just for the fun of it, have a look-see at yesterday's paper anyway.

The most reprehensible fakes and frauds are perpetrated upon the half-informed or misinformed laity in the way of remedies or methods of treatment which purport to "reduce blood pressure" or to be "good for high blood pressure." Not only the usual patent medicine and mail order humbugs, but innumerable freak healing cults and, I regret to say, too many regular or presumably regular practitioners participate in this popular obsession to the extent of "treating" high blood pressure as though it were a condition or disease amendable to this or that specific remedy.

I have had sufficient experience in teaching the laity hygiene or the way to keep well, to convince me that it is hopeless and rather harmful to attempt to teach the laity what physicians know about blood pressure. Formerly I endeavored to make this matter intelligible to the layman, but I have been reluctantly forced to the conclusion that it is impossible to do so in the present state of popular ignorance of human physiology and hygiene. Back in the grade schools is the proper place to cope with that kind of ignorance, and in the schools they still consider human physiology rather nasty or indecent and not a proper thing to teach to children.

Now I intend all this in the kindliest way. I could offer no better advice to my own kin. If certain readers prefer to conclude that I am terribly sarcastic, or that I claim "there is no such thing as high blood pressure," they may go as far as they like with such notions, to a warmer climate than this if they wish. My concern is not at all with what the dumb say or think about my teachings or my "claims" as they call them, but only with the health of readers who are capable of learning a lesson in the first principles of hygiene.

Formerly I made a practice of sending to correspondents who informed me they had high blood pressure, some general advice or information relating to the more common conditions or diseases in which the physician finds this sign. But I believe that was a questionable practice, for I haven't any doubt that a good many correspondents asked for such information or advice in hope of finding in it something to corroborate their own morbid fancies. Anyhow, if a physician has told a patient the patient's blood pressure is too high or too low, that doesn't mean anything. The physician is just getting underway with his examination or diagnosis. Pay no attention to his mumbling about your blood pressure. Babinski, Graefe, Kernig, Romberg, basal metabolism, hydrogen ion concentration, or retarded cerebration, and don't sneak off with any of his instruments either. Just keep quiet and calm as possible, go through the jumps or hold your breath or say 99 as the doctor directs, and when it is all over he will give you his opinion as to what if anything is wrong with you and what if anything you should do about it.

If the physician finishes a physical or health examination lamely with the hint that he finds nothing abnormal except the blood pressure is a few points too high, the client may know he has made an unfortunate choice of physicians.

He who thinks he has nothing the matter except high blood pressure has a dangerous obsession.

AS ANY ROSE

As any rose my years shall fade
Like petals, one by one,
My youth shall linger but an hour,
And, with its glories done

As any rose, my heart shall give
Its treasure, sweet and tender,
And as a rose against the storm
Its loveliness surrender.

As any rose, life blooms to fade,
With cherished beauties lost . . .
And wind . . . and rain . . . and frost!

Still "Kaiser."

General Von Mackensen, the German cavalry leader who cleaned up in a month's time the Rumanian army, of which the world had been told that it was the most perfectly equipped military force, was in England a few weeks ago. The kaiser heard of the journey and expressed the wish that the general should pass by way of Doorn on his way back. One evening Von Mackensen stood at the gate. The kaiser had dressed for dinner, but came out to the corridor. Upon seeing his former general in traveling clothes, Wilhelm exclaimed to the chamberlain: "How dare you bring any one in my presence not dressed 'en grande tenue?'" "Sire," said Mackensen, "I have nothing but civil clothes." But Wilhelm did not even turn his face to the general and kept shouting to the chamberlain. "This is the court of Wilhelm II, the German emperor. I will not allow it to happen again." And so Mackensen went without being invited to come in. To think Napoleon saw Ney in his underclothes.

New Party.

The old political groups in France, who have had things pretty much their own way for long years, are disquieted by the growth of an organization, which plans to enter the political field. This organization is the Catholic federation with a membership of nearly 3,000,000. A force like that projected into politics could easily hold the balance of power, the more since it will draw a host of timid souls unto itself. Already many of the present leaders are being asked how they would regard an attempt to repeal the anti-clerical laws and bring back the congregations. Many give evasive or ambiguous opportunist answers, but the extreme left still possesses the old fire and the shout of Gambetta. "Le clericalism voila l'enenmi," is heard again.

"Red" Sculpture.

Siegfried Charoux, the Viennese sculptor, has executed an impression of Lenin in marble which is more dramatic and more startling than the Lenin of real life. The soviet government ordered the piece for one of its public museums, which are filled with statues and portraits of Lenin. The last annual "Akhrr," or exhibition of work done by the dozen nations comprising the Union of Socialist Soviet republics, contained more than 1,000 portraits and busts of the communist idol. The tendency of all these posthumous portraits is to conventionalize Lenin's face into a definite set of symbols, beetling brow, open mouth with ferocious teeth, head guiltless of a hair, which are exaggerations of the actual physical characteristics of the leader, but which are more easily remembered than the actual features of life. Future generations can go on painting portraits of Lenin forever, thanks to the conventionalized form given to the face of the dead dictator.

"No More War!"

A group of ambitious young actors, produced Romain Rolland's drama, "Aert," for the first time in Vienna. Rolland calls it a "tragedy of faith," while others regard it as a tragedy of idealism, with a hero too weak—too much of a dreamer for his task. The author, as a pacifist, asks the question whether the liberation of a people justifies murder. "Aert" is hardly a play in the conventional sense, but shows already Rolland's warm humanity and love of freedom. Another pacifist dramatist, Ernst Toller, has just passed several days in Vienna. The "Free Theater" gave a spirited rendering of his gruesome drama, "Hinkemann," in full—in previous productions certain scenes had to be omitted, owing to the censor. The audience was deeply stirred by the terrible play, and when the author was called before the curtain, he was loudly applauded with shouts of "No more war!"

MODERN IMAGE-BREAKERS.

In the engulfing wave of skepticism now rolling everywhere, the thing seems to be to unsettle whatever the fathers regarded as measurably determined.

Within a week, on the first page news: Christ has no supernatural side; the Garden of Eden instead of being originally located in a tropical jungle of Central Asia was of a certainty in the region now called Northern Michigan. Moses is a myth, his Ten Commandments in no wise inspired; the earth is not round, but flat; William Tell never shot an apple off his son's head; the theory of circulation of the blood is based on a fallacy; Bacon society announces new work—smashing myth of Shakespeare; our race once lived on the moon; there is no historical evidence of Christianity in the first century A. D., except for one small item in Josephus, the subject not being even mentioned by contemporary writers, Strabo, Pliny, Plutarch, Appian, Dio Chrysostomos, Seneca, Martial, Philo; neither are there Christians of the first century buried in the Catacombs, nor are there evidences of Christianity in any of the unearthed material from ruins of Pompeii, overwhelmed by an earthquake 79 A. D.

Go as far as you please.

To destroy all conclusions our ancestors held sacred is the spirit of the times. That identical tendency in large measure brought on the French revolution. The idea was, then, to make a mock of every stored-up tradition, even as we all recall how in the recent war we were turned into mad dogs.

Bank Depositors Protected By Bill Before Congress, Says Congressman Brand

Washington, D. C., February 8.—(Special.)—Important details of the provisions of the bank depositors' guarantee bill, introduced in congress by Congressman Charles H. Brand, of the eighth Georgia district, which is considered one of the most far-reaching measures in congress, were outlined by Congressman Brand in a signed statement made public here today.

Congressman Brand's bill is designed to protect depositors of banks throughout the country, and includes a provision which sets aside a certain amount which will serve as a guaranty fund to depositors. Details of provisions of the bill recently were explained on the floor of the house in a speech by Congressman Brand and he issued his statement today to make clear to the people throughout the country the workings of this bill.

CHARLES H. BRAND.

Congressman Brand's bill is designed to assure against loss to depositors in member banks of the federal reserve system and he issued his statement to correct certain misinformation circulated about provisions of the bill, the congressman stated.

Brand's Statement.

The signed statement follows:

"Next in importance to the problem of farm relief which should be properly and promptly solved to avoid a collapse of the agricultural classes of this country is the problem of bank failures and the necessity for legislation to protect depositors against loss.

"There being much interest and some misinformation in the public mind in regard to the provisions of the bill I have introduced, the purpose of which is to insure depositors in member banks of the federal reserve system against loss upon insolvency of banks, I have decided to publicly explain the prominent provisions of this bill, especially as a class of bank officials have expressed opposition to the same upon the assumption that it makes the strong banks protect the weak banks. This is a misconception of the provisions of the bill. There is is not a line in it which imoses such an obligation upon any bank.

"The bill provides for the creation of a fund which will be set aside as a guaranty to depositors against loss upon the failure of any of these banks.

"For the purpose of establishing the depositors' guaranty fund provided for in the bill there is authorized to be apropriated out of the treasury of the United States the sum of $50,000,000.

Tax Involved.

"The bill provides that this fund shall be decreased or absorbed from time to time by the franchise tax, which, under the law, the 12 federal reserve banks are required to pay annually into the treasury of the United States out of the net earnings of these banks. There has been paid into the treasury up to July 1, 1925, as a franchise tax, $133,992,093.58. The total amount of this tax for the year 1926 is $818,150.51.

"This money is not available for use at this time because, under the law establishing the federal reserve act, it has been used for the purposes set forth in section 7 of this act. The bill provides as this franchise tax accumulates it shall be annually placed to the credit of the depositors' guaranty fund, thereby reducing each year this $50,000,000 appropriation to the extent of the annual payment of the franchise tax.

Explains Procedure

"For instance, if this bill had been a law during the year 1926 the $818,150.51 paid as a franchise tax to the government by the federal reserve banks, would have been placed to the credit of this $50,000,000, and when this was done the secretary of the treasury would thereupon take out of the depositors' guaranty fund the amount of this payment and place it back in the treasury. When this franchise tax amounts to as much as $50,000,000 no part of the funds of the treasury will be used any longer for the protection of the depositors, but the franchise tax will take its place and thereafter be treated as the depositors' guaranty fund.

"In the plan of protection against loss provided for in the bill, if a bank becomes insolvent the depositors will be paid the full amount of their deposits without any cost to them and without any additional liability being put upon the stockholders. No national bank, no state bank member of the federal reserve system, neither one of the 12 federal reserve banks, will be required to pay a cent and no additional obligation over that which exists under present law will be placed on stockholders of any of these banks. No part of the net earnings of the 12 federal reserve banks is to be used to create this fund, except this franchise tax.

"Paragraph E provides whenever a member bank of the federal reserve system is placed in the hands of a receiver, the federal reserve board shall investigate and estimate as soon as practicable whether the assets of such bank, together with such amount as may be realized by enforcing the liabilities of the shareholders, officers and directors thereof, will be sufficient to pay the deposits in full. Upon the basis of such estimate the board shall make payment to such depositors from the guaranty fund of amounts, which, in the opinion of the board, will not be realized for the benefit of the depositors from such sources.

"Paragraph F provides if upon final settlement of the affairs of any such bank the assets, together with such amounts as may be realized by enforcing the liabilities of the shareholders, officers and directors thereof and amounts paid from the depositors' guaranty fund under subdivision (e) are insufficient to discharge such bank's obligations to depositors, the federal reserve board shall pay to such depositors from the depositors' guaranty fund such amounts as may be necessary to make up the deficiency.

Assures Growth

"If this bill becomes a law hundreds of state banks which are not now members of the federal reserve system will apply for membership. Every state bank not protected by state legislation will endeavor to get into the system, or should do so, if the bank's condition authorizes it and its affairs are being administered by honest and capable men. There are 20,168 state banks in the United States not in the federal reserve system, though not all of them are eligible for membership, and only 1,369 in the system.

"Congress has no jurisdiction over non-member banks of the federal reserve system, and therefore this class of banks will get no benefit afforded by my bill.

"I welcome criticism of my bill and any suggestion in regard to it on the part of any banker or other person. It is a workable bill, and I think legally and scientifically drawn, and will take care of all depositors in insolvent banks. In answer to a friendly suggestion which has been made to the effect that the amount of the guaranty fund is probably too small, in view of the fact that there are so many large banks in the great cities, and that a failure of one of them might wipe out the entire deposit fund, it may be necessary to amend the bill providing that the same shall not become effective in cities having a population of over a limited number of people.

"There is one thing as certain as death and taxes, so far as bankers are concerned. They want protection, and they demand it, when they hand out their money. I do not criticize them for this, but why not put the depositors in the same zone of protection when the bankers accept their money?

"The time has come when confidence in the banks, which in some sections of the country is at a low ebb, must be restored, otherwise the rank and file of the people will quit depositing their earnings in any bank. In many sections stock in solvent banks cannot be sold at any price. The only way to alter this grave situation is to enact legislation providing a perfect guaranty against loss when a bank fails whereby the depositors will receive their money without the loss of a dollar."

COMB SAGE TEA IN HAIR TO DARKEN IT

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is our greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product for only 75 cents. It is improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.—(adv.)

MORRIS PLAN BANK CONVENTION HERE

Opening today, the first Atlanta convention of the Southern Morris Plan Bankers' association, will be occupied with business sessions followed by a dinner at the Biltmore hotel, it was announced by W. Woods White, president of the Atlanta Morris Plan company. Presiding at the meeting is E. B. McCuen, of Savannah, president of the association.

Representatives from the Morris Plan companies of Asheville, Savannah, Nashville, New Orleans, Birmingham, Tampa, Chattanooga, Knoxville and Orlando, Fla., are in attendance at the session here.

The Moris Plan banks were organized 20 years ago for the purpose of combating "loan sharks" who prey on salaried folk and wage earners. Their method of providing funds at reasonable rates and on a sound business basis has been so successful that the organization has spread to practically every large city in the United States. The Atlanta company, organized by W. Woods White, has grown from a small beginning in a single suite until it now occupies its own building on Pryor street.

EPISCOPALIANS PLAN SERIES OF SERVICES

Members of local parishes of the Episcopal church, including those of Atlanta, Decatur, College Park and Marietta, will attend the first of a series of mass meetings Sunday night at 8 o'clock at St. Luke's church, when Bishop Warren Lincoln Rogers, co-adjutor bishop of Ohio, will preach. Meetings will continue daily through the week, beginning February 13.

Bishop Rogers will conduct all services as a part of a national crusade by the Episcopal church to awaken members to more intensive interest in private devotions and social service by a general interchange of clergy, it is said. Special conferences for women will be held every afternoon during the week at 3:30 o'clock, while the mass meetings are to begin at 8 o'clock.

T. W. NEWCOMB, 80, MARRIES WORKER IN HIS FACTORY

Rochester, N. Y., February 8.—A pretty floor woman in his factory captured the heart of Thomas W. Newcomb, 80-year-old president of the Newcomb-Anderson Shoe company, and now the principals in the newest May-December marriage are en route to Florida.

The bride was Miss Minnie Hanf, 28.

The infatuation of the aged shoe magnate for the young floor woman first thrilled the factory workers about three months ago. Until they left for a honeymoon in Miami, the bridal couple remained in seclusion at the home of Charles W. Anderson, treasurer of the company.

Newcomb's second wife died about four years ago.

Higher Advertising Standards Urged By Civitan Speaker

"Higher Advertising Standards" was the subject of a talk Tuesday by George H. Monro, of New York city, member of the Speaker's Bureau of the International Advertising association, at the weekly meeting of the Atlanta Civitan club at the Atlanta Athletic club.

In the interest of the Bert Adams Reservation campaign, now being conducted in Atlanta by the Boy Scouts, a troop of scouts, led by Ivan Allen, Jr., were guests of the club.

Entertainment features were provided by Cronwell Schoup, a freshman at Georgia Tech, whose flute solos were accompanied on the piano by Miss Kate Blatterman, an instructor of the Atlanta Conservatory of Music.

Contract Bridge---The Newest Game

BY E. V. SHEPARD

IV. ADVERTISE ONLY WHAT YOU CAN DELIVER.

A player bidding without justification and a merchant advertising something that he canont deliver are on a par, although neither may at once suffer from his deception, neither is worthy of confidence. Your partner's confidence is one of your biggest assets, never jeopardize it by making unsound bids.

An unsound opening declaration is even more liable to cause needless loss at contract than at auction bridge. Happenings like one which I just witnessed are far too common. It was rubber game, and both Y and Z wanted to win, so Z opened the bidding with one spade on the following hand:

	♠ 10-9-8 ♡ J-10-9 ♣ K-Q-J-10 ♢ K-J-9
♠ K-J-8-4-2 ♡ 8-4-3 ♣ 7 ♢ A-Q-8-6	Y A B Z	♠ 5 ♡ K-6-3 ♣ 6-5-3-2 ♢ 10-7-4-3-2
	♠ A-Q-7-6 ♡ A-Q-5-2 ♣ A-Q-8-4 ♢ 5

Of course, there could be no competitive bidding, either at auction bridge or at contract. Had he been playing auction Z would have made three-odd, and it is possible that criticism might not have followed. But at contract, Y's values of five probable assisting tricks for a sound spade declaration imposed upon him the necessity of bidding three spades. Of course B passed, but Z felt that the need of going game was sufficiently urgent to justify bidding four spades. A doubled, and the unfavorable distribution of adverse trumps caused the contract to be defeated one trick.

Going down one doubled trick would have meant only 100 points at auction, but it meant 200 points for a vulnerable pair at contract, and on a hand at which five-odd could have been made through sound bidding. Although Z is a very highly rated player, excelled by few in the mere handling of his cards, he never has, nor never will be, a sound bidder, just because he will not listen to anyone—a not uncommon trait.

Of course, Z should have bid one no trump, but he held a superstitious fear of a singleton, so instead of making the only sound bid on the hand he made a thoroughly unsound suit bid. None of us like singletons at no-trump, but they are not really as bad as a few writers believe them to be, little worse than having any unstopped suit, regardless of whether three, or even four, low cards are held. Dummy has average chances of three to two to stop the run of a suit of which you hold only a singleton; he has barely even chances to stop the run of a suit of which you hold two or three very small cards.

Had Z bid one no trump, A would have passed, and Y having probable aid of five tricks might have risked going down, by bidding two no trumps; his two bad suits would not have justified going higher, but Z could then have ventured bidding three no trumps. Five-odd could have been made, scoring 30 game points, 200 points for overtricks, and 500 points for game and rubber, a total of 730 points made, instead of a loss of 200 points for going down on an unsound bid.

At auction, the difference between a sound opening bid of one no trump and an unsound one spade, provided neither had been opposed, would have been only 273 points, instead of 930 points, showing the greater need of sound contract bidding.

COMMISSION REHEARS POWER MERGER CASE

The state public service commission Tuesday took under advisement the case involving the merger of the Georgia Railway and Power company with five other Georgia power companies, which was presented before that body for the second time by minority stockholders of the Georgia Railway and Electric company who are opposed to the consolidation. The commission is considering the case to decide whether or not the proposed merger is for the public good. In a recent sessison the commission rendered a decision holding that the merger was for the public good but the case was reopened and a second hearing fixed for Tuesday.

At the hearing held at the capitol Tuesday the company's case was presented by Preston S. Arkwright, president, and Robert C. Alston, attorney. The minority stockholders were represented by former Governor John M. Slaton. Because of their former decision in the case Governor Slaton contended that the members of the commission were not qualified to hear the case again. The commissioners held a short conference on this contention and ruled that they were fully qualified to hear the case. Decision will be announced later. Disposition of stock held by the minority stockholders as a rsult of the merger is involved in the case.

TWO ATLANTA TOTS ON LONE JOURNEY TO CALIFORNIA

West bound for Taft, Calif., Nell Aaron, just 9 years old, and her kid brother, Ivan, 7, little inmates of the Home for the Friendless in Atlanta, today are aboard a continental flyer wondering how they can wait until the train whisks them into California. Their father is waiting for them there and they haven't seen him in five years.

The youngsters didn't lack for friends in Atlanta. Though the parent could not buy tickets, charity workers saw to that. Miss Emma Newcastle, a child welfare worker, located the father in far off California and learned that he was eager for the children. V. D. Scott and his fellow railroad men gave them Pullman fare. Mrs. J. W. Payne, of the Travelers' Aid society, arranged for agents to meet them all along the route and Miss Annie McElreath, of the Home for the Friendless, Monday turned her charges over to J. D. Goldsmith, conductor of the Piedmont Limited.

Illness of Mother Calls British Consul Here Home in Hurry

R. A. Lee, British consul who came from Savannah recently to take charge of the Atlanta consulate during Consul S. E. Kay's leave of absence, leaves for his home in England today, it was learned from the office of the consul Tuesday.

Mr. Lee's hurried call to England was precipitated by a series of unfortunate happenings in the home of his parents, news being received that his father died a week ago and his mother has taken seriously ill. Mr. Lee did not know how long he would be detained in England. It is probable he will return to his Savannah post when conditions permit. Mr. Lee will take a train for New York today and sail for England on the Olympic Saturday.

During his absence and that of Mr. Kay, Mr. Drowse, the British pro-consul, will have charge of the Atlanta office. Mr. Kay is expected to return here in April.

BOY BADLY INJURED WHEN HIT BY TRUCK

Horace Lynch, 12, of 58 Mills street, is in a serious condition at Grady hospital, and Roy Huff, negro, of 65 Mills street, is being held by police without bond following an accident at Spring and Mills streets, 3:20 o'clock this afternoon, when young Lynch was knocked down by the motor truck operated by Huff.

W. M. Lynch, father of the injured boy, took his child to the Grady hospital in the truck that struck him. Doctors at the hospital stated that the lad's collar bone was fractured and that he was suffering from serious bruises about the head and abdomen.

Motorcycle Officer J. A. Bailey investigated the case.

FIVE FOREIGNERS TO BE DEPORTED; LEAVE HERE TODAY

Five recently released inmates of the Atlanta federal penitentiary will leave Atlanta this morning in the custody of Immigration Inspector Charles L. Masek and City Policeman M. P. Warren for Ellis Island, to be deported to their native countries as undesirable aliens.

Those to be deported are Harry Friedenrick, to Canada; Ernest Galardo, to Canada; Panucci Bruno, to Italy; Felice Addario, to Italy, and Jacques Huber, to Belgium.

OFFICER IS INDICTED ON BRIBERY CHARGE

Bribery was charged in an indictment returned Tuesday by the Fulton county grand jury against L. R. Gatliff, supernumerary of Atlanta police department, in connection with the alleged accepting of a $2 bribe from Charlie Crowder, a negro, while in the discharge of official duty.

According to the charges, Gatliff apprehended Crowder, a negro delivery boy, on February 5 and charged him with violating the traffic ordinance. It is charged that Gatliff told the negro that he would let him off for $5 and the negro went to his employer for the money, making an appointment to meet Gatliff later. Detectives were notified and Gatliff placed under arrest when the negro paid him $2.

CLUB TO GIVE BALL ON VALENTINE NIGHT

The Alite club will open a series of midwinter dances with a Valentine ball Monday night, February 14, in the Kimball house ballroom, according to a recent announcement by Mrs. Harry E. Reynolds, in charge of arrangements.

Elaborate preparations are under way to make the initial dance a success, said Mrs. Reynolds, who added that dance contests will be held and a prize awarded. A 10-piece orchestra, the Atlanta Troubadors, has been secured for the occasion, and decoration of the ballroom is now under way.

The dance is to be the first of a series of weekly affairs, which are to be held each Saturday night from 9 until 12 o'clock. Tickets can be had either through some member of the club or by calling Mrs. Reynolds at Walnut 7837, while a supply will be kept at the gate for those who have neglected to make reservations.

SHEINBAUM NAMED TO JEWISH COUNCIL

Milton C. Work's Pointer On How To Play Bridge

(Milton C. Work, the international bridge authority, will answer your auction bridge questions. A stamped self-addressed envelope must accompany each request for replies.)

The pointer for today is:

In initial suit-bidding, the high-card strength which justifies a bid in one suit does so in any other.

Yesterday's article ended with these two hands, viz.:

1. Sp.; Ace-King-4-3-2. Ht.: 3-2. Di.: 4-3-2. Cl.: 4-3-2.

2. Sp.: 4-3-2. Ht.: 4-3-2. Di.: 3-2. Cl.: Ace-King-4-3-2.

They were given to illustrate as forcefully as possible two important points for a student of the game to remember:

(a) In suit-bidding, strength which justifies a bid with a Club would equally justify it with a Spade; and correspondingly, a hand which would be too weak to warrant a Heart bid, also would be too weak for a bid of a Diamond. This materially helps the student in determining whether he has a suit-bid, because, when no question of bidding No Trump is involved, he does not have to distinguish between suits; merely to know what strength is required. It would be just as foolish to pass with one of the hands above given as it would be with the other.

(b) With Ace-King at the head of five, a bid should be made regardless of the size of the small cards in the suit and no matter how weak the remainder of the hand may be. In the above illustrations the lowest possible cards have been picked to go with the Ace and King; and yet the hands should be bid.

It is important that Ace-King-x-x-x should be bid both for offensive and defensive reasons. It guarantees two quick tricks and a long suit which can be established readily and enables the partner, should the intervening adversary pass, to bid many hands which he should otherwise pass, and which consequently might be passed out. It justifies the partner—should the intervening adversary bid—in overcalling that adversary in many cases in which, without the aid of the initial bid, he would not have been strong enough to do so.

In the event of an intervening adverse bid which shuts out the partner, the initial bid indicates the most advantageous suit to be led originally; and when the adverse contract is No Trump, it often directs a lead which saves the game.

Hands to be considered tomorrow:

1. Sp.: Ace-Queen-x-x-x. Ht.: Ace-x-x. Di.: x-x-x. Cl.: x-x.

2. Sp.: Ace-x-x-x-x. Ht.: Ace-x-x. Di.: x-x-x. Cl.: x-x.

3. Sp.: Ace-x-x-x-x. Ht.: King-Queen-x. Di.: x-x-x. Cl.: x-x.

SUSPECTED SLAYER IN INGRAM DEATHS BELIEVED IN CITY

Detectives Tuesday continued their search for a man upon whom suspicion has settled as the slayer of Mrs. Lottie Belle Ingram and her 14-months-old baby. Impetus was added to the search Tuesday when it was learned that the man is believed to be in the city. A close watch is being kept over his home.

Two men held on blanket charges of suspicion were released from the custody of police Tuesday. They were A. B. Vandiver, of 508 Decatur street, and Lee Hammond, of 119 Bedford place. Hammond has not been suspected of the murder but he was held because he was supposed to possess information about the man detectives are seeking.

Vandiver was rearrested immediately after his release on a charge of disorderly conduct for his alleged part in the flogging of his step-father, who was taken from his home on January 27 by a band of men and severely beaten.

Tech Squad Entrains Today For Three-Game Cage Tour

T. H. S. Title Drive Checked By Cadets With 29-21 Victory

BY BEN COTHRAN.

G. M. A. checked Tech High's march towards a city basketball title Tuesday afternoon, the Cadets winning a close, hard fought game by a score of 29 to 21.

A win for Tech High in Tuesday's game would have cinched for them the prep loop flag. Tech High has one game left with Boys' High, and G. M. A. will play U. S. B. As it now stands, if the Cadets win from University, and Boys' High beats the Smithies, Tech High and G. M. A. will be tied for the title in class A.

Tuesday's game was fast and furious from start to finish. The Cadets jumped into the lead at the very start, and held it all the way. The lead wasn't anything to feel comfortable about, although once or twice it reached about 10 points. The Smithies were fighting hard the whole time, trying to overcome the lead.

The Cadets' dazzling passing attack was working well, and Smith, running guard, was the main contributor to its smoothness. He was all over the court, and always in the right place at the right time, and played a good floor game.

Missed Many Shots.

Tech High was unable to pierce the G. M. A. defense to any great advantage, and resorted to long shots, many of which were missed. Terrell was best at getting down under the baskets to make shots for the Smithies, but was usually hampered by a number of Cadets who kept him from making many.

During the first half the fight was waged mostly under G. M. A.'s goal, and Tech High got three field goals in this period, while G. M. A. scored eight. The Smithies came back strong in the second stanza, and played a better game, but were unable to overcome the home team's lead.

At times the game became somewhat rough, and towards the close of the game, Captain Mott, of the Cadets, and Captain Stearns of the Smithies, were ejected from the game, for not untangling soon enough after a scrimmage. Foul shots tried by both teams amounted to 29, and the personals called were many.

Terrell, of Tech High, was high scorer with 11 points. He was closely followed by Mott, G. M. A., who got 10. Mott played one of his best games of the season, and made shots when they were needed.

Hammond Stopped.

One of the Smithies' big guns, Heavy Hammond, was effectually spiked by his former teammates. Usually Heavy accounts for quite a large number of points, but in Tuesday's affray he failed to make a single one.

Sorrell played a good game at guard for the Cadets, but failed to get his usual large quota of points, his total being six.

Tech outclassed G. M. A. in performances made in free chunk alley. The Smithies shot nine out of 14 fouls, while charity chunks for the Cadets amounted to five out of 15. But the College Park boys made 12 goals from the field, twice as many as the visitors made.

Lineup and Summary.

Boys High Beats Marist Five, 36-22

Boys' High defeated Marist, 36 to 22, Tuesday afternoon at Grady court in a hard-fought and well-played game.

It was Marist's last game of the season, and the boys were fighting hard to close the campaign with a victory, the Bean boys failing to win a single prep loop game this year.

Coach Johnston, of Boys' High, used his varsity lineup throughout the game. Marist copped an early lead, and during the first few minutes led, 8-0. The Purple got going soon afterwards, however, and took the lead, never relinquishing it to the Cadets at any time.

Boys' High will play its last game of the season Friday afternoon against Tech High. This battle, as all Tech High-Boys' High battles are, is sure to be hard fought throughout.

TIDE GRIDMEN PLAY 2 GAMES THIS SPRING

Tuscaloosa, Ala., February 8.—(Special.)—The University of Alabama will play two spring practice football games with the Birmingham Southern Panthers February 19 and 26, according to an announcement by Coach Wade today. The first game will be played in Birmingham while the other will be staged in Tuscaloosa.

Arrangements were concluded late Tuesday night for the games when Coach Drew, of the Panthers, brought his basketball team here to play the Alabama quintet.

These two practice games are expected to be of inestimable value to the coaches of both teams in testing the merits of the players under the stress of competition. It will give them a line on the many new players who have been struggling for recognition in the spring training grind.

In arranging these two games, Alabama and Birmingham Southern are going Georgia and Oglethorpe one better, the latter teams having instituted the practice of holding spring practice games last year.

Locust Grove Wins From Aggies 19-15

Locust Grove, Ga., February 8.—(Special.)—Locust Grove won a hard fought game from the Monroe Aggies here by a score of 19-15. The game was played very fast throughout. The first half ended with the score 10-0 in favor of Locust Grove institute. Lightner was high point man of the game, with a total of 10 points. Talley was high point man for Monroe with six points. Calloway, however, takes the honor of having played the best game. Crips were not available at any time during the game. Southern exhibited some fine floor work, as did Dees and Gray. Jordan played well for Monroe. This was the second game in which Locust Grove institute has defeated the Aggies, winning on January 24 by a score of 23-22.

TYPISTS BEAT CANTON HIGH, 29-14.

Commercial defeated Canton High, 29 to 14, at the "Y" court Tuesday afternoon in a game that was hard fought from start to finish.

Millender, with 12 points, was high scorer of the game and played best for Commercial. Balser and Hirsch, at guards, put up a good defense for the winners, while the work of Moret at forward was also good.

Perkins played best for Canton, and towards the end of the game staged a one-man rally and caused the Typist guardsmen plenty of trouble.

Cagers On Home Stretch.

With the basketball season nearing a roaring finish at the conference tournament set to begin in this city on February 25, the home stretch is approaching with its usual grist of great games.

Among the most formidable aspirants to a tournament title this year is Georgia Tech and that leads us up to our immediate story. It will be remembered that Tech sent its team on a northern tour before the season actually began in the south and it will also be remembered that the Jackets won much less than half their games on that trip.

There were many of the "I told you so" boys who were ready to say, "Well, another year without a winner at Tech in basketball." But the wise guys were wrong again. That is, they were wrong in supposing that a bad start was indicative of anything.

Now Tech is started on a second tour in which they meet several conference foes. If they come from this trip unscathed they will be prime favorites for the tournament honors, but their journey is filled with pitfalls.

Tech and South Carolina have the only clean slates in conference victories at the present time, North Carolina having been beaten by Maryland in their last encounter. But Tech meets some strong teams on this trip. Many will remember the 22 to 20 victory of Tech over Auburn early in the season and will wonder just how Tech will weather the storm with the Tigers playing on their own court.

Judging from the performance of the Jackets thus far in return engagements they should have little trouble in stopping the Tigers IF the latter outfit has not shown as great improvement as Tech. In that case, Tech must watch her points.

Auburn won five conference games in a string last week, which would indicate that the Tiger quintet is also improving. On the face of the thing the Auburn-Tech game in Auburn Saturday night should be a great spectacle.

There is another court battle looming which promises to be something to open the eyes of fans in the town of Athens. That is the meeting tonight of the Georgia university team and the Atlanta Athletic club.

Any way you figure the dope there is no way to pick a winner. The Bulldogs have been beaten by Tech twice and the A. A. C. and Tech score stands one-all at the present time but Tech beat the club at their last meeting by a larger score than either of those against the Red and Black.

The Bulldogs have been somewhat crippled by the temporary loss of Captain Forbes but the blonde youth is expected to be back on the court tonight. In that case there is a great battle in sight.

Senator Borah Forces Liquor Issue To Front As Republican Problem

Mystery as To Whether Coolidge Will Run Grows Deeper as Rival Candidates Maneuver.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.

Washington, February 8.—(United News.)—The mystery as to whether President Coolidge intends to run again grew deeper today while rival aspirants maneuvered to make prohibition and farm relief the pivots of the republican party's coming presidential fight.

Three republican presidential possibilities were heard from today—Senator Borah and Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, of New York, on prohibition, and former Governor Frank O. Lowden, of Illinois, on farm relief. President Coolidge smoked cigars and said nothing.

Senator Borah forced the liquor question into the republican foreground today with a demand that delegates to the next republican national convention be chosen on the basis of their prohibition views so that the party would have a direct expression of sentiment from its members.

Proposal of Borah.

Borah made this proposal in a letter to Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, New York, who last night declared in a speech that the republican party must go wet or be beaten next year. Butler also predicted Coolidge would not run again.

This developed just as the presidenial aspects of the farm relief fight were thrust forward by a telegram from former Governor Frank O. Lowden, of Illinois, declaring flatly for the McNary-Haugen surplus disposal farm relief bill and condemning the Curtis-Crisp revolving loan bill which is supposed to be preferred at the white house.

The farm relief fight is rapidly approaching a climax as the senate has agreed to begin voting on the bill Friday afternoon and the house is also expected to vote about the same time.

Republicans Split.

With factional fights developing over both prohibition and farm relief, the republicans find themselves for the first time in a position to sympathize with the agonies of the democrats at Madison Square garden three years ago.

If all of this shouting is intended to jar some statement of policy out of the silent man in the white house, it is in vain thus far. The white house spokesman today received a large delegation of the press. A New York morning newspaper was spread out on the president's desk with its staring black headlines—"Wet to win presidency, says Dr. Butler; predicts Mr. Coolidge won't run."

The white house spokesman glanced at this news and remarked that if anybody wanted to know how Mr. Coolidge stands on political questions he should read C. Bascom Slemp's recent book, "The Mind of the President."

But this comprehensive compilation on the Coolidge speeches fails to contain any quotations regarding another term in the white house or the desirability of modifying the Volstead act.

Urges Law Enforcement.

As to prohibition, the best information is that Coolidge stands for law enforcement. Few believe he will advocate any relaxation. If anything, he is more likely to go farther toward the dry side.

As to farm relief, the president said privately a year ago that he would veto the McNary-Haugen bill if it came to him, congress then having been expected to pass it. Whether he has changed his mind nobody knows. But Senator Fess, of Ohio, whose farm relief bill has Coolidge's indorsement, says the president is still ready to veto the McNary bill—welcoming Lowden to make the most of it. However, time spent is guessing is wasted. There is no positive information.

Butler's appropriation of the wet banner was regarded as the announcement of his tacit candidacy. The chairman of the New York meeting, where he spoke, mention Butler as a worthy man to sit in the white house and the distinguished scholar offered no dissent.

Borah has long been regarded as the potential republican candidate of the drys. He suspects Coolidge of straddling and is prepared to make the most of that by taking an aggressive position himself. Many, however, expect that Borah will again have the experience of seeing an opponent take up his platform and carry it away.

Lowden is the farmer candidate and has more organized strength behind him than anybody in the republican party save Coolidge alone.

BONUS LOAN BILL AIDS HALF MILLION

Washington, February 8.—(AP)—A half million former service men who hold government life insurance policies stand to benefit by final passage of the Green bonus loan bill although its primary purpose is to facilitate borrowing on adjusted compensation certificates.

Under the bill, interest profits made on the compensation certificate loans would go to a fund set up to retire the government's life insurance policies which, it is intended, will be reflected with lower insurance premiums through dividend declarations.

The Green bill authorizes the veterans' bureau to make loans on bonus certificates at 2 per cent interest in excess of the current federal reserve discount rate, which means that the normal rate to loan seekers would be approximately 6 per cent.

In order to make these loans, the treasury would advance $25,000,000 to the veterans' bureau, the bureau giving as security an equal amount of bonds it holds to redeem insurance converted from war risk policies. The treasury would be authorized to charge the veterans' bureau 4 per cent interest.

NEW AFFIDAVIT WILL BE SWORN IN LIBEL ACTION

Montgomery, Ala., February 8.—(AP) The affidavit charging Frederick I. Thompson, Birmingham publisher, with criminal libel, which was made returnable on a non-existent court in Jefferson county, will be resworn by Charles C. McCall, attorney general, he said tonight.

The new warrant will be ordered served as soon as the first paper is returned to Montgomery authorities, he said. The first warrant requested was made returnable on the "court of common pleas" of Jefferson county instead of the "court of misdemeanors," as the lower court is known in that county.

The error was made by Montgomery county officials and not by the attorney general, he said. Civil action for damages will also be brought, he stated.

INSURANCE LEAGUE LEAD IN DEADLOCK

BY C. C. MITCHELL.

The Insurance Company of North America went into a tie with Firemen's Fund for the lead in the Insurance league by downing the Firemen, 32 to 13, in the feature game at the Atlanta Athletic club Tuesday night. Commercial Union killed the championship aspirations of Southeastern Underwriters, by trimming them, 37 to 28, while the Royal quintet beat the Hartford team, 32 to 25, in a well played game. A large crowd was on hand and they were in an uproar all the time.

The accurate tossing of Mathis and Rubenstein and the all-round playing of Singleton proved too much for Firemen's Fund cagers and they went down in defeat. It was a bitter pill for the Firemen to swallow, for they had taken the measure of North America earlier in the season. The first half was a toss-up with first one team and then the other on top. North America took the lead, 10 to 8, just before the half ended. In the final period, however, North America got down to business and proceeded to put the game on ice. First Mathis and then Rubenstein would crack down on the basket and it meant points practically every time this pair took a shot. McDonald was the only Firemen who performed in championship style, although Chesnutt played a good game.

Lockridge ran wild and Commercial Union won a hard fought game from Southeastern Underwriters. The first half was all Commercial's, being on top, 25 to 10, at the midway mark. Southeastern came back in the final stanza but the early lead of Commercial was too much for it to overcome. Boyle and Awtrey were the big scoring combinaion for Southastern, while Lockridge, with 22 points, and Miller with 9, showed up best for the winners.

M. E. EDUCATIONAL CONVENTION OPENS

Memphis, Tenn., February 8.—(AP)—Thrashing out problems presented in every phase of religious education, leaders of Southern Methodism tonight prepared to "listen in" tomorrow at the opening of the general convention of the Educational Association of the Methodist church, south.

The convention lasts through tomorrow.

Unit meetings today and tonight were the college and university group, presided over by Dr. H. W. Cox, president of Emory university; the junior college division, presided over by Dr. C. D. Curtis, president of Martha Washington college; the relegious education unit, presided over by James W. Workman, student pastor of the University of Arkansas, and the conference boards group, presided over by Dr. Elam F. Dempsey, of the North Georgia conference.

Among the high lights of tomorrow's general session of the combined units, will be the annual president's address by Dr. J. R. Countiss, president of Grenada college, Grenada, Miss.

Second Victim In Golf Match Tragedy Is Dead

Los Angeles, February 8.—(AP)—Cornelius J. Callahan, Toledo, Ohio, manufacturer, died in a Hollywood hospital late today, the second victim of a shooting which yesterday brought a tragic ending to a friendly golf match on a public course here.

A statement that business reverses which resulted in a mental breakdown and hallucinations that he was being followed by a would-be murderer, caused Andrew Jankowski, Toledo, Ohio, business man, to shoot his friend and business associate, attempt to shoot his wife and then fire a fatal bullet into his own brain, was made by Mrs. Jankowski today.

Mrs. Jankowski, in the care of a nurse at her hotel, made the statement to deputy sheriffs who questioned her concerning the tragedy on a public golf course yesterday. She told them that Jankowski fired without warning at Callahan and then attempted to shoot her. She prevented this by catching the gun. Jankowski then fired a bullet into his own head, dying almost instantly.

SOCIAL LEADER FACING POVERTY, SEEKS ALIMONY

White Plains, N. Y., February 8.—From luxury to poverty, from an internationally noted social position to the verge of becoming a public charge has been the experience of Mrs. Sybilla T. Pope, her attorney informed the supreme court here Tuesday.

It was stated that if Mrs. Pope's former husband, Charles H. Pope, a New York cotton broker, is not ordered to provide alimony for her, the former toast of the smart sets of London, Long Island and Palm Beach may have to take such work as she can get.

When the Popes were divorced in 1922, Mrs. Pope did not ask alimony. She later recovered judgment for about $30,000, alleging an ante-nuptial agreement promising her $18,000 a year.

Now, the court was told, she is not only penniless but in debt and has but two out-of-style frocks to her back.

Pope's reply was that Mrs. Pope had always been extravagant and that she had squandered his fortune before divorcing him.

Mundorff Will Take Ten Men On Journey; Auburn Game Hardest

Jackets Encounter L. S. U., Tulane and Auburn on Final Tour of Season—Game With Auburn To Be Played Saturday Night.

BY TOM THOMPSON.

The Golden Whirlwinds of Georgia Tech, basketball practitioners par excellence, will entrain this afternoon for a three-game trip that will begin Thursday night in Baton Rouge, when the comparatively untested quintet of the Louisiana State university will furnish opposition.

From there, where they will make a one-night stand, the cagers will carry the banner of Tech to New Orleans and take on the Green Wave, of Tulane.

After the Tulane tilt, the Jackets will take on Auburn in Auburn, and this promises to be the hottest battle of the three-cornered journey.

About 10 men will make the trip with Coach Mundorff. Four forwards, two centers and four guards will make the trip and those elected will probably be Player, Wilder, Morton and Moreland, Hearn and Bullard, George, Jamison, Largen and Brant.

This trip is the crux of Tech's basketball schedule since it leaves only two more games to be played before the program is terminated in Athens on February 19 when the Georgia Bulldogs will be tackled for the third time this season. Unless Georgia improves considerably and takes the last setto, then it also provides the final opportunity for a conference opponent to humble the Jackets in a pre-tournament contest.

L. S. U. is somewhat of a dark horse and playing on the Tiger's own court should provide plenty of opposition. Even discounting the fact that Tulane is at home, Tech should humble the Green Wave without undue exertion, since Tulane has been downed by a number of conference teams, including Auburn.

The battle with Auburn is the toughest that the Techmen will face. Tech battled to a 22-20 victory when Auburn made its appearance here in the first 1927 conference basketball battle for Tech. The Plainsmen, last week, humbled five conference opponents in a row.

Though Tech has improved remarkably since its conflict here with Auburn, allowance must be made for the improvement of the Plainsmen. Allowance must also be made for the fact that Auburn will be at home, and in consideration of these things it is not at all improbable that Tech will not win its Saturday night game.

J. P. C. LOSES TO TERRORS IN NASHVILLE

Nashville, Tenn., February 8.—(Special.)—The Jewish Progressive club of Atlanta dropped a basketball game here tonight to the Burk Terrors after a hard fight in the first half. The final score was 38-22.

The floor work of Hirsch was one of the outstanding features of the game, though his shooting was off and he did not make but five points during the entire game. These five points he shared with Hillman and Levy, who each got the same number.

L. Richter, of the Terrors, was high point scorer of the contest, gathering a total of 13 points. He was followed by Wright who got nine, as did Wolfe who substituted for Quick in the Terror lineup.

DAUGHERTY TRIAL IS STARTED ANEW

BY SAM LOVE.

New York, February 8.—Emory R. Buckner, United States attorney, today took a leaf from the popular authors in explaining how $7,000,000 of German metal assets were impounded, and how $7,000,000 in Swiss metal assets were returned, in the second trial of Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney general, and Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian.

Buckner went directly into tracing the $441,000 in liberty bonds the late John T. King was accused of having received as a "fee" from Richard Merton, the German metal magnate. Buckner indicated his hope to lead the jury along the trails of these bonds, and show them the doorways of Daugherty and Miller at the two ends.

"This case is complicated in appearance," Buckner said, "but it really is very simple.

Gives Illustration.

"Suppose your hat and coat were seized by the government as alien property. The way to get it back would be to prove that it was neutral. In this case, however, instead of there being a hat and coat it was seven million dollars."

Assistants hauled out large charts that looked like old-time history book diagrams. One set had lines connecting the American metal company with the German metal trust, the Frankfort Metal bank and the Swiss Metal Securities company. Another traced $441,000 in liberty bonds through the east and middle west.

Aaron Sapiro, counsel for Miller, asked Federal Judge Knox to rule out the diagrams as "theatrical effects" but the judge refused.

AINSWORTH TALKS ON CHINA UPHEAVAL

Brunswick, Ga., February 8.—(Special.)—Interesting addresses featured the opening here today of the Woman's Missionary conference of the South Georgia Methodist church, being attended by more than 200 representatives from all sections of south Georgia.

At the morning session reports were submitted by the president, treasurer and secretary. From the treasurer's report it was shown that the conference raised $89,841.46 for missionary work during the year.

Featuring the afternoon program was an address by Bishop W. N. Ainsworth on "Conditions in the Orient," who has been in the midst of the eastern upheavals and in possession of first-hand information about conditions in China, Korea and Japan.

In opening his address the speaker declared that there was "never quite such an hour as this in the history of the Christian church." He stated as an axiom of Christian faith that "God wills the universal domination of His Son," and asserted that "God is building in those eastern lands a new civilization. At the bottom of the present civil strife in China is the Christian religion."

Tonight's session was taken up with reports from several districts. Tomorrow's program will be featured by an address by Bishop W. P. Beauchamp.

PEPS NOSE OUT COLLEGE PARK QUINT, 20-19

Two close games resulted in Tuesday night's play of the Dixie loop of the Y church leagues at the Y court.

The strong Pep class quint won from College Park, 20 to 19. West End Presbyterians defeated Third Baptist, 19 to 17. In the other two games played, the Anchor class won from the Gideons, 25 to 20; and Western Heights Baptist defeated the Boethians, 36 to 15.

Play in the Pep game was fast and furious throughout. Neither team held any great advantage, and a goal in the last few minutes gave the Peps their victory. Allen, flashy forward for the winners, was high point man with a total of 12 to his credit. Hutcheson, forward on the losing team, was next with nine points. Endicott, of the Peps, failed to go on his usual scoring jag, but played a good floor game.

Dean Rusk Stars.

Dean Rusk, center for West End, was the main factor in his team's victory, getting 10 points, and playing a fine floor game. Willis, the losers' center, was high scorer for his side, with eight points. This was another hard fought game, and both teams were about evenly matched.

The Anchors improved somewhat over the form displayed in last week's play, and outfought the Gideons to win. Owen, Anchor forward, was high point man of the game with a total of 15.

Western Heights, led by the work of Moon and Tasker, had little trouble in defeating the Boethian quint. Tasker, as usual, was high scorer, with 10 points. Reeves played best for the losers, getting eight points.

HEEKE STARS AS TECH RATS WIN, 28-23

BY JULIAN SAKS.

The Wesleyan quintet from Tennessee staged a last-half rally that cut deeply into the Tech Freshmen's 13-point lead, but the rally fell short and Bill Fincher's Rats finally won out, 28 to 23. During the first half the Tech Rats jumped into the lead and, with the aid of Heeke, the freshman right guard, they piled up a total of 20 points by the time the halfway mark had been reached. Heeke, who shot 14 of the 20 by tossing six field goals and both his free tries through the basket, was easily the star during the first half. It was his shooting and guarding that enabled the Rats to pile up their lead and keep the score of the Wesleyans down to 7 points, consisting of two field goals and three free throws.

During the second part of the game there was a different story. The Tennesseans turned the tables and throttled the Rats' scoring as completely as Tech's had been during the first part of the game, limiting the freshmen's score to 8 points, consisting of one field goal each by Coker, Nickols and Oltz, and two gift shots by Coker. At the same time the two Wesleyan forwards, Browder and Thomas, broke through the Rat defense and cut down their lead.

Heeke's goal shooting won him high-point honors, with 14 points. The Wesleyan forwards, Browder and Thomas, were second and third, respectively, with 8 and 7 points each.

SEED LOAN MEASURE IS PASSED BY SENATE

Washington, February 8.—(AP)—The $8,600,000 seed loan bill was passed today by the senate with provision for cotton farmers as well as northwest grain growers.

With the approval of Senator Norbeck, republican, South Dakota, amendments were added to permit the loans for obtaining seed in cotton states and for sugarcane crops in Florida and Louisiana.

As sent to the house the bill stipulates that $5,000,000 shall be for farmers in North Dakota, South Dakota and Montana and $2,500,000 for the drouth-stricken areas in South Carolina, Georgia and west Alabama.

Ty Cobb Announces He Will Sign With Athletics

Salary of $60,000 Reported Offered Former Tiger Pilot

Georgia Peach Announces at Baseball Writers' Dinner That He Will Sign With Mack's Clan—Fails To Divulge Details of Contract.

Philadelphia, February 8.—(Special.)—Tyrus Raymond Cobb in a speech at the Baseball Writers' association dinner tonight announced that he would play with Connie Mack's Athletics this season.

No details of the contract were divulged By Cobb who made the announcement casually during the course of a speech devoted mostly to other matters, but it is reported that he will receive $60,000 a season.

Concluding a lengthy speech, Cobb said:

"It gives me great pleasure to announce that I will play with the Athletics next summer."

An ovation greeted his words. Cobb did not say when the deal had been closed. Connie Mack was not present.

It had been practically assured that Cobb would join the Athletics for the last 48 hours as he came here from New York Monday night for the expressed purpose of conferring with Mack after failing to make a satisfactory connection in New York, where he dickered with numerous baseball executives.

Cobb's signature on the dotted line brings a definite end to the aftermath of the winter scandals which involved him and Tris Speaker, former manager of the Cleveland Indians, in an alleged conspiracy to throw a baseball game.

Cobb stated that he expected to play right field for the Mack clan and also that he was confident that the Athletics would cop the 1927 pennant of the American league.

With Cobb added to the combination of Wheat and Simmons the Athletics should have one of the strongest outfields in the league. All can hit as well as field and should prove a winning combination.

While Cobb was hunting rabbits a week ago in Georgia, Tris came east and reached an agreement with Clark Griffith to play this year with the Washington Senators. Cobb, however, found the job hunting more difficult, although he was sought by several club owners who apparently were not willing to pay as much as the Philadelphia Athletics.

Atlanta Women's Golf TourneyDateChanged

Rearrangement of the tournament schedule that will bring the annual city women's championship tournament from autumn to spring together with the initial plans for an unprecedented year of activity featured the annual meeting of the Atlanta Women's Golf association at the Biltmore hotel Tuesday. Mrs. John Hill was elected president of the organization for 1927.

The women's city tourney will be staged over the East Lake course early in May. Heretofore it has been held in November. The chief reason for changing the date of this tournament is to allow the Atlanta entries in the Southern Women's Golf association's annual tournament to acquire the match play seasoning provided only in tournaments. The southern affair will be held this year in Laurel, Miss., and will be staged during the latter part of May.

The first official activity of the organization will be staged at the Ansley Park course next Monday morning and will be one of those ludicrous "monkey tournaments." Present plans for this affair signify that more fun than could be provided by a sackful of Simians will be on hand.

In the election, Mrs. John Hill was made president; Mrs. A. Guy Smith, vice president; Mrs. L. H. Beck, secretary; Mrs. Clarence Bradley, treasurer; Mrs. Helen Dargan Lowndes, chairman of the handicap and tournament committee, which post she held last year; Mrs. W. D. Doak was appointed representative at East Lake; Mrs. C. F. Williamson at Ansley Park, and Mrs. Gilbert Marshall at Druid Hills.

The gold golf pin, the trophy for the winner of the annual point competition in class A went to Mrs. Bradley. Mrs. Roy Burns took this trophy in class B, and in addition to this took the prize for making the greatest reduction in handicap for the year. Mrs. Burns cut her handicap from 44 strokes to 27.

In the ringer score awards, Mrs. Guy Smith was the East Lake winner of class A. In the class B ringers, Mrs. A. R. Gallencamp and Mrs. Roy Burns tied at the same club.

Manrico Winner Of All-Age Stake

Union Springs, Ala., February 8.—(AP)—"Manrico," owned by Jacob France, and handled by Chesley Harris, took first place and the $750 award in the all-age stake to close the thirty-second annual meeting of the Continental Field Trials club here today. "McTyre," with the same owner and handler, was awarded second place money of $250 in the event.

The judges for the trials, J. D. Ellis, of Union Springs, and Dr. Leigh Buckner, of Roanoke, Va., did not call a second series in the all-age, but made their decision and announced the winner from the first series. The performances of the two dogs in the first series was so outstan[illegible] that it was not deemed necessary [illegible]all a second running, officials said.

MERCER BEARS MEET CITADEL FIVE TONIGHT

Macon, Ga., February 8.—(Special.)—Coach Moore, accompanied by eight Mercer cage stars, will leave tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock for Savannah, where tomorrow night the first of a three-game series will be played with the Citadel quintet.

Captain Green, Smith, Parks, Dicks, McCart, Querry, Butts and either McWilliams, Owens or Carpenter will accompany the Bear mentor.

Word was received here today that Savannah is planning a royal welcome for the Mercer and Citadel players during their visit to the port city. Several dances and theater parties have been arranged for the men.

A light practice this afternoon was the last before the series. The squad ran through a few formations and then spent the remainder of the afternoon at goal shooting. The team seems to be in fine mettle.

Immediately after the games with Citadel in Savannah Wednesday and Thursday nights the two teams leave for Charleston, where Friday night the last fracas of the series will be played. Saturday evening Mercer plays the Charleston college quintet.

The Bears return to Macon Sunday for the game with the University of Florida Monday night.

National League Increases Penalty For "Gift" Games

New York, February 8.—(AP)—The National league put itself on record today as willing to go Commissioner Landis one better in penalizing ball players who make "gifts" to another club as a reward for performances in any stage of the pennant race.

The commissioner, as a result of his recent scandal investigations, urged a regulation fixing a year's ineligibility as punishment for making such "gifts," but the National league club owners, in midwinter session today, recommended that the penalty be increased to three years.

Testimony before the commissioner in his hearings into the Risberg-Gandil charges at Chicago brought out admission by members of the White Sox that in 1917 they raised a pool to reward Detroit players for beating the Boston Red Sox in a crucial series. It was generally understood that this practice was common a decade ago among pennant-contending clubs in the major leagues.

Approves Other Rules.

The National league also put its full stamp of approval on the commissioner's other recommendations growing out of the scandal probe. These included (1) a statute of limitation by which charges such as those of Risberg and Gandil would be outlawed after a five-year lapse; (2) ineligibility for one year for a player who bets on a game other than one in which he performs; (3) permanent ineligibility for a player who bets on a game in which he participates.

The American league, also meeting here, deferred definite action on these regulations. Acting President Frank J. Navin said they had been tabled until the "next meeting" which is not scheduled until next winter, but baseball men understood the proposed new code of rules would come up tomorrow at a meeting of the joint major league "steering committee."

Both leagues ratified the 1927 schedules, calling for opening games on April 12 and the closing on October 2, one week later than last year. The opening games are listed as follows:

American League.

Detroit at St. Louis.
Chicago at Cleveland.
Boston at Washington.
Philadelphia at New York.

Brooklyn at Boston.
New York at Philadelphia.
Pittsburgh at Cincinnati.
St. Louis at Chicago.

The National league reappointed its staff of umpires except for the substitution of Louis Jordan, of New Orleans, Southern association arbiter for six years, for Monroe Sweeney.

The proposed new major-minor league draft agreement was approved by the club owners of both leagues, but this amounted to merely a gesture inasmuch as the leading minor organizations, including the Pacific Coast, International and Western, already have rejected the proposal.

Schaefer, Hoppe Meet.

New York, February 8.—(AP)—Jake Schaefer and Willie Hoppe will meet in a 3,000 point billiard match at 18.1 balkline for five days starting February 16 with no title at stake. Schaefer waived his right to the 18.1 championship he won from Willie Hoppe last year when the sponsors of champion contests protested that Hoppe's failure to defend his title for a decade before 1926 made his title claims invalid.

NEW ENGLAND A. U. PROTESTS WIDE EXHIBITS

Boston, Mass., February 8.—(AP)—A protest against permitting Edvin Wide, Swedish middle distance running star, to appear in any so-called exhibition races in this country, will be lodged with the National A. A. U., by the New England branch, the Boston Herald says today.

The New England A. A. U. feels, The Herald says, that Wide is now "in the hands of exploiters," as was the case with Charlie Hoff, pole vaulter extraordinary, and Paavo Nurmi, Finnish distance marvel, whose track and field exploits in this country later were overshadowed by expense account and itinerary squabbles.

The New England association is represented as feeling that Wide's appearance in exhibition or match races ultimately will lead to situations such as arose after the "barnstorming" tours of Hoff and Nurmi, and that in order to prevent a repetition in Wide's case every effort should be made to prevent his appearance on the track here except in meets or races duly sanctioned by the A. A. U.

Another Bout Added To Thursday Show At City Auditorium

Fearing knockouts in the three 10-round events may abbreviate the card to a point that the public might not be entirely satisfied, Burt Miller, promoter and matchmaker, Tuesday announced that for the Thursday night program in the auditorium he has added a six-round fight between Kid Carter and Kid Warshaw, and a battle royal between the regulation five Senegambians, which will give the spectators 36 rounds, if all events go the limit, in addition to the opening number.

Few promoters have had as much consideration for their public. A knockout as a general rule is just as pleasing—perhaps more so—as a fast boxing exhibition. However, Miller is convinced after watching Tut Jackson, of Washington Courthouse, Ohio, and Bob Lawson, the Alabama heavyweight, in action, that the main event will stop short of the 10-round distance; also that the Tiny Roberts-Howard Sargent semi-final will surprise if it goes the distance.

A Slashing Fight.

Besides, he has his own ideas about the Eddie Harris-Stiles Attaway bout and from the evidence he has gathered he believes this will be a slashing fight with the loser hearing the fatal ten.

As for the six-round opener, it should be a snappy boxing exhibition, although Kid Carter showed his hitting power in his match with Marty McCue at the last show, stopping that worthy in four rounds. Kid Warshaw, however, is said to be a more formidable opponent for Carter and should be able to give as much as he gets in return.

A disagreement over the referee—Tut Jackson and his manager, W. F. Evans, holding out for one certain man—has temporarily blocked the efforts of the promoter to decide upon the third man in the ring in the main event, but he hopes to have that patched up today or at least by Thursday morning.

Tut, while failing to damage his man to any extent, showed up surprisingly well against Tiger Flowers in the gymnasium Tuesday; Jackson is much bigger and naturally slower and Flowers, a former world's champion, outboxed him but not by any considerable margin, and Jackson showed enough skill to merit consideration as a winner in his match with Bob Lawson.

The gymnasium was packed with fans all of whom were of the opinion at the finish that the victor Thursday night will have survived a stormy session.

Athletic Club Cagers Invade Athens Today

The Atlanta Athletic club quintet will embark this afternoon at 2 o'clock for Athens, where tonight they will battle the Georgia Bulldogs in the first of a two-game series to be played on the home-and-home basis. The Bulldogs will return to Atlanta Saturday and the final tilt of the two-stand program will get under way at the Athletic club that night.

Coach Joe Bean said Tuesday night that he was going to take 10 men with him on the Athens trip. The men will be Stephens, Brewer, McCrorey, Johnson, Preas, Bennett, Beil, Eckford, Bass and Latimer. The first five mentioned are forwards, the next three centers and the latterly two are guards. It might be added that they are excellent ones, as is the rank and file of the A. A. C. game.

The A's should not encounter much trouble in downing Georgia, even though the game is being played on a court that is foreign to them. Georgia is not making a very loud splash in basketball circles this year, and the Athletic club boasts one of the strongest teams in this section of the country, despite the fact that they are still smarting under a 41-23 defeat at the hands of Georgia Tech last Saturday.

Pat Stephens, Brewer and Joe Bennet, who is opposing his alma mater, comprise a trio of basket-shooters that will probably give the Georgia guards more than they can handle. On the other hand, the Georgia outposts will encounter untold trouble in attempting to get around Bass and Latimer, the A. A. C. guarding duo.

Fighters, Managers Suspended by Board

New York, February 8.—(AP)—The New York state athletic commission today suspended Charley (Phil) Rosenberg, of New York; Bushel Graham, of Utica, and their managers pending an investigation on Friday into the contracts for the match in which Rosenberg defeated Graham last week at Madison Square garden. Rosenberg had forfeited the world's bantamweight championship by scaling 122 1-2 pounds for this bout.

One hundred yards in 51 1/5 seconds! This is the swimming record established in 1924 in a 120-foot tank.

Back in 1906, Piedmont became one of the five leading cigarette brands—and has been one of the five every year since. Think of it—twenty years; longer than the whole life of many brands. A lasting proof of the rich, mellow goodness of Piedmont's straight Virginia tobacco.

Note. With the sole exception of our celebrated Richmond Straight Cuts, Piedmont is the only "Virginia tobacco" cigarette enjoying a national sale.

DISCIPLINE.

They all heard the queer crack in Mr. Hertzog's voice and then they saw that his eyes were full of tears.

Miss Jacobs rose. "Do you want I should send for Mr. Lyman, Mr. Hertzog" she asked.

He continued to look at her without answering but with that smiling, crying face, so, taking him by the arm, she began to walk with him back to his office. He went with her simply enough, but as she was about to leave him he asked her again in a husky gasp of pain, "Crazy boy?"

Shortly after the president of Perfection Pictures had disappeared into his own room again a muffled "Henry" sounded from there, and Mr. Horner jumped and sped in like a hot shot. There he did some telephoning in a subdued voice, then came to the door and beckoned in Phil Nathan. Presently the hall door of Mr. Hertzog's office opened and closed, as if someone had gone out. Still Mr. Horner did not return. Nor did Phil Nathan.

The office being left leaderless, Miss Browne, once a public school teacher and given to initiating large community movements, conceived an idea. Why not start a farewell testimonial to Mr. Horner? She herself headed the subscription list, passing the paper to H. Jerome Hubbard, one of the two college graduates. It was well under way when Mr. Horner, after a singularly long absence, returned to his flock.

His presence automatically suppressed its travels, but not before his blood had begun to run cold with swift apprehension of the truth. He knew that whether such a token is a gold fountain pen or a claw paperweight, its inescapable doom is that it will never work and that it will last forever. He knew yet more troubledly that the meagerest subscription, out of thirty dollars a week, costs at least a lunch. His forebodings kept an anxious eye on the becalmed sheet of paper.

The afternoon passed; synopsis and reports piled up; dusk lowered, draped in sepulchral silence. Presently the hall door of Mr Hertzog's office opened again; then someone could be heard moving about and handling the things on his desk. Almost at the same moment Phil Nathan came in with a fresh, outdoor look about him, went quickly up to Mr. Horner and told him something very earnestly in low tones. Returning to his place at the readers' table, he left Mr. Horner strangely preoccupied, scrawling meaningless pencil marks. So that under the very nose of the office head Phil Nathan was presented with the subscription list.

For good or ill design people with clever brains and clever fingers are apt to give their own twist to other people's intentions. Nathan not only signed but threw a thumbnail caricature of Lyman under his signature. The likeness was speaking, but it spoke maliciously and sent little Mr. Thompson into a fit of giggles. Under it Mr. Thompson set down a joke—a joke about Lyman's yearning after the general managership—and passed the paper to H. Jerome Hubbard. Who shrugged amusement, and, with the motion of flicking a cigaret, knocked off an epigram instead of ashes—an epigram about Lyman's failure to cut out Leland. As the ladies took their turn hisses and unseemly mirth began to rise like steam. Till girlishness went absolutely to Miss Frye's head, for she crumpled the paper into a ball and threw it to Cornelia.

While the ball was still in the air two things happened. The mild but disciplinary roundness of Mr. Horner's astonished gaze turned upon the scenario department as appallingly as a Kleig, so that its hissing died out as if somebody had turned off the steam. Also Mr. Herzog's door opened and Lyman stood upon the threshold.

As in his father's likeness he had his hat on and a cigar hung from his lips. There was a book under his arm; also there was blood in his eye, for he perceived a crisis. He saw a ball of paper drop into Cornelia's lap, say Phil Nathan, the last person to cold shoulder any mischief of his own making, snatch it from her, saw Mr. Horner make a slight signal that the paper should be handed to him.

A moment ago the whole scenario department had been jibbering like a cage of monkeys. And as soon as he, Lyman, appeared it was struck dumb. Had it been jibbering about him? And was the jibbering connected with anything on that paper? Nathan, who had been inclined to stick to his guns, yielded up the paper at Mr. Horner's second signal. Embarrassment of more kinds than one prevailed in the scenario department. Lyman said, "Let's see what you've got there, Horner, that's so funny." One skimming glance assuring Mr. Horner that the subscription list had become a hanging matter for every member of the department, he replied, "O, it's just some notes I've turned up."

The scenario department breathed hard. And stared at Lyman. Significantly, it never even glanced at Mr. Horner. That he would give up the paper never crossed its mind.

Yet Mr. Horner sat there laxly and the drawl of his hesitating speech came softly as oil on troubled waters. "O, it's just a kind of personal matter, Lyman. It wouldn't interest you a bit."

Mr. Horner looked at his watch, said, "Five of" to his readers, and nodded dismissal.

"I'm waiting, Horner!" Lyman insisted. And folded his arms, remembering Napoleon.

"We dismiss at five of," said Mr. Horner very rationally, as if that were what Lyman were waiting for. "Is your car outside? Or I'd be glad to drive you down?"

As it became clear that he was being defied. Napoleon flew into as many pieces as Humpty Dumpty.

"Stop where you are, all of you!" He sprang to the readers' table and with his favorite emphasis, struck his fist on it. "You're dismissed when I tell you so. And when I don't tell you so, you ain't." He turned back to Mr. Horner, who had risen at the blow on the table. "I guess you don't know who you're talking to, do you?"

Standing lax as ever, Mr. Horner mildly drawled, "Why, I guess I do, yes."

"Then give me that paper!" He rapped on the table with the book he carried. "You needn't think, Hornner, just because you're bounced you can show off around here doing any way you damned please. Till you leave this room you're hired by Hertzog's and what you're hired for is to do as you're told."

"You're not going to leave this room till you've handed me that paper. Nor till these people you've petted up to think you're God Almighty have seen you hand it to me. I've got to have discipline in this office," yelled Lyman, again hammering the table with his book, "if we all have to stay here all night. But," he added, as Mr. Horner put on his hat and lifted a package from his desk, "when you do go, be sure you take your trick fans with you!"

Trio of Wedding Ceremonies Hold Attention of Society

Weddings are a source of never failing interest and today's social program features three ceremonies that are of particular interest to Atlanta society. The marriage of Miss Susan Frances Tennant, of Augusta, Ga., and William Douglas Ellis III, of this city, will be brilliantly solemnized at the Green Street Presbyterian church in Augusta this evening. A large number of relatives and friends of the groom's family, who is numbered among Atlanta's most socially prominent, will journey to Augusta for this fashionable occasion. Though Atlanta gains a charming acquisition to its exclusive social circles in the future Mrs. W. D. Ellis III, we lose to Macon society our lovely Martha Stanley, who will be claimed as the bride of T. R. Waggoner, of that city, at the same hour of the Augusta ceremony, the wedding of Miss Stanley and Mr. Waggoner to take place at the home of the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Stanley, in the Pershing Point apartments.

Another wedding of importance to many Atlantans is that of Miss Aileen Bricker, who will plight her troth today under far-away Mexican skies to George M. Garcia Hevia, of Mexico City, whose father served as premier during the presidency of Madero. Miss Bricker was accompanied to Mexico City by her parents, Dr. and Mrs. L. O. Bricker, the marriage service to take place at the home of the groom's father, this being an ancient custom of that country.

The recent announcements made of other engagements foretell of future weddings and each day the social calendar features parties honoring these lovely brides-to-be. Among those who will be honor guests today at social affairs are Miss Margaret Rogers and Miss Kitty Hagood, two popular February brides-elect.

The O. B. X. Sorority of Washington seminary meets Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at Miss Ruth Miller's, on Palisades road. Plans will be discussed for the script dance, sponsored by the sorority, which has been postponed until Monday evening, February 14, at Garber hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Harling Honor Their Sons.

Yellow and white spring flowers were gracefully arranged throughout the house. The place cards, favors, mints, cakes and ices were also of yellow and white.

Kindergarten To Celebrate Birthday of Founder.

On Friday morning, February 11, at 10 o'clock, the Nellie Peters Black kindergarten will celebrate the birthday of the founder of this kindergarten, the late Mrs. Nellie Peters Black. The affair will be in the nature of a valentine party and will assemble a large number of prominent Atlantans who are interested in the kindergarten and the parents of the children who attend. Those Atlantans who are interested are cordially invited to attend. The school is situated in Joyner park at the Luckie Street school.

Decatur Woman's Club To Give Bridge Benefit.

Children's Matinee At Fairfax Theater.

One of the most enjoyable features of the Saturday morning matinee, February 12, sponsored by the East Point Woman's club at the Fairfax theater, will be the concert prologue given by the Boys' band.

Those who have had the pleasure of hearing this band, under the direction of Mr. Deggendorf, know the pleasure in store for them. Harry Cary, with his burro in a thrilling western picture, "Drifting Through," will delight his youthful admirers. The comedy is one of many laughs and animated cartoons of an Aesop's fable.

The club will meet at Central School building Friday, February 11 at 3 o'clock for their regular business meeting.

Prominent Guests Given Luncheon By Bank Officials

J. J. Pelly, president of the Central of Georgia railway, and Mrs. Pelly, of Savannah; their guest, Mrs. Maxey, of Chicago, Ill.; Governor Walker, chief executive of Georgia, and A. B. Choral Division Presents Program At Woman's Club

The choral division of the Atlanta Music club presents the annual program Wednesday morning at the Atlanta Woman's club at 11 o'clock. Forty voices and four assisting artists will appear on the program. "The Lady of Shalott," the cantata based on the Tennyson poem and set to music by Bendall, will be the feature of the concert, and will be made especially interesting by Mrs. Merrill Hutchinson's reading of the theme. Miss Lydia Owens Wheeler will be the soloist of the occasion and Donald Kissano will play the violin, accompanied by John Gordon Moore at the piano.

Miss Wheeler is a pupil of Miss King and has formerly studied under Nevada Van de Veer. Mr. Kissano is the head of the violin school at the Morgan-Stephens conservatory and is a pupil of Pier Tirindelli, Jean Ten Have and Eugene Ysaye; and John Moore, the accompanist, is well known in local circles for his talents. Mrs. Hutchinson, the reader, is a member of the faculty of Washington seminary.

The chorus members include Mesdames R. W. Althisar, S. H. Browning, Lillian Alteneder, Swan Burnett, J. M. Dunningham, Lillie D. Caldwell, Walter Cullars, J. T. de Liesseline, C. L. Greene, Edwin Harling, N. J. Herbolsheimer, H. C. Hanson, David J. Jenkins, R. E. Lipham, Eugene McElroy, Emory Merck, Miss Hortense Moran, B. J. Rector, J. E. Springer, G. E. S. Sauls, Fred Thomas, F. W. Truluck, William Talley, F. H. Walker, Miss Grace Williams, W. A. Whitman, Baron Asher, Emmie Ballew, Annie Lou Curry, C. H. Ragland, W. H. Pickett, Jr., L. D. Smith and Clyde Withers. Guest singers in the chorus will include Mesdames Charles Chalmers, G. E. Cooper, Virginia Martin and Lillian Smith.

Visitors are invited to attend and register in the guest booth kept by Mrs. E. K. Davis, membership chairman. Admission will be by card, and for visitors a charge of 50 cents will be made.

J. Carroll Payne, president of the Atlanta Art association, announces a course of story-telling hours for children at the High Museum of Art, 1032 Peachtree street, beginning Friday afternoon, February 18, at 3 o'clock, conducted by Mrs. Charles Goodman, who has had broad experience in this line of entertaining and instructing children, and brings to this especial course the new material gathered from her recent travels in the Holy Land of Europe.

Mrs. Goodman will begin with the story of the Nativity as a subject which artists have always aspired to paint, carrying the children through the history of the Christian era as it inspired the art of the early Christians. She will tell the stories of the saints, of Egyptian craftsmen and of Greek mythology, and the part these subjects played in the art of the period leading up to and including the Renaissance, handling her material in simple language and illustrating with many interesting pictures and souvenirs of the countries.

These classes will be held every first and third Friday afternoons of the month from 3 until 4 o'clock, entirely free to children of the city, but as seating capacity is limited it will be necessary to register to secure a seat. For further information call the High museum, Hemlock 2173, during office hours.

Benjamin S. Barker, Jr., To Wed Miss Goode, of Macon, Feb. 26

Owing to the prominence of the two families, social interest throughout the state centers in the approaching marriage of Miss Helen Elise Goode, of Macon, to Benjamin S. Barker, Jr., of Atlanta.

The wedding will be a brilliant event of Saturday, February 26, taking place at high noon at the home of the bride-elect at 331 Vineville avenue, in Macon.

The lovely bride-elect is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Edgar Goode, leaders in the social, civic and religious life of Macon, her father being well known throughout the south as a cotton merchant.

After finishing high school, she attended Brenau college at Gainesville, later finishing her education at Winston-Salem college in North Carolina. Since leaving school, she has traveled extensively, having spent several seasons in the Florida resorts, and has been an admired figure in society though she has never made a formal debut.

Inheriting a background of culture and refinement through many generations, Miss Goode has endeared herself to a host of friends by her personal charm, her sunny disposition and high mental attainments.

The groom-elect is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin S. Barker, influential and beloved Atlanta citizens. His father, who is executive secretary of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, is recognized among the civic leaders of the south as a factor for the goal of industrial and financial development.

The popular young groom-elect graduated from Georgia Tech with the class of 1915 and was a member of the Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity. He served his country during the late war as a lieutenant in the aviation branch of the service.

He is the brother of Mrs. R. C. Hamilton, of Dahlonega, of W. Reynolds, of Birmingham, Ala.

Mr. Barker holds the responsible position of southern representative for E. F. Houghton and company and is a popular member of business, social and club circles of the city.

Following the wedding he and his bride will make their home in Atlanta, where Miss Goode, as Mrs. Barker, will prove a delightful acquisition to the social life.

Mrs. Asa J. Patterson Honored At Lovely Buffet Luncheon

Spring flowers adorned the apartments where fifty members of the younger married set were received, while in the dining room the table was covered with a Venise lace cloth. A silver candelabrum held yellow candles and graced the center of the table, encircled by four silver baskets holding vari-colored spring flowers, with jonquils predominating in the color scheme. Yellow bon bons and mints further suggested the decorative motif.

Mrs. Patterson, the hostess, was gowned in black velvet. The guest of honor wore a gown of blue chiffon beaded in crystal design. Mrs. Ryman's gown was of lavender chiffon.

Mrs. Glen Ryman entertained at a bridge-tea Monday afternoon at her home on Northwood drive, in compliment to her sister, Mrs Patterson inviting twelve guests to meet the attractive visitor, who has been entertained at a series of informal parties.

Mrs. Blackford Is Complimented At Party Series

Mrs. L. W. Robert entertained at luncheon Tuesday at the Piedmont Driving club in honor of Mrs. Walton Blackford, of Springfield, Mass., who is visiting her sister, Mrs. Louis Muldrow, and her mother, Mrs. Joseph Bowen.

A color motif of yellow, pink and lavender was daintily carried out in the floral decoration of the handsomely appointed table. Covers were placed for 16 guests.

Mrs. Blackford will be honored at a number of delightful informal social affairs during her visit. Among those who will entertain for this former Atlantan will be Mrs. Frank Marsh, who will be hostess at a Valentine luncheon Monday, February 14, at the Druid Hills Golf club.

Slams and Salaams

By Louise Dooly

A SPANISH lady of a by-gone age was the theme of a painting on the wall which faced a tea-drinking group of women as typically modern as today.

The picture lady sat erect in her brocade chair, and yet she seemed at ease. Her hands were idle in her lap, but one thought of them, not as useless hands, but as fulfilling their purpose in being beautiful. Lilies of the field.

"I wonder if she was comfortable like that," commented one of the loungers, her knees crossed, body sunk well down in a pampering lounge, and her shoulders drooping forward though in all their slenderness they were too great a weight, "It would wear me out to sit like that."

"Did you ever try it? questioned a woman whose Victorian youth had provided no chairs that could be slouched in.

The others laughed.

"Perhaps if the women of this generation were to practice sitting up straight like the Spanish lady, without even resting against a ramrod chair we should not have weak backs?

"Weak backs? This generation? Nonsense!" fairly snorted an athletic sister.

"But you know we modern women couldn't sit bolt upright like that. We'd flop in no time."

And against the positiveness of such assertion, nobody had the backbone to argue.

THE USE OF one's own will power is getting to be so outmoded, that pretty soon anybody caught at it will appear as conspicuous as spats with a bathing suit.

First, it was the children who must be allowed to obey their inner promptings lest the habit of suppressed desire cramp their style when they grow up.

Suppose, for instance, little Willie has an urge to heave a brick through a court house window: by all means he must be encouraged to obey that impulse.

If, through the superior, and therefore cowardly strength of some unintelligent adult, like a parent or a teacher, Willie's impulse be curbed, an inhibition would likely be set up thereby, which, breaking out in later years, might prompt Willie to kill a judge or a sheriff.

THEN, THE 18th amendment was passed, which was going to keep people sober by law. The necessity for exercising the virtue of temperance—for using their will power, in other words—was going to be spared them.

And of course it isn't the fault of the amendment that some people still have to resist temptation or get drunk.

The instances are many, but one more is enough: the Judge Ben Lindseys of marriage "reform." They are not for free love. O no!

All they advocate is, that since marriage laws are stringent (?) and "irregularities" are thus growing more common, the marriage laws be loosened up.

WILL POWER? Why, what does it face but atrophy? Will power? It's as superfluous as tonsils.

But, by the way, didn't I hear lately that tonsils may, after all, belong in the economy of things?

Who knows? Perhaps even will power may some day have to be invited back into good society.

THEY MUST have had a great time in London the other day when G. K. Chesterton accepted Lady Rhondda's challenge to a debate on her much discussed statement that the leisure woman is a peril to civilization, and George Bernard Shaw presided. The whole was broadcast to a nation, which, it is said, was left still wondering after the debate was over.

Only the lady seemed to take her subject or the occasion seriously, possibly because she was not so gifted, as the men were, in putting her points forward cleverly; or more frequently in putting forward cleverness, as they did, in place of points.

Lady Rhondda gently blames the idle women for everything, including the world war: they were largely responsible for the "futility and enervation of cultured Europe" before the war; for the "drawing room atmosphere" of what should have been the thinking element of the people. Thus the debacle.

She blames the women of leisure now for the unbalanced state of Europe's finances (it's a relief to hear Uncle Sam exonerated, even at the expense of the women) because they emphasize the importance of luxuries and lead the women who can less afford luxuries to place a false value on them.

She shows how a woman can be idle and occupied at the same time; for instance, when her occupation means a house party one week at York, the winter sports at St. Moritz, the next the gaities of Biarritz the week after, and hunting for a quite superfluous house in London the week after that.

THE REAL bon mots of the occasion were made, of course, by the blithesome Chesterton. He accuses Shaw (no doubt twisting one of the verbal gallery plays of G. B. S. to suit his own purpose) of having said the "birth control has abolished children."

This was, said Mr. Chesterton, no doubt a phrase used by King Herod.

HE CONCEDES one point to Lady Rhondda: "There is danger," he admits, "in the leisure of woman. There is always the very serious danger that she may turn her attention to philanthropy or social reform. She may take up public work. In other words, she may occupy herself with oppression of the poor and interference with human liberty."

Stepping out of idle and empty home does not mean, according to Mr. Chesterton, entering into a Utopia of service to humanity.

He is all for defending "those little protected kingdoms of liberty and leisure" (because the home is the only place where there is any liberty or leisure left) and in the "blank and empty hours, after men and women too, have tried every other desperate expedient and drugged themselves with every other enjoyment, they might fall back on using their brains."

The full proof, however, of Mr. Chesterton's hopeless reactionism is that, in preference to the offensively busy woman, he prefers even "the great lady who lived walking about in an old garden. She was at least an ornament to the world."

WILL POWER and women who protect the leisure and the liberty of the home: two quite old-fashioned and, outgrown institutions, are they not?

Freedom and the right to happiness: the modern ends justifying any means, so the current world says.

But who knows? Maybe some day after all, that "desperate expedient," real thing, coupled with the inevitable fruits of experience, may send us back to those old fashions of will power and women in the home as the only workable means to secure that same freedom and happiness, the most modern—and the most ancient—of human desires.

Amundsen Lectures At Agnes Scott.

The third of the year's lectures will be given in the Agnes Scott auditorium Saturday, February 12, at 8:30 p' m. by Captain Roald Amundsen. This world renowned figure will talk on "From Rome to Teller by Airplane," illustrating his lecture with motion pictures of his thrilling adventures.

Agnes Scott students look forward with as much eagerness towards meeting Captain Amundsen as towards hearing of his remarkable experiences. Quoting a recent article: "To those who are privileged to hear Captain Amundsen tell the story it will be history humanized by the presence and dynamic personality of the principal actor in the great drama, the man who has been aptly characterized 'the world's greatest explorer.'"

It is to be expected that the entire community will take advantage of this very unusual opportunity. Tickets will be on sale at the door.

GATE CITY GUARD TO GIVE THEATER PARTY AND BALL

Plans for a combined theater party and ball at the Keith-Albee Georgia theater and the Henry Grady hotel, and other social affairs during the coming year, were made Monday night at the annual meeting of the Gate City Guard at the auditorium-armory. The first entertainment is to be held between March 1 and 15.

Medals will be given to the best-drilled men in the 122d infantry, it was decided at the meeting. Two medals are to be furnished by the Gate City Guard, to be drilled for by members of the regiment every three months. One medal will go to the best man not armed with a rifle, and the other to the best man with a rifle. Captain Alexander, Captain Benjamin T. Hulet and Lieutenant Charles Shaw were appointed as a committee in charge.

The following trustees were elected to serve during the next two years: Brigadier General Charles H. Cox, Major Charles M. Thompson, Major Gerald P. O'Keefe, Captain T. L. Alexendar, Captain Ed Green and Lieutenant Joe Spencer. Together with Commander Eugene Oberdorfer and Vice Commanders Harry Heinz and Roy LeCraw, they will form the executive committee.

JEWISH LEADER CANCELS ADDRESS SCHEDULED HERE

Dr. Chaim Weizman, noted Jewish leader who was to speak in Atlanta February 20 at the first regional conference of the United Palestine Appeal, will be prevented from filling this engagement because his presence is required at the special session of the American Jewish congress in Washington, D. C., on Februmary 20 to 22, it was announced Tuesday by Dr. Leo J. Frachtenberg, regional director of the local appeal headquarters.

Dr. Frachtenberg stated that the conference date here had been changed to March 20 with the hope of making Dr. Weizman's visit possible, but it was later learned that the famous zionist must return to Europe early in March. It was understood that an effort will be made to bring another leading American Jew to Atlanta to inaugurate the first regional conference in March.

ALIMONY COURT FIGHT REACHES SUPREME COURT

Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy in Fulton superior court Tuesday afternoon signed a bill of exceptions which carried a recent decision handed down in superior court to the Georgia supreme court.

The decision ordered Alex C. Werber to pay to his wife, Mrs. Mary L. Rice, $450 in delinquent alimony. Werber was arraigned in court after his wife had seen him on the streets of Atlanta during the Christmas shopping period. She immediately obtained services of a Fulton county deputy sheriff who carried Werber before Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy. Citation for contempt of court followed.

The bill of exceptions was drawn by Ernest C. Bell, Atlanta attorney, who presented it to the court for signature Tuesday afternoon. This is the first case of this nature to be carried to the supreme court, it is stated.

The appeal was based upon the grounds that the seven years had elapsed since the original judgment of alimony and that there has been no revival of the said judgment during a period of three years after the judgment had become dormant.

COLONEL PEEL LEAVES ESTATE TO DAUGHTERS

The will of the late Colonel William Lawson Peel, who died suddenly last Wednesday at the Georgian Terrace, was filed for probate in common form Tuesday in the office of the ordinary of Fulton county. The estate is estimated to be valued at approximately $300,000.

William H. Kiser and F. Phinizy Calhoun were named as executors. The residue of the estate was left to Colonel Peel's three daughters, with the exception of a few minor bequests, and is to be divided equally among his daughters, Mrs. Lucy Kiser, Mrs. Sara Peel Watts and Mrs. Marion Peel Calhoun.

Special bequests stipulated in the will are the following: To a nephew, James Peel Windsor, and four nieces, Hallie Windsor Baldwin, Lucy Lowrey Harper, Georgia Windsor McWhirter and Lucy Windsor Fulford, $2,000 each; to Mrs. Bertha Miles Windsor, widow of a deceased nephew, $1,000; to James A. Lowrey, a nephew, $200, and to Elizabeth Windsor and Martha Windsor, a life annuity of $600 to be paid at the rate of $50 per month for the remainder of their lives.

The executors are given complete authority to handle the estate as they see fit, transact all necessary business and hold real estate "as long as proper." The will explained that both executors were sons-in-law, and that a third son-in-law would have been included were he not a non-resident of the state. The will was signed and signatures attested on November 13, 1925.

MISS RAOUL URGES COMMISSION RULE IN LIONS SPEECH

Charging that every interest in Atlanta save that of the city employees is neglected under the present form of government and apathy of voters, Miss Eleanor Raoul, president of the Atlanta League of Women Voters, Tuesday afternoon in an address before the Lions club at the Winecoff hotel, urged adoption of commission-manager government in this city.

Miss Raoul explained that legislative and administrative parts of city government are separated under the commission-manager form and that ward politics are exterminated by the election of three councilmen at large in addition to the one for each of the twelve wards. While the League of Women Voters never supports any candidate for office, it sometimes sponsors measures it considers wise and sound, she declared.

Plans were discussed for attendance at the entertainment Monday in Macon for International President William A. Westfall, of Pennsylvania. A large delegation of Atlanta Lions will be led to Macon by Deputy Governor Jack O. Partain and President Joe B. Wolfe.

Entertainment at Tuesday's meeting was furnished by Miss Rose Cefalu and Mrs. Frank Birdsong, Miss Cefalu singing a number of songs to piano accompaniment by Mrs. Birdsong.

Dr. Grant Will Speak.

Dr. Horace Grant will speak at 7 o'clock Sunday night, February 13, at the Central Congregational church. His subject will be "The Serious Side of Life."

KIWANIANS PAY HONOR TO MEMORY OF PEEL

Dr. J. Sprole Lyons, pastor of First Presbyterian church, paid tribute to the late Colonel William Lawson Peel at a memorial meeting Tuesday of the Kiwanis club at the Ansley hotel. As a member of the club, Colonel Peel was known to his fellows as "Our Colonel," and he attended last week's meeting on the day before his death.

"Only with difficulty," Dr. Lyons said, "can I summon restraint to speak of him in the temperate terms his modest, self-effacing life demands. Today ours is a lodge of sorrow but the overwhelming sense of loss that weighs each heart may be lightened in a measure from the message of such a life as his; which is: that the only lives worth living are those that can look forward to the end with complacency."

"Though the death theme," the speaker continued, "was big in his heart weeks before the end, he was cheerful and content. On the day before his death he was happy in the assurance that the south would enjoy his grand opera selections, though he well knew he would never sit in his box again."

A musical program consisting of favorite numbers was given by Ed Bray, soloist, accompanied at the piano by Miss Eunice Prescott; and by a quartet composed of George Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Jennings and Miss Prescott, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Marjory Griffith. Among selections were, "Gypsy Love Song," and "Good-night, Good-night, Beloved."

John L. Westmoreland presided at the meeting and the program was in charge of James M. Cochran.

Romance Unfolds As Nurse Comes To Wed Patient

San Francisco, February 8.—(AP)—The love story of a Russian noblewoman has been unfolded here with the arrival of Princess Anatoliesna Kropatkin, widow of Prince Kropatkin, noted military leader, who came from Manchuria to wed the man she nursed to health in a Russian war hospital 10 years ago.

The man she will wed is Colonel Nicholas Rybakoff, once of the Russian army general headquarters staff, but now a mechanic in the employ of the Ford Motor company at Detroit.

Prince Kropatkin was killed in 1919. The war against the Russian nobility by the bolshevists was still being waged at that time and the Princess and Colonel Rybakoff were exiled. He proposed marriage, but they were separated, the princess going to Manchuria and Colonel Rybakoff coming to America.

As Colonel Rybakoff completed his plans for bringing the princess to America and making her his wife, the immigration law thrust itself between them. He appealed to friends in this country who aided in getting permission for the princess to enter.

The princess, who arrived here yesterday, has been teaching languages since her exile. She will go to Detroit at once.

RAILWAY SURGEONS WILL MEET FRIDAY IN ANNUAL SESSION

Members of the surgical association of the Atlanta and West Point, the Western Railway of Alabama, the Georgia and the Elberton and Eastern railways will hold their seventh annual convention at the Henry Grady hotel Friday, it was announced Tuesday by Dr. J. R. Garner, chief surgeon.

The program for the meeting will continue throughout the day and include scientific and general papers by leading surgeons of this section.

New York, February 8.—(AP)—The cotton market showed considerable irregularity in today's early trdaing, but after reacting from an early advance, firmed up again. May advancing from 13.93 to 14.08 in late trading, or even with the best price of late last week. May closed at 14.07, the general market closing very steady at a net advance of 7 to 10 points.

The market opened steady at unchanged prices to an advance of 3 points and showed net gains of about 6 to 8 points in early trading on covering by recent sellers and a little trade demand. Buying was promoted by reports of steadiness in Liverpool and the southern spot markets, while there also was some comment on rather unsettled weather conditions in the south.

The advance met realizing, however, and prices eased off during Monday, when the trade seemed more doubtful as to whether the farm relief bill would pass. There were rumors also that demand from spot shorts in the south had been satisfied. March declined to 13.73; July to 14.15, and October to 14.34, net losses of about 4 to 6 points, but offerings were comparatively light and prices advanced on a rnewal of covering. The late buying seemed to be stimulated by reports that the senate had agreed to vote on the McNary-Haugen bill at 4 o'clock on Friday, or just after the close of trading for the present week, as Saturday is a holiday both here and in New Orleans.

Prices sold back to approximately the best prices of last week, March advancing to 13.86, July to 14.30 and October to 14.49, and closed within a point or two of the best.

Private cables said hedge selling had been absorbed by trade calling in Liverpool and there was a good inquiry for a wide range of cotton goods in India, also a better outlook for Chinese business.

Exports today 36,837, making 6,937,583 so far this season. Port receipts 63,204. U. S. port stocks 2,881,748.

PRICES FIRMER AT NEW ORLEANS.

New Orleans, February 8.—(AP)—Reports that the senate had passed the farm relief bill pulled cotton prices out of the mire in the last hour of trading today and the close found them on high ground and going steadily with a gain of from 9 to 14 points for the day.

Confidence in the passage of the bill and unfavorable weather outlook held them steady on the firm upward path in the early trading hours until they showed gains of from 10 to 11 points. Ring traders blocked the path there, however, and shouldered them into the low spot of the day 1 to 2 points below the opening.

Before the farm relief tow arrived in the last hour of trading, March slumped to 13.75, May 13.91 and July 14.07, 12 to 13 points below the previous prices. All losses were regained and new highs for the day set in the closing rally which brought March to 13.92, May 14.07 and July to 14.22. The close was a little under the top.

Export, 36,837 bales.

Cotton goods held fairly steady with demand lighter than last week in unfinished cloth sections. Finished goods for wash fabrics departments were doing better. Burlaps were little changed at Calcutta and steady here.

A better demand developed on the reaction, with sales of at least 27,000 bags of Porto Rican and 153,000 bags of Cuban reported for February and March shipment at the quoted prices.

Raw sugar futures were easier early under liquidation and selling by trade and commission houses, promoted by the decline in the spot market. Prices showed declines of 2 to 3 points on active positions, but in late trading covering and buying for Cuban account turned the market firmer. All early losses were recovered with the close 1 to 3 points net higher. Approximate sales 58,000 tons. March closed 3.13; May, 3.24; July, 3.36; September, 3.43; December, 3.28.

NO ACTION TAKEN ON RADIO MEASURE

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

Washington, February 8.—Radio legislation was discussed again in the senate but without action. There were evidences of a filibuster against the conference report, which already has been approved in the house.

Senator Howell, republican, of Nebraska, who is leading the opposition, made a point of order against the conference on the ground that the conferees had exceeded their authority. Vice President Dawes overruled the point of order. Senator Howell appealed from the decision of the chair but it was after 6 o'clock and it was impossible to obtain a quorum so adjournment was taken.

Senator Dill, democrat, of Washington, who is in charge of the bill, said he would continue his efforts to obtain action but Senator Howell made it plain that he does not intend to permit it to come to a vote until after the farm bill is out of the way.

BETRAYAL BROUGHT HATE, SAYS KILLER

Portland, Maine, February 8.—(AP) "He dies," was the decision made nearly six years ago by Benjamin S. Turner when he found that James D. Hallen, more or less widely known, had betrayed him.

Turner, on the witness stand today in superior court at his trial for the murder of Hallen in the latter's summer home near here last September, told the story of his life. Asked by his counsel as to his reaction when he found that Hallen had taken his checks for $827, every cent he had in the world, and deserted him, a prisoner, charged with a murder in Mexico for which he was acquitted after two years' imprisonment, he said:

"My reaction was, 'he dies.' I reached that decision in August, 1921, while in prison in the city of Mexico."

"Stunned as I was," he testified, "I could not realize it was possible that a man like Hallen could have betrayed me—a man that I had trusted like a father. It was simply a case of love turning to hate."

Harry C. Libby, associate counsel, in opening for the defense stated that the breaking point in Turner's mental condition came, after months of confinement and worrying, on the morning of September 8, when Hallen denied his own name. The defense is that Turner was temporarily insane at the time Hallen was shot with seven bullets from an automatic revolver.

MORTGAGE GUARANTEE STOCKHOLDERS MEET

Reelection of officers and reports featured the annual meeting Tuesday of stockholders of the Mortgage Guarantee company of America. Joseph A McCord was renamed chairman of the board of directors, and H. C. Williams was reelected president.

Considerable interest was manifested over the report of the chairman of the board. Mr. McCord, who commented favorably upon the co[illegible]on of real estate and mortgage [illegible]stments in the vicinity of Atlanta and throughout the territory in which the company is engaged in making loans.

According to Mr. McCord, the company considered over 1,440 separate first mortgage loans during 1926, secured by improved property in cities of over 10,000 population, and the record of the company discloses the fundamental soundness of business conditions.

President Williams announced that while the institution approximately has six million dollars in outstanding first mortgages, only slightly above $700 of delinquent interest appeared on its books at the close of business for the past year.

According to other officers of the company the outlook for the coming business year is in every way promising, and the rate of increase in the company's volume of business will continue. The financial statement of the company furnished stockholders at the meeting, shows over $1,000,000 capital and approximately $100,000 surplus, after earning and paying five successive preferred dividends since its organization slightly over two years ago.

Present directors of the company were reelected, and the board is composed of Mr. McCord, chairman; Mr. Williams, president, and Messrs. E. G. Beaudry, Peter F. Clarke, D. A. Farrell, R. W. Freeman, Lee Hagan, Joseph A. McCord, Jr., George L. Morton, Byron Souders, John P. Stewart, C. V. Truitt and George W. Yancey.

Directors at their annual meeting following the session of the stockholders, announced that the expansion program of the company in widening its loan operations and in distribution of its first mortgage participation certificates, guaranteed jointly by the company and the National Surety company, would continue.

According to President Williams, these securities are now owned by investors in the majority of the states and in three foreign countries. "This," said Mr. Williams, "shows what investors throughout the country at large think of the value of southern mortgage investments."

The present officers of the company, all of whom were reelected for the ensuing year, are Joseph A. McCord, chairman of the board; H. C. Williams, president; Lee Hagen, vice president; Peter F. Clarke, treasurer; Joseph A. McCord, Jr., secretary; Basil Stockbridge, assistant to the president; George M. Elrod, assistant treasurer; T. W. Oastler and S. W. Florence, assistant secretaries, and Candler, Thomson & Hirsch, general counsel.

Market Gossip

(By Fenner & Beane Leased Wire to The Constitution)

BROKERS' STOCK OPINIONS.

Fenner & Beane: Considerable discrimination should be used in making new commitments until the Wheeling situation has been digested.

Clark Childs: This is the dangerous age.

Prince: There is every appearance in the market of a further broadening of the trading and rising prices in many places quite soon.

Keech: The ease with which lower-price rails recovered when the market turned would lead to the supposition that still higher prices can be expected for them.

CURB MARKET.

Another low-priced stock which has been under investigation by the curb authority, Kay Copper, lost most of its market value today in one sweeping crash which reduced it in a few hours from $1.25 a share to about 25c a share. This was about the only feature of a quiet and generally heavy market.

For many weeks Kay Copper stock has been apparently "pegged" around $1.25 a share, selling there in great volume every day. The curb market some time ago sent out to its members the usual questionnaire requiring them to state their position in this issue and was awaiting further information when the crash came today. No action was taken by the curb authorities today.

Other curb securities were generally reactionary.

DOW JONES REPORT.

Annual report of Baldwin Locomotive for 1926, which will be issued shortly, will be the best showing since 1925 and will be in marked contrast to poor equipment years of 1924 and 1925 when profits failed to cover dividend requirements.

Gross sales for 1926 are estimated at $46,000,000, which would compare with $27,876,064 in 1925 and with $26,080,352 in 1924. With better range of prices prevailing in the equipment market in 1926 it is estimated that Baldwin will show profits for 1926, including dividends from Standard Steel Works and Midvale Steel company, equivalent to roundly 10 per cent of gross sales.

Dividends on both classes of stock for 1927 at regular 7 per cent rate have been provided in a dividend reserve which will be set up out of surplus the same as has been done in the past several years. Income for 1926 will, of course, include profits on sale of the locomotives made to the Argentine five years before, payment which was made in November having amounted to $7,345,000, including principal and interest, and covered sales of locomotives and cash advanced five years before.

WALL STREET JOURNAL.

With nervousness regarding the extraordinary advance in the Wheeling & Western Maryland issues dissipated by news of the sound character of the buying, the whole market displayed a healthier tone today. Wheeling common scored a further sensational uprush when the shorts found they had no alternative other than to cover their contracts for the decline in the open market, while the preferred stock of the same road also moved ahead rapidly.

At the same time, Pittsburgh & West Virginia, which has a merger position somewhat similar to Wheeling, ran up to record levels, while Chicago & Great Western issues occupied a stretch of the tape nearly as large as those recently taken up by Wheeling & Western Maryland. Accumulation of Great Western appeared to be in recognition of its possibilities as an independent system in the Chicago-Kansas City territory.

American Smelting, Anaconda and other representative copper shares were subjected to pressure on the decline in the price of the metal to 12½ per cent, the lowest level in two and one-half years, while Steel shares were attacked by the bears on the announcement of price reductions affecting the output of mills in the Chicago district. But the Steel shares put forth stout resistance, sustained by the announcement of expanding operations, both at Gary and in the Mahoning valley.

The Day in Finance

New York, February 8.—Official announcement that New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Nickel Plate, and the Pittsburgh & West Virginia have each purchased a substantial interest in Wheeling & Lake Erie through stock acquired in the open market and from John D. Rockefeller throws much light on the sensational stock market action of Wheeling & Lake Erie which for weeks has been the great mystery of the stock market, monopolizing the attention of Wall street and other financial and railroad centers throughout the country. However, the feeling here is that there is another side to this story which has not as yet been made public.

According to the official announcement just made, B. & O. and New York Central, each purchased 55,000 shares of W. & L. E., the Pittsburgh & West Virginia 50,000 shares and the Nickel Plate 55,000 shares including common and preferred. W. & L. E. began to advance around the last week of December from below 30. The advance from 30 to 50 attracted attention, but the sensational price movement occurred from 50 on or since delivery of the stock was demanded last Friday a week ago. Trading in the stock from 50 up was comparatively light. Yesterday's sensation advance for example occurred with the turn over for the day only a bare 5,700 shares.

From the recent comparatively light daily turn over in the stock and from fact that stock was called for delivery, Wall street concluded that the sensational advance in W. & L. E. from 50 up was speculative, and not due to competitive buying by other roads for merger purposes. Wall street now frankly admits that the secret buying of W. & L. E. by New York Central, B. & O., the Nickel Plate and Pittsburgh & West Virginia was the starting point for the sensational movement in W. & L. E., but the feeling is that the advance from 50 on up was a speculative movement directed against the outstanding shorts by a group of men who capitalized the inside information that the floating supply of W. & L. E. had been greatly reduced through the purchases of W. & L. E. made by New York Central, B. & O., Nickel Plate and the Pittsburgh & West Virginia. Who is in this inside group, and how they managed to bring about a corner in W. & L. E. in the severe punishment recently given to the shorts is the side of the W. & L. E. story now attracting more attention than the fact that a substantial interest in W. & L. E. has been purchased by the four roads named.

MEDIATION BOARD GRANTS PAY RAISE

Washington, February 8.—(AP)—An agreement between southeastern railroads and labor organizations representing their train service employees granting a 7½ per cent wage increase, effective February 1, was announced today by the federal board of mediation. The settlement eliminated any possibility of a strike of brakemen and conductors and concluded negotiations which have been in progress here for a month.

Twenty trunk line railroads in the southeastern territory, including all the principal systems except the Southern railway, and 22,000 of their employes are covered by the agreement. The wage increase granted is identical in amount to that which was received by train service employees of eastern railroads, after being fixed by a board of arbitration arranged by the mediation board.

The roads affected by the increase are as follows: Chesapeake and Ohio; A. C. L., Norfolk and Western, Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac, S. A. L., Atlanta and West Point, Atlanta Joint terminals, Central of Georgia, Charleston and Western Carolina, Clinchfield railroad, Florida East Coast; Georgia Railway, Gulf Mobile and Northern, Jacksonville terminals Louisville, Henderson and St. Louis.

Unburied Bodies Are Found Lying In Desert Sands

Los Angeles, February 8.—(AP)—Deputy Sheriff Walter Keating returned today from a search for three missing Los Angeles men across the Mexican border of the Imperial valley, and reported that the bodies of numerous persons, many of whom he believed to be Americans, lay exposed on the sands of the Colorado-Madura river, where they are left unburied and unidentified by Mexican authorities.

Harry Wright, chief deputy sheriff, said that upon Keating's recommendation he plans to communicate with Mexican authorities to arrange for identification of the bodies. He said Keating expressed the belief that if the bodies could be photographed and fingerprints taken, the mystery concerning several people missing from Los Angeles would be cleared up.

OFFICERS REELECTED BY PIGGLY WIGGLY

Memphis, February 8.—(AP)—All officers and five directors of the Piggly Wiggly corporation were reelected at the annual meeting of the corporation here today. J. E. Maury was named president, R. F. Carr, vice president, and W. G. Morrison, secretary-treasurer. The five directors reelected were: P. W. Saunders, New Orleans; C. C. Warren, Jr., New York, and J. E. Lippitt, John C. Burch and E. G. Willingham, of Memphis.

40% Greater Savings

The average savings account per man, woman and child in the United States is $211. In the 14 states served by the Associated System it is $294, or nearly 40% larger.

The growth of the electric light and power industry depends upon the buying capaciy of its customers. The greater their purchasing power, the more they will avail themselves of the appliances and labor saving devices which the use of electricity affords.

The thrift and buying power of the population served by the Associated properties is reflected in the more than average growth in customers and electric output. The electric kilowatt hours sales increased 70% and the number of customers 75% since 1920.

CURB IS ERRATIC; TRADING HEAVIER

New York, February 8.—(AP)—Confused price movements characterized today's transactions in the curb market, but trading showed a substantial increase in volume. Collapse of Kay Copper from $1.25 to 25 cents a share, following the recent investigation into transactions in that issue, was one of the day's features.

Price movements in the oils continued to lack uniformity with most of the popular shares showing only fractional changes. Trading in the Southern American issues quieted down but prices held steady.

Several new high records were established in the industrial group. Remington noiseless typewriter crossed 37 to a new peak in sympathy with the rapid advance in the stock of the parent company on the "big board." Bancitaly corporation crossed 103 to a new peak but lost all its gain. Rand Kardex, which has been associated with Remington typewriter in merger rumors, closed unchanged at 70.

Motors were quiet, with prices fairly steady. Coal, radio and food shares also showed little change. A point advance in Snia Viscosa featured the artificial silk group. Universal pictures responded to a favorable earnings report by advancing to a new high level for the year.

New peak prices were registered in the public utility group by Associated Gas and United States Light and Heating.

AFRICAN THRILLS TOLD BY DOCTOR

New York, February 8.—(AP)—Dr. Daniel W. McMillan, retired physician, of Birmingham, Ala., today returned to this country on the Atlantic transport liner Minnetonka after an expedition into the African jungle during which his party was jailed for awhile by Portuguese on the suspicion they were British spies.

Dr. McMillan told of an attack on his baggage wagon and the seizure of supplies by African bushmen, of a gruelling search for a water hole when his expedition's water supply failed, and of bagging numerous African antelope and hippopotami. Setting out from Rhodesia May 15, 1926, the doctor and his only white companion, Dr. R. L. Magowan, of Rhodesia, reached Angora, Portuguese West Africa. At first the Portuguese civil administrator received them warmly. Dr. McMillan said this attitude suddenly changed when a statement charging the Portuguese with slavery, attributed to a Dr. Ross, of Wisconsin university, reached Portuguese officials. The party's arms were taken away and officials became hostile, he said. This brought the expedition to an end.

Frederick S. Colburn, of Chicago, a passenger on the White Star liner Cedric, also returned from a big game hunt in East Africa. He declared some Americans have spoiled big game hunting by their indiscriminate shooting. He bagged four male lions and a lioness and a variety of antelope and killed several rhinoceroses.

Total stock sales, 2,412,800 shares.

New York, February 8.—(AP)—Excited speculation in the railroad shares, several of which were bid up to record high prices on the flood of merger rumors which followed the announcement that control of the Wheeling & Lake Erie had passed from the Rockefellers to three eastern trunk line systems, overshadowed all other developments in today's active stock market. Total sales, which ran close to 2,500,000 shares were the largest of any session since last October.

Industrials showed more irregularity although a sensational advance of 21 1-2 points in Remington Typewriter common to a new high record at 160 1-2 on the resumption of dividends and merger rumors attracted widespread attention. Baldwin Locomotive and Hudson Motors showed substantial gains but several of the other recognized leaders such as U. S. Steel common, General Motors, Allied Chemical and American Smelting either showed little change or lost ground. Brokers reported that some of the liquidation in those issues was based on the belief that speculative activities in some other quarters were being carried to excess.

The large reduction in brokers' loans reported for last month by the New York Stock exchange had a favorable effect on sentiment. Money rates continued easy and dividend news was favorable, the United Fruit company declaring an extra payment of $1 50. Copper metal was quoted at 12 1-2 cents, the lowest price in nearly three years.

Contrary to earlier expectations, the stock exchange took no action to relieve the tension in the common and preferred stocks of the Wheeling & Lake Erie. The common soared 35 points to a new record high at 130 and then dropped back to 100, and the preferred fell from a high of 93 to 83.

Meanwhile spirited bidding developed for the common stocks of other carriers, new high records being established by Reading, Chicago Great Western common and preferred, Chicago & Eastern Illinois, Bangor & Aroostook, Pittsburgh & West Virginia, St. Paul common and preferred New York, Ontario & Western, New Haven, Texas & Pacific, Wabash common and Denver & Rio Grande Western preferred. Western Maryland issues lost ground.

The sharp run-up in Remington was associated with reports of an early merger of that company with Rand Kardex, and possibly Burroughs Adding Machine, but these lacked confirmation. Producers & Refiners, Middle States Oil, Barnet Leather, Marlin Rockwell and Murry Body corporation also reached new high ground.

Call money held steady at 4 per cent all day. Time money rates were easier, the short maturities again being quoted on a flat 4 3-8 per cent basis, with 4 1-2 per cent asked for the longer dates. Prime commercial paper was unchanged at 4 to 4 1-4.

A sharp drop of 18 points in Spanish pesetas, which were quoted around 16.75 cents, was the only change of consequence in the foreign exchange market. Demand sterling ruled slightly higher around $4.84 11-16 and French francs around 3.93 cents.

SOUTHERN LAND MOVE LAUNCHED

Washington, February 8.—(Special.)—A definite movement for reclaiming present unused lands for agriculture in the south was launched here tonight at a conference of business, industrial and commercial delegates from southern states with members of congress from the south.

An appropriation of $50,000 will be sought from congress before the present session ends, for making a survey with the object of establishing an agricultural community on reclaimed land in each southern state.

With this appropriation, experts of the interior and agriculture departments would make a study of soil, location of markets, amount of money needed to establish a farm, and such matters concerned with setting up experimental communities. With one community in each state as a basis, others would be developed.

J. F. Patterson, pecan grower of Albany, who spoke in behalf of the Georgia delegation at the conference, urged that the appropriation be made $70,000, the amount of authorized funds for this southern reclamation work still unexpended.

Roland Turner, of Atlanta, in charge of agricultural work for the Southern railway, also was present, as well as Paul Brown, of Albany. All southern states were well represented.

A special commission appointed by Secretary Work has completed a reclamation survey of the south, and its report will be published soon, forming a basis for the next step in establishing communities which was taken here tonight. Congress appropriated $15,000 for that survey. The commission was composed of Howard Elliott, chairman board of directors, Northern Pacific railroad; Daniel C. Roper, of North Carolina, formerly internal revenue commissioner, and George Soule, director national bureau of economic research.

CO-ED BANK ROBBER ORDERED TO HOSPITAL

Vermillion, S. D., February 8.—Miss Marian Meyers, the former University of South Dakota co-ed who tried to rob a bank to pay tuition fees, will go to the Yankton insane hospital Wednesday for observation, pending her trial in March.

Differences between state [illegible]ty officials have been composed. The sheriff had claimed [illegible] a right to take Marian from [illegible] while she did not meet the $1,500 bail set for her release. He acquiesced Tuesday to the state officer who ordered her removal to Yankton.

Time Flies For Six Men In Death Cell

Chicago, February 8.—All six convicts awaiting death on the gallows in Joliet penitentiary, will meet their fate at dawn Friday, as scheduled, unless Governor Len S. Small intervenes—and that isn't likely.

After hearing much on the subject of why an extension of time should be recommended for three of the condemned men who are Mexicans, the state board of pardons and paroles, meeting today in Chicago for that purpose, announced that no extension would be recommended.

Total bond sales (par value), $14,571,000.

New York, February 8.—(AP)—After a week of steady declines under profit taking, French obligations returned to the center of interest in the bond market today. Aside from the foreign division, bond trading was quiet, with prices holding fairly steady.

Particular demand focused on the French governmental issues, while some of the railway liens, including Paris-Lyons-Mediterranean 6s and Nord 6½s had good support. There was a broadening of interest, too, which took in securities hitherto not especially active. Among these were Swiss 5½s and Good Hope Steel 7s. Belgian governmental loans recorded fractional advances.

Domestic rail mortgages were sluggish, despite active speculation in railroad stocks. A sharp rise of 7 points in Norfolk and Western Convertible 6s and one of more than 3 points in Wabash 4s featured trading in this department. Chicago and Alton 3½s also were firm. National Railroad of Mexico 4½s displayed weakness, dropping off more than 2 points.

Although industrials generally were steady, material losses were sustained by Anglo-Chilean Nitrate 7s and Granby 7s, while Framerican 7½s and Warner Sugar Refunding 7s advanced smartly. Public Utilities were steady.

There was a fair demand for federal government bonds, and prices were firm.

WEATHER NEWS HARDENS WHEAT

Chicago, February 8.—(By the Associated Press.)—Chances of crop damage by a cold wave expected tonight led to a late upturn in wheat prices today. The wheat market closed firm at about the top level reached, 1-2c to 1 3-8c net higher with corn showing 1-8c to 3-8c advance. Oats unchanged to 1-8@1-4c up and provisions varying from 5c decline to a rise of 2c.

Inasmuch as virtually the entire domestic winter wheat territory is devoid of snow protection, the likelihood of injury from a sudden severe drop in temperature was given much notice. Previous speculative sellers were quick to reverse their position and to bid the market up, ignoring at least temporarily the fact that export demand for North American wheat today was slow and that the world's available supply had increased 2,304,000 bushels for the week. On the other hand, some authorities contended that the peak of the present movement in the southwest has passed.

Word of unfavorable crop conditions in Europe were also at hand, with the Liverpool market showing more strength than had been looked for, and nearby deliveries reported as being readily absorbed. Meanwhile, uncertainty over the McNary-Haugen agricultural bill at Washington acted as more or less of a deterrent to trading on either side of the market, a disposition being shown in some quarters to avoid new ventures, whether bullish or bearish, until the bill has been disposed of.

Corn and oats were chiefly governed by the action of wheat. Country offerings both of corn and oats lacked volume.

Provisions were easier, responsive to a downturn in the value of hogs.

New York, February 8.—(AP)—After a week of steady declines under profit taking, French obligations returned to the center of interest in the bond market today. Aside from the foreign division, bond trading was quiet, with prices holding fairly steady.

Particular demand focused on the French governmental issues, while some of the railway liens, including Paris-Lyons-Mediterranean 6s and Nord 6½s had good support. There was a broadening of interest, too, which took in securities hitherto not especially active. Among these were Swiss 5½s and Good Hope Steel 7s. Belgian governmental loans recorded fractional advances.

Domestic rail mortgages were sluggish, despite active speculation in railroad stocks. A sharp rise of 7 points in Norfolk and Western Convertible 6s and one of more than 3 points in Wabash 4s featured trading in this department. Chicago and Alton 3½s also were firm. National Railroad of Mexico 4½s displayed weakness, dropping off more than 2 points.

Although industrials generally were steady, material losses were sustained by Anglo-Chilean Nitrate 7s and Granby 7s, while Framerican 7½s and Warner Sugar Refunding 7s advanced smartly. Public Utilities were steady.

There was a fair demand for federal government bonds, and prices were firm.

WEATHER NEWS HARDENS WHEAT

Chicago, February 8.—(By the Associated Press.)—Chances of crop damage by a cold wave expected tonight led to a late upturn in wheat prices today. The wheat market closed firm at about the top level reached, 1-2c to 1 3-8c net higher with corn showing 1-8c to 3-8c advance. Oats unchanged to 1-8@1-4c up and provisions varying from 5c decline to a rise of 2c.

Inasmuch as virtually the entire domestic winter wheat territory is devoid of snow protection, the likelihood of injury from a sudden severe drop in temperature was given much notice. Previous speculative sellers were quick to reverse their position and to bid the market up, ignoring at least temporarily the fact that export demand for North American wheat today was slow and that the world's available supply had increased 2,304,000 bushels for the week. On the other hand, some authorities contended that the peak of the present movement in the southwest has passed.

Word of unfavorable crop conditions in Europe were also at hand, with the Liverpool market showing more strength than had been looked for, and nearby deliveries reported as being readily absorbed. Meanwhile, uncertainty over the McNary-Haugen agricultural bill at Washington acted as more or less of a deterrent to trading on either side of the market, a disposition being shown in some quarters to avoid new ventures, whether bullish or bearish, until the bill has been disposed of.

Corn and oats were chiefly governed by the action of wheat. Country offerings both of corn and oats lacked volume.

AT THE THEATERS

Erlanger Theater.

"Ben Hur." The Italian sea battle scenes in "Ben Hur," which continues at the Erlanger theater all of this week, are the most successful and thrilling ever made by an American film company working abroad. They were pictured by a Metro-Goldwyn Mayer organization directed by Fred Niblo which spent nearly two years in and about Italy, and this naval work was done off the coast of Livorno after a great fleet of ancient triremes had been built in the Livorno shipyards after the designs by Professor Angeli, the celebrated archeologist, of Rome.

Romans and Livornese were engaged as Roman and Aegean sea fighters respectively.

Coming to Erlanger Theater.

"The Judge's Husband." William Hodge, who has won a staunch and numerous following and so endeared himself to theatergoers that he has become identified as an American stage idol, will offer his latest comedy hit, "The Judge's Husband," at the Erlanger theater for an engagement of three nights, beginning Monday, February 14.

The star has scored an emphatic success in this seventh play from his pen in many of the largest cities, including Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia and New York. Conspicuous in the New York supporting company to be seen here is charming Gladys Hanson as the female judge. Seats go on sale at Erlanger theater box office tomorrow (Thursday) morning.

The Forsyth.

"White Collars" (stock). An answer to whether or not Atlanta theatergoers like the clean or the salacious in stage offerings, is emphatically given in this week's attraction at the Forsyth theater, "White Collars," by Edith Ellis.

Excellent crowds are seeing this fine work by the mother of the little leading woman, Miss Ellis Baker, the latter being cast in a role written especially for her by her well known mother. John Warner, leading man, also is playing a role with which he is more than familiar, having played it in the New York showing of "White Collars" and later was on the road.

The Rialto.

"Broken Hearts of Hollywood" at the Rialto this week is a picture that gives the inside story of the Hollywood underworld; a picture to be seen by anyone who aims to enter motion pictures, or by anyone who cares to know the truth behind the glamorous success of screen life.

Keith's Georgia.

Vaudeville and Pictures. A hint of what is possible in "big time" vaudeville is the bill this week at the new Keith-Georgia theater, where every act and the feature film is of the highest quality. George McKay has brought to the city his "unit" show with five star acts of excellent quality. McKay acts as the announcer for each of the offerings, does a series of dance steps, and finally appears in his own act, which includes all of the artists on the show. It is a fast-moving bill this week and up to the standard of Keith productions. The photo feature is "God Gave Me 20 Cents."

The Metropolitan.

The Silent Lover—Milton Sills and Viola Dana, together with a notable cast in "The Silent Lover" at the Metropolitan theater this week, are scoring another tremendous hit similar to that registered by Milton Sills in "Men of Steel," and "The Sea Hawk." Some of the most arresting and convincing desert scenes, with the moonlight glimpses of the lonely Moroccan outpost where Sills and his legionnaires kept watch, assist materially in making "The Silent Lover" a particularly beautiful presentation.

Howard Theater.

Hotel Imperial.—Some of the most unusual war scenes ever filmed are shown in the Paramount special production, "Hotel Imperial" at the Howard theater this week. In this drama of love, war and intrigue an entirely new conception of drama has been combined with the most extraordinary camera technique ever used. As a result "Hotel Imperial" is unlike any war picture ever attempted. James Hall, Pola Negri and George Siegmann head the great cast. Another gorgeous Publix presentation is "In a Persian Garden."

Loew's Grand.

Vaudeville and Pictures.—Irene Franklin, one of the highest salaried vaudeville performers in the world, whose entertainment ability is in keeping with the reward she receives for her services, is the headline attraction at Loew's Grand. Miss Franklin is known as the girl who made the red head famous and she has appeared as the top liner in the best theaters in the country. Other acts on the bill are Stella Tracey and Jay Elwood, "Bits of Broadway." William Ebs in "A Vaudeville Surprise." Earl and Bell in a musical skit, and the Leach-LaQuinlan trio in a daring aerial novelty. The feature picture is "The Scarlet Letter," with Lillian Gish.

Tenth Street Theater.

"The Three Musketeers," do you remember them? Who doesn't, and the picturization of the story is equally as famous as the book itself. Douglas Fairbanks, that most popular of all screen actors is the central character of "The Three Musketeers" which is being shown at the Tenth Street theater today only. The picture is the ultimate in pure entertainment and the reshowing is sure to arouse a widespread interest.

Fairfax Theater.

"Sally, Irene and Mary," a story of three show girls, is the feature at the Fairfax theater in East Point for today only. From the stage success of the same name, the picture contains all the elements that make good stage entertainment. The story follows the lives of each of the three girls to their final destiny, and closes with a thoroughly out-of-the-ordinary and climactic finish.

Palace Theater.

West End Theater.

"Thundering Hoofs," a western, which is the ultimate in thrills and action, is being shown for today only at the West End theater. Fred Thompson, former preacher, who has turned movie cowboy, and what a cowboy! is featured in the picture, and his fans as well as those who like the best in western pictures will be completely satisfied with his latest film. His famous stunt horse and an unusually good cast support him.

Tudor Theater.

"Men of the Night." Showing now at the Tudor is an unusually interesting drama of those men who live by their wits, justly called "Men of the Night" because they operate after darkness has fallen, and who recognize none accept a peculiar code which they respect; of two men, one who did not respect even this code and another who did.

Midnight Frolic.

(Friday Night).

"Shufflin' Sam From Alabam'," one of the greatest colored musical comedy hits of the present time, will be seen with its 1927 cast and book Friday night at the 81 theater at a midnight frolic for white people only at 11 o'clock.

The story of "Shufflin' Sam" which is interwoven with the very latest of musical hits and marvelous dancing numbers, tells of a ragged colored lad in the cotton fields of Alabam' whose ambition in life is to have plenty of good clothes, money and diamonds. The cast includes Victor Scott, Richard Perry, Susie Sutton, Peg Bates, Joe Williams, Herbert Whitfield and Sidney Rink and his famous mule, "Gunpowder." The Memphis Blue Demons Jazz orchestra and the Black Bottom Steppers are other big features. Tickets are on sale at the theater and at Chess' Place at Five Points at the usual popular prices.

MEN WHO MADE THE WORLD

King Richard I.

By DR. ELLIOTT SHORING, NOTED HISTORIAN

ELEANORA EXERTED A COMMANDING INFLUENCE OVER THE LADIES OF HER COURT AND SOON SHE INSPIRED THEM WITH HER OWN ROMANTIC ARDOR FOR THE CRUSADE. MANY TOOK TO THE IDEA AT ONCE AND SOON THEIR TALK WAS OF NOTHING BUT ARMS AND ARMOR, HORSES, CAMPS AND BATTLES. IT SEEMED AN ABSURD IDEA FOR WOMEN TO UNDERTAKE SO HAZARDOUS AN ENTERPRISE UNDER THE CONDITIONS OF THOSE DAYS, BUT, NEVERTHELESS, THE EXPEDITION WAS AT LENGTH ORGANIZED.
ALTHOUGH ELEANORA AND THE OTHER WOMEN CRUSADERS ASSUMED THE DRESS OF AMAZONS, SO THAT THEY MIGHT RIDE ASTRIDE, AND FOR CONVENIENCE IN THE CAMP AND FIELD, THEY EXPECTED TO ENJOY MANY GREAT PLEASURES AND TO GIVE AND RECEIVE SPLENDID ENTERTAINMENTS ON THE SCALE OF LUXURY WHICH BEFITTED ORIENTAL CITIES. SO THEY TOOK GREAT QUANTITIES OF BAGGAGE CONTAINING DRESSES AND FEMININE APPAREL OF ALL KINDS. THE COMMANDERS PROTESTED TO THE KING AGAINST SO UNUSUAL A PROCEDURE, AND HE IN TURN STERNLY REBUKED ELEANORA AND HER LADIES. BUT, OF COURSE, IT ENDED BY THE WOMEN HAVING THEIR OWN WAY.

BLAME ILL HEALTH FOR POISON DOSE

L. A. Houston, of 215 East Thirteenth street, was taken to Georgia Baptist hospital early Tuesday night in a serious condition as the result of having swallowed a quantity of carbolic acid, said to have been taken with suicidal intent, according to hospital attaches.

Mr. Houston, it was stated, has been in ill health for the past several months, and has been unable to work for the past two weeks. He is branch manager for a local chain grocery company, it was stated.

Mr. Houston walked into a bedroom of his apartment early Tuesday night, and, without warning to his wife, who was in the room at the time, turned the vial of poison up and drank a small quantity of it. His wife pushed the bottle away from his mouth, it was stated. His two small boys were in another room of the home at the time.

He was rushed to the hospital where doctors administered first aid treatment. Members of the city detective department were notified.

EMORY STUDENTS HEAR LECTURE ON PEACE

L. V. Gordon, of New York, extension secretary of the World Alliance for International Friendship, spoke to the Emory University International Relations club Monday night on the subject "A New International Conception." Mr. Gordon is an Australian by birth, but for the last 25 years has lived in the United States and has become a naturalized American. He is secretary of the New York Peace society.

Mr. Gordon declared that the old order is changing and there is a new internationalism. As to changing human nature, he says: "We can change their ideas, and direct their thinking. Therefore we can change the ideas of man from war to peace. Militarism with the accompanying armament makes war inevitable."

Before adjournment the Emory club voted unanimously to send telegrams to President Coolidge urging peaceful settlement of the present international turmoil and to Senator Borah commending the stand he has taken for peace.

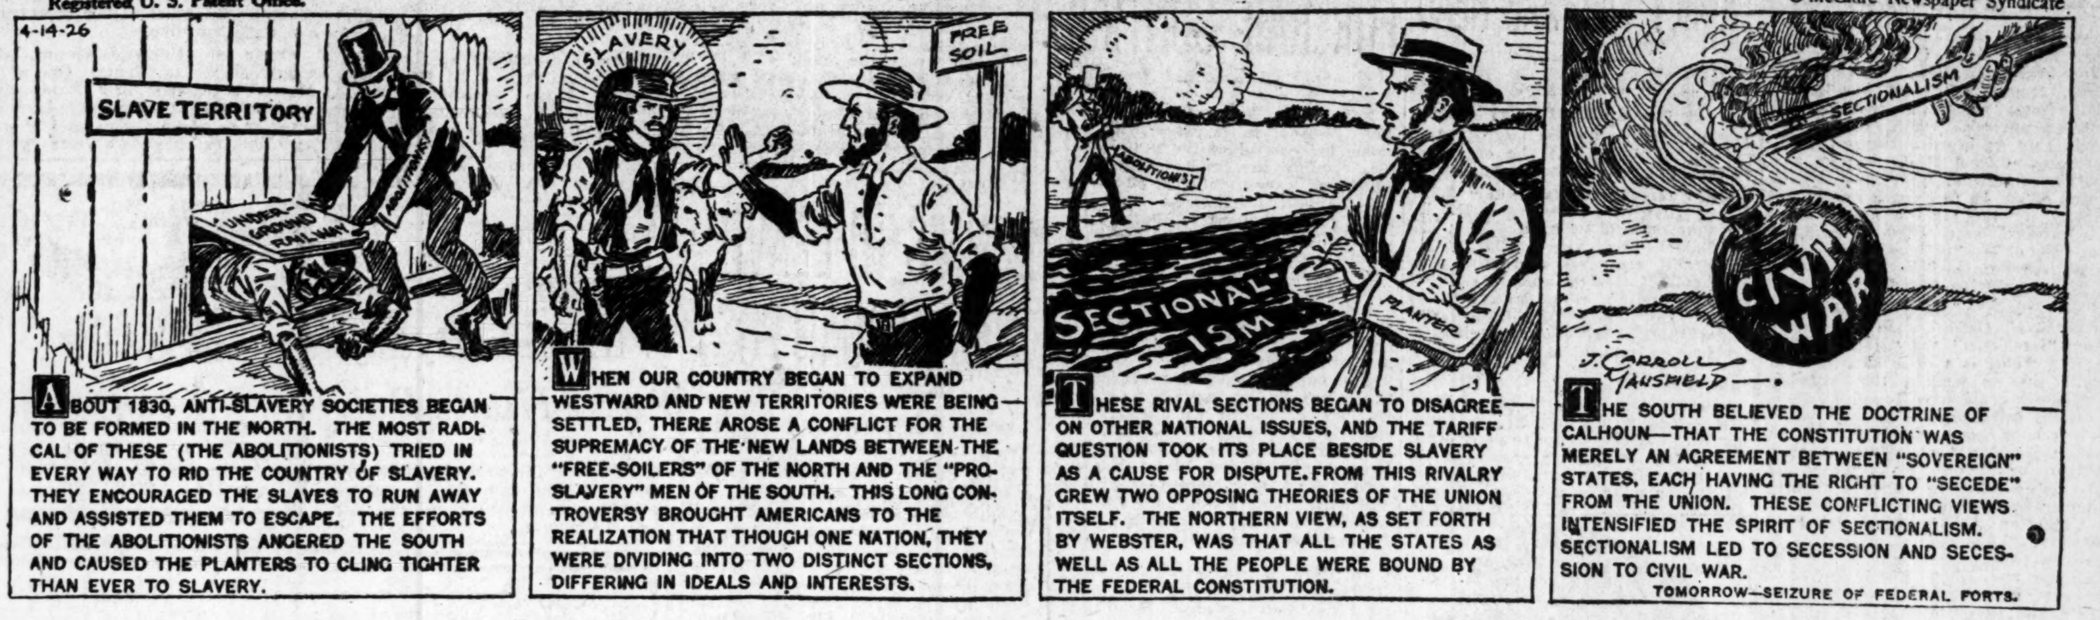
How Secession Came About—Part Three.

by J. CARROLL MANSFIELD

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate



ABOUT 1830, ANTI-SLAVERY SOCIETIES BEGAN TO BE FORMED IN THE NORTH. THE MOST RADICAL OF THESE (THE ABOLITIONISTS) TRIED IN EVERY WAY TO RID THE COUNTRY OF SLAVERY. THEY ENCOURAGED THE SLAVES TO RUN AWAY AND ASSISTED THEM TO ESCAPE. THE EFFORTS OF THE ABOLITIONISTS ANGERED THE SOUTH AND CAUSED THE PLANTERS TO CLING TIGHTER THAN EVER TO SLAVERY.

WHEN OUR COUNTRY BEGAN TO EXPAND WESTWARD AND NEW TERRITORIES WERE BEING SETTLED, THERE AROSE A CONFLICT FOR THE SUPREMACY OF THE NEW LANDS BETWEEN THE "FREE-SOILERS" OF THE NORTH AND THE "PRO-SLAVERY" MEN OF THE SOUTH. THIS LONG CONTROVERSY BROUGHT AMERICANS TO THE REALIZATION THAT THOUGH ONE NATION, THEY WERE DIVIDING INTO TWO DISTINCT SECTIONS, DIFFERING IN IDEALS AND INTERESTS.

THESE RIVAL SECTIONS BEGAN TO DISAGREE ON OTHER NATIONAL ISSUES, AND THE TARIFF QUESTION TOOK ITS PLACE BESIDE SLAVERY AS A CAUSE FOR DISPUTE. FROM THIS RIVALRY GREW TWO OPPOSING THEORIES OF THE UNION ITSELF. THE NORTHERN VIEW, AS SET FORTH BY WEBSTER, WAS THAT ALL THE STATES AS WELL AS ALL THE PEOPLE WERE BOUND BY THE FEDERAL CONSTITUTION.

THE SOUTH BELIEVED THE DOCTRINE OF CALHOUN—THAT THE CONSTITUTION WAS MERELY AN AGREEMENT BETWEEN "SOVEREIGN" STATES, EACH HAVING THE RIGHT TO "SECEDE" FROM THE UNION. THESE CONFLICTING VIEWS INTENSIFIED THE SPIRIT OF SECTIONALISM. SECTIONALISM LED TO SECESSION AND SECESSION TO CIVIL WAR.

TOMORROW—SEIZURE OF FEDERAL FORTS.

BY RALPH T. JONES.

This business of attending a concert and hearing a song you wrote and composed yourself isn't all it's cracked up to be. However, after due allowance for courtesy-applause, I think "Your Home's in My Heart," went over big enough to satisfy. At least, there is a measure of safety in writing your own review about it.

The occasion was the concert given last night at Wesley Memorial by the advanced students of Signor Emilio Volpi, Atlanta's famous voice teacher and opera coach, and the Apollo society chorus. It was a highly enjoyable affair, after eliminating that song, and the signor and his pupils covered themselves with large portions of well deserved credit.

In thinking over the program, first place in written praise must be given to an attractive young lady with red hair named Alice Claire McKenzie. After hearing her sing "Mi Chiamino Mimi," from "La Boheme," the "Hero" song from "Chocolate Soldier" and another number, there can be no doubt that we heard a future famous songbird, at least of the concert and lighter stage and, quite possibly, of grand opera. In fact there was ample ground for the remark of the lady-who-sat-next-to-me, when she said, at the close of the "Boheme" aria—"She sings like Ponselle."

Singing Delights.

Next place, perhaps, should go to Mrs. E. B. Oxford, who sang arias from "La Tosca" and "Madame Butterfly." There is a little idea in mind while this is written that possibly the singer could have found numbers a trifle better suited to her voice, but perhaps this is merely a mistaken notion. Anyway, her singing is enough delight for anyone. Only, we would like to hear her in numbers slightly simpler in composition.

Catherine Abbott comes third in memory. (This idea of numbering is entirely from memory and it is likely someone else would list otherwise—however, we must take 'em in some order.) She sang "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," by Saint-Saens and handled the difficult soprano pyrotechnics like a veteran.

Then comes Milton Pierson, a tenor. He is gifted with a voice of strength and, at the same time, unusual appeal. Mr. Pierson was effective in an aria from "Martha," and a duet arrangement of Schubert's "Serenade" sung with E. E. Sheridan.

For next mention pick the same Mr. Sheridan. This young man has a baritone of range and power that ought to carry him, some day, to the heights. Needs a little more training, particularly along the line of clearer enunciation and in lighter passages. He has to learn that some of the most beautiful effects are the result of restraint. But he has a great voice and handles it attractively. He sang, in addition to the "Serenade," the Prologue from "Pagliacci," sang with Miss McKenzie in the "Hero" song duet—and sang the song this commentator was most interested in.

Frank McMillan is another with a nice voice. He gave the aria "Il Balen," from Trovatore. Comment around was that he is a good opera possibility for the future when a few more years add experience and maturity. Quite a good possibility, I should think.

Scores Heavily.

Miss Callie Freeman, Miss Frances Durette, Mrs. Oliver Coleman charmed with young voices in attractive numbers. Miss Martiele McLain scored heavily in Musetta's "Waltz" from "Boheme," as well as in her encore. Genevieve Lawton has an exceptionally high range soprano, used effectively last night in Chaminade's "Summer," and an encore number, "It Is Spring."

Carlyle Foster is a bass who thrilled with the "Evening Star" from "Tannhauser" and that lovely encore "Danny."

The Apollo chorus gave "O Belle Nuit," from "Tales of Hoffman;" "Glow Worm," by Lincke, and sang in the "Hero" song with Miss McKenzie and Mr. Sheridan.

Altogether it was a delightful evening of song. Signor Volpi is to be congratulated in his pupils and, by every evidence, the pupils have equal cause for congratulation in their teacher—and accompanist, for the signor himself presided at the piano throughout.

MUSCLE SHOALS HOLDS ATTENTION OF MILITARY BODY

Washington, February 8.—(AP)—Two more extended executive sessions were held by the house military subcommittee today in an effort to reach a conclusion on the two pending bids for Muscle Shoals, but no agreement was reached.

W. B. Bell, president of the American Cyanamid company, was before the committee to discuss his offer. He will testify again tomorrow.

For a time this afternoon Bell and his official stenographer were excluded from the meeting while committee members debated provisions of the two bids.

Chairman James, of the subcommittee, refused to divulge whether a critical stage in the negotiations had been reached.

Sponsors of the offer by the Farmers' Federated Fertilizer corporation are expected to submit to the committee tomorrow a revised bid designed to meet objections raised by members.

RUSSELL AGAIN NAMED FAMILY WELFARE HEAD

Other officers elected include A. J. Orme, first vice president; R. L. Foreman, second vice president; T. H. Daniel, third vice president; R. A. McGill, treasurer, and Miss Ada S. Woolfolk, general secretary.

In an address on problems of Atlanta's poor classes Mr. Russell declared that, in addition to relieving problems, a preventive work must be done with the children to make the adjustment permanent.

"It is evident," he said, "from scientific measurements of children of these families that they begin to deteriorate at a very early age unless given proper nurture. A spiritual and mental growth must be developed in connection with material relief. If this phase of assistance is neglected there can be no progress in social development."

HORACE RUSSELL.

Miss Woolfolk, in submitting her annual report, stated that a legal provision is needed to protect children from communicable diseases. There are 200 children in Atlanta today who are living in contact with cases of tuberculosis because of inadequate laws and resources, she declared. Miss Woolfolk showed that in 345 families surveyed, 216 individuals are chronically ill and because of crowded living conditions children have become inflicted with communicable diseases.

In the absence of R. A. McGill, treasurer, A. J. Orme, first vice president, read the financial report, which showed 1926 receipts of the society to have been $61,818.81, while disbursements were $63,430.53. Of this amount, it was explained, $48,264.76 was spent in relief and service to families under the care of the society, and $14,694.42 in administration of the organization.

The Rev. N. R. High Moor, rector of St. Luke's Episcopal church, in discussing the relation of the church to organized social service of the community, said the church is the "dynamo that makes possible social work and that without the inspiration of the spirit of brotherhood would cease to be."

Directors of the organization were elected as follows: Dr. W. W. Alexander, Roy Booker, C. W. Cunningham, Louis J. Elsas, B. P. Gambrell, Mrs. DeLos Hill, Harold Hirsch, Clark Howell, Jr., Fred Hoyt, Jerome Jones, Roy LeCraw, J. C. Malone, Charles Marshall, Dr. David Marx, Rodney Morrison, Herbert D. Oliver, Mark Pope, R. K. Rambo, Miss Eleanor Raoul, Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, Mrs. Norman Sharp, John Slaton, the Rev. C. R. Stauffer, E. A. Thornwell, E. Marvin Underwood, Charles Walker, Kendall Weisiger, Harold B. Wey, Walter Whittington and Comer Woodward.

BATTLE CONTINUES FOR RAIL CONTROL

New York, February 8.—(United News.)—Another gigantic railroad battle for control of the eastern sector, rivaling the famous Hill-Harriman feud over Northern Pacific in 1901, appeared imminent in Wall street tonight after five hours of hectic trading had failed to break the technical corner on common stock of the Wheeling and Lake Erie railroad.

Instead of the giants of the railroad world whose bones strewed the exchange during the panic of 1901, market wizards see in the present situation two great financial houses, J. P. Morgan & Co., and Kuhn, Loeb & Co., pitted against each other in a struggle for control of the east.

Morgan is backing the New York Central and Nickel Plate railroads, which have now gained control of Wheeling, and Kuhn, Loeb & Co., furnish the financial sinews of the Pennsylvania and Baltimore and Ohio lines.

Both groups desire the otherwise unimportant Wheeling and Lake Erie as a link in their plans for domination of eastern trunk lines. On the basis of the first blow struck, the New York Central and Nickel Plate seem to have triumphed.

$350,000 HOTEL SOUGHT BY CLUB AT ST. SIMONS

Brunswick, Ga., February 8.—(Special.)—Four weeks ago the Young Men's club, which has been active in Brunswick in the past, decided that a hotel on St. Simons Island for this summer was essential, inasmuch as the only hotel on the island had been destroyed by fire, and it was altogether inadequate for the needs of the resort. It was decided then to appoint a committee to go to work and secure the hotel.

W. Jennings Butts, chairman, made a report recently in which it was stated there is every indication to believe that a hostelry would grace the island this summer. Butts said, tentative plans called for a hotel to cost $350,000.

In Memoriam.

WILLIAM LAWSON PEEL,
Born Webster County, Georgia, 1850.
Died Atlanta, Georgia, 1927.

Where wealth accumulates, and men decay."

It is vastly more important that one lives well than that he merely lives long. The subject of this sketch did both. On Wednesday evening, February 2, 1927, as the twilight shadows lengthened into the darkness of night, the soul of William Lawson Peel went on the last Great Adventure.

The seventy-seven years of a busy life is but an exemplification and a lesson to the youth of America of what one man may do. There is no saturation point to the goodness and the usefulness one life may accomplish, for like the widow's cruse of oil, it is replenished from a miraculous source.

It would be vain to spread upon our records a mere catalogue of the specific business and civic services of this man. It is needless to specify the qualities of his intellect and heart that commanded our admiration; hopeless to attempt to list the elements of his character and the revelations of his heart that endeared him to all men everywhere who knew him. Let us be content to bear witness to that enduring influence with which his noble nature has enriched our lives. Through storm or sunshine, always he followed his star, helping to make this a better world in which to live and helping to make better men and women to live in the world. So will abide with us the personality of a man who, in his business career, in his social life, in his civic pride was embodied the principles and ideals which we hope will always guide and inspire the action of ourselves. Abstract theories or inspired revelations do not become vital forces to sway mankind until they are brought near to the hearts of men through a living example. It is the "word made flesh" that appeals to the human heart.

Colonel Peel was a friend without fawning; a citizen without ostentation; a Christian without hypocrisy; a man without guile. His entire life was a manifestation of courage, there being never a question of where he stood. He was always ready to render service to his people, his city, his state, or his church, and he was never known to turn from the worthy outstretched hands of want.

He was a man of modest and gentle manner, of the deepest personal piety, of the loftiest Christian spirit, and he left all along in his pathway of seventy-seven useful years a line of light utterly inextinguishable. He will be remembered with lavish admiration and love for his noble character and his generous deeds of kindness throughout the entire section in which he lived.

Victor Hugo tells us that forty is the old age of youth, and fifty the youth of old age, but he nowhere fixes the boundaries between the spring and the summer nor between the autumn and the winter of old age. It was wise that he did not make the attempt for the boundaries are shifting, one is young at eighty, another is old at sixty. While Colonel Peel belonged to the old school and he had in his make-up the characteristic elements of conservatism which goes with increasing years, yet he was ever young, and manifested great interest in young people and in those things which interested young people. If you should count the years in which he had worked and wrought, measured by Victor Hugo's maxim, you would probably count him in the autumn, corresponding to that season in the material world in which the earth gives of her fullness, the fields yield up their increase of a thousand fold, and the orchards drop their burdens, yet those of us who knew him say that he was still in the springtime, planting flowers, making to blush the cheeks of youth, planning for the future, striving to make a better world, when the last summons came.

Measured by every standard we know his life was a success. Having retired from active cares of a wholesome, successful, busy life, he spent his last days like the Prince of Galilee, going about doing good. May it be said of us as we say of him, "He was found faithful," for higher praise than this can no man give or receive.

We, as members of the Board of Directors of the Citizens and Southern Bank, sympathize with his loved ones. We know how even the familiar sunlight saddens when it falls across a vacant chair. We shall all miss him but we have the satisfaction of feeling that we are better men and this is a better world because he has lived and wrought.

Resolved, therefore, that the sympathy of this Board of Directors of the Citizens and Southern Bank be extended to the members of his family.

Second, that a copy of this statement be entered upon the official record of this bank, which he served loyally and gladly.

And after that the dark!
And may there be no sadness of farewell,
When I embark."

ROBT. C. ALSTON,
H. Y. M'CORD,
NORMAN C. MILLER.
